'MYSTERY' MAN GIVES ALIBI

FUSE TO CLASS HATRED SEEN IN ROOSEVELT TALK

Challenge Answered by Liberty League.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—On the eve of the reassembling tomorrow of the Supreme court, which may render further judgment on the New Deal, the American Liberty league made its answer tonight to President Roosevelt's address to congress.

Charging that the President was endeavoring to incite class antagonism, the league pronounced the speech "the most dangerous that ever came from a President of the United States." The organization also found in the speech a confession by Mr. Roosevelt of the indictment of fostering a dictatorship.

"Invoking," said the league, "the name of Jefferson as a patron saint, Mr. Roosevelt, who was elected President in the name of the Democratic party and on the platform of that party to which he pledges adherence, demands a centralization of government such as would have delighted the soul of the most starry eyed Hamiltonian. Again he shows his contempt for the constitution which previously he has flouted in both spoken and written word."

Supreme Court in Spotlight.

The spotlight now shifts from the executive to the nine old men of the Supreme court who in the next few months will decide the fate of the New Deal, for the time being at least. With four New Deal cases under advisement—two involving the AAA, one the TVA and another the Bankhead compulsory cotton control—the court will resume its sessions tomorrow. It is virtually certain that the decision on the constitutionality of one or more of these cases will be forthcoming tomorrow, or a week hence.

In the meantime rumors are flying that the President, in accord with a hint in his Friday night speech, is about to invoke congressional action to curb the injunction process of the federal courts which has suspended the collection of AAA processing taxes and other administration of New Deal legislation in more than 2,000 suits.

In his speech the President said: "The carrying out of the laws of the land as enacted by the congress requires protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal of the land. The congress has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

Three Features Cited.

The Liberty league found in the President's address relating to domestic affairs the following outstanding features:

"1. A reiteration of the Roosevelt theory that the rights of the states should be abandoned and all authority concentrated in a centralized federal government.

"2. A repetition of the effort, so pronounced in his recent speeches at Atlanta and Chicago, to array class against class, to arouse resentments, antagonisms, passions among the American people.

"3. A willingness to utilize the occasion of an address by the President to the congress as a means of making a campaign speech."

League Accepts Challenge.

The league accepted the challenge of the President to his opponents to offer constructive proposals, to "be positive and not negative."

"Within the past year," said the league, "numerous specific recommendations have been offered by those interested in the preservation of constitutional government and the promotion of economic recovery.

"Less than two weeks ago the American Liberty league presented for the consideration of the congress a twelve point program. Other meritorious suggestions have come from various sources.

"No attention is paid to them. Any proposal that does not originate within the circle immediately surrounding the President is apparently unworthy of notice. Half-baked and ill-considered bills coming from the so-called 'brain trust' have been sent to the capitol in instance after instance with instructions that they be passed without change, without con-

ITALIAN BOMBS DESTROY TOWN IN AIR ATTACK

Planes Rake Foe on All Fronts.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 5.—Official Ethiopian communiques announced today the "whole town" of Daggah Bur and its Egyptian Red Cross unit had been destroyed by a deluge of Italian aerial bombs.

"The number of victims is unknown," the communiques stated.

In terse phrases, the announcements disclosed the most intensive campaign of aerial warfare by the Fascist invaders on all fronts since the war began a little more than three months ago.

Large City Bombed.

The government's recital of the widespread series of bombings also revealed the bombardment of Debra Tabor, one of Ethiopia's principal cities, which lies less than 50 miles east of Lake Tsana.

This great inland sea is the source of the Blue Nile, and is vital to Great Britain's interests in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

There were no victims at Debra Tabor, the official statement said.

Other Italian bombings were announced in the "Korem region of the southern front"; at Amba Alaji, south of Makale in the north, where four persons were said to have been killed and many wounded in the extreme northwestern province of Wolkait.

Fight to Stop Ethiopians.

The Korem bombing apparently was the one which gave rise to widespread reports that Harrar, main Ethiopian city in the south, was being bombed. [There is a "Khora" about 100 miles east of Harrar, on the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.]

Ethiopian officials believed the unprecedented aerial activity on all fronts was aimed to disrupt forward movements of Ethiopian troops, both in the northern and southern theaters of war.

The intense series of bombings included last Monday's merciless assault near Dolo, in the far south, in which a Swedish ambulance unit was destroyed and a Swedish Red Cross worker and 28 wounded Ethiopians slain.

This attack, leading to wide international repercussions, has been termed by Dr. Fried Hylander, chief of the Swedish unit, as "utterly deliberate" and "an awful sight." Dr. Hylander, with bomb fragments in his side, is in an Addis Ababa hospital.

Drop 3,000 Bombs.

In the northern sector south of Makale, a communique announced yesterday, three thousand Italian bombs killed ten Ethiopians and wounded fifteen.

Concerning the Daggah Bur bombardment, today's announcement said:

"The whole town, also the Egyptian Red Cross, was destroyed. The number of victims is unknown. Other Italian planes bombed the Korem region on the south front at 3 p. m. Saturday. There were no victims."

Northern Raids Described.

The communique described two northern raids as follows:

"On Jan. 2 three planes dropped many bombs on Denbat and Debra Tabor. There were no victims.

"On Dec. 26 the region of Amba

SHOOTING BOTH WAYS

Rival Named Wife's Slayer by Henneman

Shortly after the Stockyards police arrested Elton McDonald, 32 years old, 3624 West 64th place, in his home late yesterday, they announced that George Henneman had identified William Schaaf, 43 years old, 3607 West 67th place, as the slayer of his wife, Elsie, 35 years old. McDonald is suspected of having driven the assassins' automobile.

Mrs. Henneman was slain Friday night before 333 Root street as she sat in an automobile driven by her husband, who is secretary-treasurer of local No. 191 of the painters' union. When another machine curbed Henneman's automobile, he dropped to the floor, warning his wife to do likewise. She failed to comply and a shotgun charge meant for her husband struck her.

Seize Three in Rival Faction.

The police immediately suspected that the motive lay in the turbulent affairs of the union. They arrested Schaaf, Thomas Harcharick, 3630 North Leavitt street, and Arvin Johnson, 3618 North Leavitt street, members of a faction which opposed Henneman's activities in the union. The wives of Schaaf and Harcharick also were taken into custody.

At Schaaf's home the police found a shotgun and two revolvers. The appearance of the shotgun indicated it recently was cleaned.

It was revealed yesterday that Henneman immediately identified Schaaf as the man who killed his wife. The information was withheld, however, by Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan until the capture of McDonald.

Several Others Held.

McDonald, a former cab driver, was known to the police as an associate of Schaaf. He assured investigators, however, that he did not own an automobile. Moreover, Henneman was unable to identify him.

Late yesterday Mrs. Harcharick was released, but Harcharick, Johnson, and Mrs. Schaaf remained in custody.

James Dungan, business agent of the union, with whom Henneman was allied in controling the union, was questioned by Coghlan as a material witness in order to learn the history of the union's affairs. It was disclosed that Schaaf was expelled from the organization six or seven months ago and since that time had waged war on the Dungan group.

Previous Threats Reported.

The police said both Dungan and Henneman had complained several times before that Schaaf and his crowd had threatened their lives. The two men accused Schaaf's friends of stealing union records recently as the records were on their way to the state's attorney's office for examination.

Schaaf, McDonald, and all the others who were held denied any knowledge of the slaying of Mrs. Henneman. Schaaf charged that the union rivalry gave Henneman a motive for identifying him as the slayer. He told investigators he was home early and in bed when the murder occurred. His story was corroborated by his wife, who said he came home about 9 p. m. Friday night and went right to bed while she stayed up and read for a while.

SIX DIE IN FIRE, ONE IS MISSING AS HOTEL BURNS

Westfield, Mass., Jan. 6 [Monday].—(AP)—Six persons were known to be dead and one was missing after flames had destroyed the three story Van Deusen hotel here late last night.

Seven others were at Noble hospital, including Spencer Van Deusen, who had bought the hotel only three weeks ago. He was in a critical condition.

Mayor Raymond E. Cowing said he would order an investigation as the first act of his new administration today. The cause of the fire and the damage were not known.

Firemen rescued a number of the forty residents before the roof of the brick veneer structure and some of the walls collapsed, making immediate recovery of bodies almost impossible.

Alaskan Town Applies Serum Rushed by Air

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Serum rushed through below zero weather in another epic aerial dash by Joe Crosson, "mercy" air hero, was used today in Fairbanks' battle against scarlet fever.

Dr. F. B. Gillespie, deputy territorial health officer, began immediate administration of the antitoxin.

The little city of 2,500 remained in a virtual state of siege. Special police continued to patrol the streets. Schools, churches, theaters, the University of Alaska and all public meeting places were closed. Residents stuck close to their homes. A dozen persons were ill with the disease and 20 others were suspected of contagion.

"All in Day's Work."

"It was all in the day's work," said Crosson, the man who flew the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post from Point Barrow to Seattle after their fatal plane crash.

He and two other flyers made a fast 1,600 mile round trip flight to Juneau and back after the serum supply here was exhausted.

It was 42 degrees below zero when Crosson, Co-Pilot Murray Stewart, and Flight Mechanic J. Ames left Fairbanks and 45 below when they returned last night, nine hours and 42 minutes later. They stopped only 50 minutes in Juneau and averaged better than 175 miles an hour, elapsed time. They had to negotiate hundreds of miles of dangerous mountain country. At times they climbed to 18,000 feet to evade cloud banks.

Have Two Physicians.

Only Dr. Gillespie and one other physician were here to lead the onslaught on the dreaded disease. They have been working day and night.

Crosson is one of the intrepid group who established the airplane as successor to the dog team in errands of mercy in the far north.

It was Crosson who found the wrecked plane of Carl Ben Eielson, an American commercial ace who lost his life many years ago across the Bering sea in frozen Siberia. On another occasion he flew diphtheria serum from Juneau to Point Barrow, 1,300 miles, to help stem an epidemic in the northernmost American settlement.

Fear Kidnaped Baby Wheeled Into East River

BULLETIN.

New York, Jan. 6 (Monday).—(AP)—A 17 year old colored youth, whose name was not revealed, early today told police he had seen a woman he believed was Gussie Friedman wheeling a baby carriage toward the river about noon yesterday, the time the 10 months old baby of Jacob Horowitz disappeared. He was taken to Bellevue to see if he could identify the woman.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Searchlights from police launches played on the black tide off Gouverneur Slip and the prying beams of hand flashlights searched littered cellars and vacant flats on the east side tonight as more than 400 detectives and patrolmen searched for Jacob Horowitz, 10 months old.

The baby was trundled away in his perambulator shortly after noon, and though thousands of volunteers from the teeming tenements near the East river joined in the search, neither the baby nor the perambulator could be found.

Police officials, meanwhile, tried to get some coherent answers to their questions from Gussie Friedman, 45 years old, a giggling, toothless woman who, until she was released on parole three months ago, had spent twenty years in insane asylums. She answered all questions with crazy laughter.

Fear Baby Wheeled Into River.

It is the police theory that she pushed the Horowitz baby—carriage and all—into the icy river a few blocks from the spot where his mother had left him. The suspect was within forty feet of the river when four high school boys in the voluntary army of searchers stopped her as she was wheeling another carriage, with a 2 year old baby in it, toward the water's edge at Gouverneur Slip.

Gussie Friedman, it was obvious from the moment the boys caught her, was unaware of the portent of the questioning. As they caught up with her, one of the boys asked:

"Do you mind if we look at your baby?"

She released the handles of the perambulator and lifted her hands high. Her cackling laugh startled the youths.

"You can have the baby," she told them in a high pitched scream, and broke into laughter again.

Woman Questioned Futilely.

Detectives questioned her in English, Yiddish, and Hungarian, but she could not even tell them the date, the day of the week, what time of day it was—or even the year.

"Nine o'clock," she kept gibbering. "Nine o'clock."

"But you like babies?" she was asked.

A cunning smile puckered the toothless mouth and Gussie Friedman shook her head. She giggled. They put her in a police automobile and toured the neighborhood with her.

"You tell us, Gussie, where you left the little baby," they wheedled.

She shook her head, laughed, and twisted nervously in the car seat, but the question went unanswered.

Mrs. Diana Horowitz, mother of the missing child, and Max Horowitz, the father, a truckman employed by the department of sanitation, left their home shortly before noon to visit the sister of Horowitz.

The baby, in his carriage, was left in front of the door. When Mrs. Horowitz came out the perambulator was gone. Volunteers immediately took up the search.

SUSPECT ADMITS OFFICE QUARREL WITH PEACOCK

The investigation of the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, specialist in children's diseases, moved into a strange realm of human loves, duplicities, and heartbreaks last night after policemen of the Summerdale station took Arthur St. George Thompson, 839 Wilson avenue, a chiropodist, into custody as a suspect.

Thompson, who is 41 years old and a foot doctor without a practice, had been sought in a desultory sort of way since the body of Dr. Peacock, with a jagged wound in the head, was found in the physician's automobile Friday evening in the 6300 block of North Francisco avenue.

After questioning Thompson for several hours, during which he offered an alibi, police said he probably would be released today. They investigated his story of his whereabouts the night of the murder and found it substantially correct, they announced.

Thompson Admits Incident.

The seizure of Thompson was founded on statements made shortly before his death by Dr. Peacock himself. He related that in October "a man named Thompson" entered his office at 4753 Broadway and said accusingly: "Doctor, you performed an abortion for my wife."

"Angry at the absurd charge," the doctor continued, "I threw the man out of the office. I had never heard of him nor of his wife."

Thompson, the chiropodist, admitted freely at the detective bureau last night that he was the man who called on Dr. Peacock. He admitted further that he had been intensely jealous of the doctor because he believed the latter was paying attentions to his now estranged wife, Arlene Johnson Thompson.

"Certainly I disliked that doctor," he declared. "I thought that my wife left me on account of him. But I didn't have anything to do with his death—positively I did not. I have an alibi. I can prove I couldn't have committed the murder."

Insists He Was at Home.

Thompson's story was that he was in his room at 10:15 p. m. Thursday, when Dr. Peacock in his apartment at 5555 Sheridan road received an urgent telephone call to attend a sick child. The caller said that the child was in the home of G. Smale, 6438 North Whipple street. There is no Smale living at that address and Dr. Peacock was seen no more alive by relatives or friends after he left the vicinity of his apartment.

Disregarding for the moment the truth or falsity of the alibi, which the police were investigating carefully, it appeared that the hatred the unsuccessful chiropodist held for the rising young specialist was based on a misconception—a mistaken belief that Dr. Peacock was a man who had entertained Mrs. Thompson in a cabaret and had made love to her.

A Date That Fired Emotions.

For an understanding of this belief it is necessary to recall the afternoon of June 29, 1935—just a date, but one that seems to have been all-important to Thompson and his strange complex of love and jealousy.

On that afternoon Arlene Thompson, a plump redhead about 25 years old, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann Johnson, wife of Mrs. Thompson's brother, Carl, were in the Subway café, a gay North Wabash avenue honky-tonk whose license was revoked on July 3. In the place they met two men, blithe spenders who set out to show the girls a good time.

Mrs. Thompson, who left her husband in September and has been working since November in the home of D. K. McConnell at 2606 South Irving avenue, Minneapolis, told perhaps the clearest story of how this chance meeting became a factor in the Peacock murder mystery.

A Case of Mistaken Identity.

"One of those men was introduced to me as Doc Peacock," she said. "He was a very tall man, with a head of wavy hair and the nicest manners you could imagine. He danced with me. The other man danced with Ann. It was about dusk when we went home.

"Outside our home my husband met us. He knew we had been drinking. He stormed about it, very angrily. He talked about men who would take married women out to parties. He demanded that I tell him who we were with and I finally told him my friend was named Doc Peacock.

"That was the only time I met the man. He was not, I am positive, the man who was killed. I have looked at pictures of the Dr. Peacock who was killed. He did not in any way resemble the Doc Peacock of the Subway café. My husband never mentioned him later and I am sure he never saw the man I was with in the café."

Tells of Clash in Office.

Thompson, perhaps because Dr. Silber C. Peacock is the only physician named Peacock in the classified telephone directory, settled on him as the man who had destroyed the happiness of his married life.

Admittedly, he considered Dr. Peacock and Doc Peacock the same person, and the man who had, in his phrase, "made love to my wife." Harried by his jealousy, he visited the physician's office. It was his intention, he assured the police last night, only to have it out "as man to man" with the doctor.

"I accused him only of having been out with my wife," the foot doctor explained. "That seemed to make Dr. Peacock angry. He jumped up and yelled: 'Get out of here right now. I never heard of you or your wife, either.' When I mentioned the Subway café, he said he had never been in it or heard of it either."

Story Conflicts With Doctor's.

This statement about the conversation was in conflict with stories told by Dr. Peacock to friends whose testimony is unimpeachable. The Rev. Kenneth A. Hurst, a Lutheran minister, recalled that as late as New Year's day Dr. Peacock asserted that the man Thompson who called at his office had cried out: "You performed an abortion for my wife." And, Dr. Peacock added, he considered his visitor a crank.

It was, indeed, a troubled life that Thompson the foot doctor lived. He said that in the summer his practice was reduced to almost nothing and his earnings were only a few dollars a week. His wife had to go to work in a laundry to help support them. He and his wife loved each other—letters in his apartment, written by her since the separation, prove the wife's deep affection for him—and his lack of money to give her the fine things and the gay times she craved rankled.

Sister-in-Law in Custody.

The police wondered how far his brooding over the separation might have driven him. His wife first went back to her old home in Cumberland, Wis., after leaving him. It was there she wrote him of her undying love and of her intention to go to work in Minneapolis. The note showed a strange reluctance to rejoin him. In it Mrs. Thompson mentioned Ann, the sister-in-law who shared the Subway episode with her.

The police seized Ann Johnson last evening when she called at the home of the chiropodist. She was questioned and later released.

Her reason for going to Thompson's house, she said, was mere curiosity. She had read about Thompson in the papers, she asserted, and had gone over from her home at 4108 Kenmore avenue to learn how he was getting along. At the time Thompson was in the hands of the police.

She Defends Thompson.

"There is positively nothing to this story about me and Arlene ever meeting Dr. Peacock in a café," she said. "We never did. And Arthur Thompson never had anything to do with killing him. He was always a poor, weak thing. He cried over a Christmas card that Arlene sent him. But he never had enough pep to hurt a fly."

Thompson, who is about 5 feet 8 inches tall and slim, with graying hair and a lackadaisical air, winced at this description when it was relayed to him. Then, as if dismissing Ann's opinion, he went on talking about his alibi. He averred that he had been at work in the Medinah club all day Thursday, that he went to his home by bus, arriving at 9:30 p. m. and was asked by the building manager to attend the feet of a patient in the neighborhood. He spent the night in his room, he insisted. If this were true, of course, his alibi is established.

Not the Slayer, Sullivan Says.

At the Medinah club it was said Thompson was an employé of Dr. Harry Klink, who has established an office on the second floor there, and that it was possible he worked there during the day Thursday, although the hotel had no way of verifying it.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, who assisted Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney in the questioning of the foot doctor, declared at midnight that he was satisfied the man was not the slayer of Dr. Peacock. He expressed his puzzlement, however, over the peculiar intricacies of the plot as it involved the Thompsons and the mysterious Doc of the café.

Acquaintances of Thompson, previous to his arrest, had told police of the queer slant he had on many things. One of these informants was Harmon Edward Lushbaugh, 109 North Dearborn street, an attorney.

"He was my friend," said the attorney. "I knew he had been down on his luck recently and I took him down to the Medinah when he was applying for a job. I understood he didn't get it, but if he did I am glad.

Knew of Office Dispute.

"Thompson is a man of intense religious convictions. That might have made him a bore to his wife, who was younger and liked a gay life. He never told me about his trip to Dr. Peacock's office, but I heard about that from a mutual friend of ours."

The police have believed, since the discovery that Dr. Peacock was murdered, that the killer was actuated by a powerful desire for vengeance and that he figured out the crime long in advance and most carefully.

One point to prove this was the address to which the doctor was called. It was in a neighborhood in which he had several patients and with which he was consequently familiar. The building at 6438 North Whipple street is the only one between Devon avenue and Arthur avenue. Thus the doctor would be likely to go there without question, while the loneliness of the street made it almost an ideal spot for the commission of the crime.

The Mystery of the Summons.

Another strange coincidence is involved in the use of the name Smale in the summons which sent Dr. Peacock to his death. There is a G. W. Smale listed in the telephone book at 6438 South Washtenaw avenue. The digits in the address are the same, but the Whipple street and the Washtenaw avenue buildings are more than 16 miles apart.

Only a strange quirk of a mind set with deadly desperation on the decision to kill the doctor would have led to such subtle planning, that reached down to the utmost details. The police believe that only some person with a persecution complex, an overweening sense of inferiority, could carry out such a plot. Further, they have held that the killer's real or fancied wrongs must have been great to induce him to slay in this manner.

Dr. Peacock had been beaten brutally about the head, possibly with a pistol butt, before a bullet was fired into the right side of his forehead at close range. Whether he was slain in his car or outside it is uncertain. The body was discovered in the rear seat, covered with his overcoat.

Boy Discovers Body.

The car stood all through Friday alongside the curb at 6358 North Francisco avenue, with its lights ablaze. A boy who was sent to turn off the lights discovered the body early Friday evening. Since then the police have been striving with all their resources to capture the slayer.

Mrs. Peacock, widow of the doctor, and her friends have maintained from the start that robbery was the motive. They have asserted that nothing will be found to discredit the reputation, private or professional, of the slain doctor. The police investigation has upheld his reputation, but the veteran detectives scorn the robbery theory. Only revenge, they maintain, would furnish a logical motive for such a brutal and coolly planned crime.

Funeral services for Dr. Peacock are to be held from the undertaking rooms at 1359 Devon avenue at 3 p. m. today. The body of Dr. Peacock will be taken to Bowen, Ill., former home of his wife, for burial.

DRAKE TRIAL RESUMES TODAY; U. S. WILL PUT SIX EXPERTS ON STAND

After a holiday recess of sixteen days jurors, defendants, and some witnesses will return today to the courtroom of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan for the resumption of the Drake estate mail fraud case in which there are 41 defendants.

Austin Hall, assistant United States attorney, informed the court before the recess that he had finished the parade to the witness stand of "donors," who expected profits from the legendary estate of the famed Sir Francis Drake, and yesterday said he expected to conclude the government's case this week with six or eight expert witnesses.

Charles Challen, London barrister, will testify as an expert on British law. Detective Inspector Arthur Bishop of Scotland Yard, will tell of the activities and deportation of Oscar M. Hartzell, chief defendant in this trial, who lived for ten years in London, but now is serving a sentence in Leavenworth in a similar case.

To their testimony will be added that of Prof. Arthur Lyon Cross of the University of Michigan, who studied Drake family history.

PRELATE TRACES TREND TO UNITY IN CHRISTENDOM

Archbishop of York Talks Here on Progress.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Stepping from the rôle of archbishop of York for the occasion into that of international and interdenominational chairman of a Christian unity movement, the Most Rev. William Temple, visiting English primate, made a report of progress toward church unity last night before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

The movement of which the prelate spoke was that which first took definite form in 1927 at Lausanne, Switzerland, when practically every Christian world fair participated, except those in communion with the Catholic sea of Rome.

The archbishop told the audience which filled Orchestra hall that he spoke as successor of the Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, late Episcopal bishop of western New York, first chairman of the Lausanne committee on faith and order.

Cites Current Progress.

Archbishop Temple pointed to progress toward unity made under the international committee. Its work will head up in 1937 when, in Oxford, England, leaders of all faiths again are to meet.

"The main problem of this era is to fashion a unity out of the various peoples of the world without destroying their individualities," said the British prelate. "But a divided church cannot minister to a united world."

He told how Christendom divided. Christ, he said, did not found a new church, but endeavored to consecrate to an enlarged task an old church, built on the revelations to Israel. He said the separation of Israel from Christianity—a great loss, he declared to each—was the first division.

The next division was east from west—Rome from Constantinople—resulting in Catholic and Greek Orthodox churches, the prelate continued, and the next was north from south, the Protestant reformation, which severed some of the Teutonic peoples with their spirit of local independence from the strong, centralized Roman Catholic church. This independence, he commented, has resulted in hundreds of subsequent divisions now characteristic of Protestantism.

Sees Change of Trend.

The archbishop saw evidence of a Protestant drift toward reunion in eleven major church mergers in 30 years in America alone and in the coming reaffiliation of American Methodism. He cited also the reunion of Scottish Presbyterian churches and the formation of the United Church of Canada.

Archbishop Temple spoke also as a member of the Universal Council of Life and Work, which he said approaches the problems of church unity on the purely functional basis. It is to meet next year in Edinburgh, Scotland. This council was founded by Archbishop Nathan Soederblom, late primate of the Swedish Lutheran church.

FORMER ACTOR IS HELD FOR EXTORTION NOTES SENT TO CECIL DE MILLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Andrew Schwarzmann, 31 years old, a former movie actor, went to jail today on charges of suspicion of extortion. Police said they had traced to him a series of threatening letters to Cecil B. De Mille, screen producer.

Schwarzmann's arrest followed numerous letters and telegrams received by De Mille and his daughter Katherine over a period of eighteen months.

Police said Schwarzmann, who came here from Chicago in 1932, was questioned about a year ago about other letters sent to movie actors and producers.

Plan Bermuda-New York Air Service for August

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Regular airplane passenger and mail service between Hamilton and New York will be established next August, G. E. Woods Humphrey, managing director of Imperial Airways, said today. Imperial Airways [British] and Pan-American Airways will coöperate in the service, he said, each operating one two-way flight a week.

MEXICANS SLAY SOLDIER; HUNT SCHOOL AGENTS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—A group of armed men shot into five auto buses near Dolores Hidalgo, state of Guanajuato, killing one soldier and wounding two girls today. The raiders forced passengers into a corral for identification, saying they were looking for federal represenatives who were believed en route to campaign in favor of socialistic education. The raiders took money and jewels from the passengers but returned everything, saying they were not robbers.

CARDINAL URGES PREPAREDNESS TO SAVE CHURCH

Mundelein Cites Nazi Case to 3,000 Laymen.

A warning to prepare against the overthrow of church by state was sounded last night by Cardinal Mundelein in his annual message to 3,000 members of the Holy Name society of the Chicago archdiocese at the Holy Name cathedral.

The society is one of the most powerful men's sodalities of the Catholic church and its Chicago branches are noted for their work among underprivileged boys and youth organizations.

Citing the oppression of the church in Germany, the cardinal declared: "This could not have happened if Catholic men had been devoted to their religious leaders."

Calls for "Preparedness."

"Signs and portents are like the prophets of old," the cardinal said. "We are at peace, but there is the old adage, 'In peace, let us prepare.' The Holy Name society is a layman's militia. It is not political, but it is a strong united reserve organization for the cause of Christ.

"Let us look at Europe. One country will do. At no period in the history of Germany has the church fared so badly as today. The church has been slowly strangled. Religious leaders are in jail. We are being fed propaganda that they are guilty of criminal violations.

"To my personal knowledge some of those so accused have merely been trying to pay legitimate debts in this country."

Utilitarianism Attacked.

An attack upon the trend of other denominations "toward the philosophy of utilitarianism" was made by the Rev. Edward R. Moore, head of the social action division of the Catholic Charities of New York.

Speaking under the patronage of Cardinal Mundelein the Rev. Father Moore assailed the campaigns for birth control, and euthanasia [mercy deaths] as evidence of the new "objective codes."

"Another generation or two will find no belief at all in a personal God outside of the Catholic church," the speaker said. "Sin in its accepted meaning of violation of the law of God has come to be almost an exclusively Catholic word."

The Rev. Father Moore referred to the recent appeal of thirteen New York clergymen to the Catholic church to let down its barriers against birth control as evidence of the "dilution" of concepts of divinity and moral law in other faiths. Communism and Fascism are real dangers to this country as a result of such utilitarianism, he said.

BARE SCHEME FOR MASS EXODUS OF JEWS IN GERMANY

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Three British Jewish leaders—Sir Herbert Samuel, former high commissioner to Palestine; Viscount Bearsted, head of the Shell Oil interests, and Simon Marks, chain store magnate—will sail for New York Jan. 15. They will consult with American Jewish leaders on a scheme for the wholesale deportation of Jews from Germany to Palestine. The number involved would be no less than 100,000 and might possibly reach 250,000.

The persecution of Jews by the Nazis is being used as a lever to compel the financially powerful Jews of the world outside Germany to consent to a mass exodus.

German consent to the movement would be dependent upon the following conditions: The Jews must obtain the approval of Great Britain to move the German-Jews en masse to Palestine; emigrant Jews are to be permitted to move their capital only under restrictions now applied to refugees; British and American Jews are to furnish a fund to finance the German exports involved in the liquidation of the Jewish capital to be removed.

The scheme is designed to benefit Germany economically and financially. Jewish refugees now are permitted to remove their capital only in the form of German goods to the amount of twice the sum involved after a deduction of a 25 per cent levy upon the total. Thus a mass emigration would produce a handsome volume of German exports.

NAZIS RAISE RAIL FREIGHT CHARGES TO PAY FOR ARMS

Fear Cost of Living Will Increase.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—A 5 per cent increase will be made in freight rates on German railroads to help pay for German rearmament, according to a statement of Baron Paul von Eltz-Ruebenach, the trafic minister, today.

Business circles are seriously worried because they fear the increase will lead to a further rise in prices despite the fact that the minister declared freight rates for food would not be raised.

Pay for Foreign Loans.

He explained that Germany's national railways are compelled to pay 9 per cent of their gross income to the German government as a special levy, including transport tax and interest on the Dawes and Young loans and the reparations loan, and that it could manage without increasing the rates if these payments were reduced.

But "the reich cannot relinquish the right to these payments at a time when it is fulfilling its big duty of restoring Germany's full military power," he said.

Aim at Drastic Economy.

The railway company's deficit of $65,000,000 is to be balanced with the help of increased freight rates and drastic measures of economy in administration and through the abolition of certain preferential freight tarifs.

The deficit is due to a certain extent to the fact that the railways are compelled to transport members of the "strength through joy movement" on holidays at far below cost. This movement forms a part of the Labor Front's nation-wide organization of more than 20,000,000 workers which succeeded the former labor unions.

Son, 15, Shows Policeman's Pistol and Shoots Friend

Policeman Mortimer Foley of the Cragin police station returned to his home from work yesterday and placed his revolver and holster on a fireplace mantel in the living room. A few minutes later his son, Peter, 15 years old, demonstrating the weapon to his friend, Roger Driscoll, 16 years old, of 5350 Bloomingdale avenue, who had come to the Foley home to accompany Peter to a movie, accidentally shot and wounded young Driscoll in the right side. The boy was taken to St. Anne's hospital, where his condition was reported as serious. The boys are classmates at Austin High school.

Surveys TWA Lines

John D. Hertz, Chicago capitalist and transportation wizard, arrived last night at the Chicago airport, completing a survey of the Transcontinental and Western Airlines in which Lehman Brothers, New York banking investment house, recently bought a controling interest. Mr. Hertz became a partner in the banking firm a year ago, when he returned to business after his retirement in 1928.

With Mr. Hertz was his wife. They left Los Angeles at 7 a. m. [Chicago time] and arrived at the municipal airport at midnight. They plan to continue on to New York today.

CHINESE PARADE AGAINST JAPAN ON SOUTH SIDE

A demonstration against Japanese policies was staged yesterday afternoon by 1,000 persons in Chicago's Chinatown, in the neighborhood of 22d street and Wentworth avenue, under the sponsorship of the Chinese Students' Association of North America, and Chinese trade and fraternal organizations. Placards carried by the demonstrators termed Japan "Public Enemy No. 1" and accused the Japanese of aggression in North China. Speakers included Gen. Chen-Wu Fang, Ju-Chi Ching, professor of international relations in Yenching university; Miss Hsue-Li Tso, a graduate student of the University of Chicago, and Tom Chan, president of the Native Born Chines association.

CRASH INJURIES PUT 8 IN HOSPITAL AFTER COLLISION

Two Children Are Among the Victims.

Eight persons, including two children, were injured early yesterday when automobiles in which they were riding collided at East 69th street and Vincennes avenue. They were taken to St. Bernard's hospital. Physicians said all will recover.

Six of the injured were riding in a car driven by Jacob Kirsch, 38 years old, a machinist, 1965 Summerdale avenue, whose left arm was fractured in the crash. With him were Mrs. Ellen Kelly, 25 years old, 1225 East 65th street, who incurred a broken collar bone; her husband, Joseph, 29 years old, who was badly cut and bruised; and their two children, Theresa, 9 months old, who was bruised, and Marjorie 5 years old, who incurred a broken right wrist. Miss Irene Sparowski, 24 years old, 2131 Hudson avenue, also a passenger, was cut and bruised.

Two Hurt in Other Car.

Michael Dorman, 19 years old, 8826 Princeton avenue, driver of the other car, was uninjured, but passengers in his car, Miss Helen Pratt, 17 years old, 7922 Parnell avenue, and Benjamin Albano, 21 years old, 8845 Princeton avenue, were bruised and cut and suffered shock.

Kirsch was driving east in East 69th street and Dorman's car was going south in Vincennes avenue, witnesses said. The police were unable to fix the blame for the accident.

Joseph Sakawicz, 62 years old, 2032 Potomoc avenue, was fatally injured last night when he stepped from the curb into the path of an automobile at the corner of Division street and North Damen avenue. He died at St. Mary's hospital. Peter Gorski, 27 years old, 838 Northt Ashland avenue, driver of the car, was held by North avenue police pending the inquest to be held today at the undertaking establishment at 1123 Noble street.

Another Dies of Injuries.

Frank Cross, 83 years old, 2235 Calumet avenue, died last night in St. Luke's hospital of a skull fracture incurred on Dec. 30 when he was struck by an auto at Cermak road and Indiana avenue.

The driver of the car, T. A. Carey, 686 Stateline avenue, Calumet City, told police that Cross walked into the path of his car from behind a parked automobile. Witnesses verified his story and he was not held.

James O'Brien, 27 years old, 2754 West Madison street, was seriously injured early yesterday when he drove an automobile into an electric light post near the west approach to the bridge over the Calumet river at East 92d street and Mackinaw avenue.

Paroled Convict; Car Stolen.

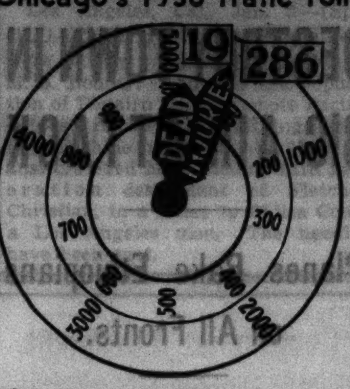
O'Brien was taken to the Bridewell hospital when police found that the license plates on the car had been issued for another automobile and concluded that the machine had been stolen. Sergt. James Allen of the South Chicago police said O'Brien is a convict paroled from Joliet prison.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 23 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 19 were killed and 286 injured in accidents occuring within the city limits of Chicago.

The Chicago Safety council issued a statement yesterday warning motorists to drive more cautiously because children will be ending their holiday vacations today.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Colored Couple Perish in Blaze in Basement

Grace Scales, 26 years old, 4441 Federal street, and Joseph Smith, 34 years old, 4449 South Dearborn street, both colored, died early today of suffocation when fire broke out in a building at 4428 South Dearborn street. After extinguishing the blaze firemen found the bodies in the basement.

WIDOW HALTS QUESTIONING IN PRIGNANO CASE

Mrs. Jean Prignano, widow of State Representative Albert J. Prignano, pleaded illness yesterday and halted the efforts of Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty and Police Capt. John Egan to learn further details of the murder of her husband on Dec. 29 before the family home at 722 Bunker street.

The murder investigation appeared to be at a standstill. Through the maze of political battles and past history of the "Bloody Twentieth" ward the investigators sought in vain some worthwhile clew.

Angelo Lazzia, alias Santo Verrusso, remained in the county jail last night. He was caught outside his home at 4764 Cornelia avenue the day after the slaying when police sought to question him regarding his acquaintance with Sam Lapicola, named as owner of the automobile in which the assassins rode.

Two Murphysboro Boys Drown; River Ice Breaks

Murphysboro, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Kenneth Zimmerman, 14, and William Wohlwend, 9, drowned today when the ice broke with them on the Big Muddy river. The bodied were recovered.

BRITAIN TO RUSH TROOPS AND GUNS TO EAST AFRICA

Ocean Liners Converted Into Army Transports.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—A sudden decision to strengthen Great Britain's military forces in East Africa was disclosed in London tonight.

The admiralty announced that the Scythia, 18,000 ton trans-Atlantic liner, has been taken off her New York run and converted into an army transport to convey guns, tanks and soldiers to Alexandria, Egypt. The vessel will be under orders of the war office after Wednesday.

Two other liners, the California and the Van Dyck, are to be used in transporting troops to Egypt.

To Retain Expert Gunners.

The requisitioning of the liners indicates the concern of the British over the situation shaping in Egypt and on the Mediterranean, where big units of the British fleet are engaged in chessboard maneuvers in and out of ports from Gibraltar to Greece.

The admiralty also disclosed that fifty expert gunners will be retained on the active list beyond the maximum age limit. Two thousand men will be recruited for the navy this year as a part of the 12,000 seamen to be added to the navy personnel during the next six years.

Fresh instructions from London to Sir Miles Lampson, British high commissioner in Egypt, and further developments in the adjustment of Britain's relations with Egypt are expected in Cairo this week.

Demand Greater Independence.

The pressure for adjustment arises out of the growing demands of the united front of all Egyptian parties that the British give effect to the draft of a treaty in 1930 granting a larger measure of independence.

Lampson has been instructed to engage in further conversations with the Egyptian government. The Egyptians are demanding a showdown from the British on the subject of the treaty. More radical partisans of independence accuse the British of sparring to gain time.

Lampson is expected to tell the Egyptians that Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, is sympathetic toward their demands for resuming negotiations for a new treaty on the basis of the Labor government's 1930 treaty, which was upset.

Bombing Angers Egyptians.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Reports of the bombing of the Egyptian Red Cross unit at Daggah Bur, in southern Ethiopia, brought an outburst of anti-Italian feeling in Egypt, dispatches from Cairo said today. Anti-Italian demonstrations were reported in Fayum province.

It was understood the Egyptian government intends to protest to Rome. The Coptic patriarch and Prince Omar Tousson, who jointly organized the Red Cross unit, telegraphed a protest to the league.

Reports from Rome indicated an Italian column was moving across the Danakil desert toward Dessye, where Emperor Haile Selassie has established field headquarters. The desert column, which left Assab to march toward Dessye, received little publicity from the Italians and its exact location was unknown.

French Fleet to Africa.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The French Atlantic fleet will anchor at Casa Blanca, 200 miles from Gibraltar, late this month and will be at that port about the time the league of nations is expected to deliberate an oil embargo against Italy, an authoritative source said tonight. Such an embargo, Italy has said, would be a "warlike act."

A secret battle plan will be made by the French general staf at Brest on the eve of the fleet's departure for Morocco, it was stated. The ships will leave Brest about Jan. 15 for maneuvers.

The meeting of the general staf will have as its presiding officer Vice Admiral Louis Dubois. Attending will be all the chiefs of services, it was said, and the Brest base will be put on a wartime schedule.

Naval squadrons are expected to cruise off the northwest coast of Africa for forty-five days.

Russia Praises Roosevelt.

MOSCOW, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Warm approval of President Roosevelt's criticism of nations resorting to the "law of the sword" was expressed today by the soviet government organ Izvestia.

The whole Russian press played up the American President's speech to congress, interpreting it as an attack on Italy and Japan and, in its reference to autocracy, on Germany.

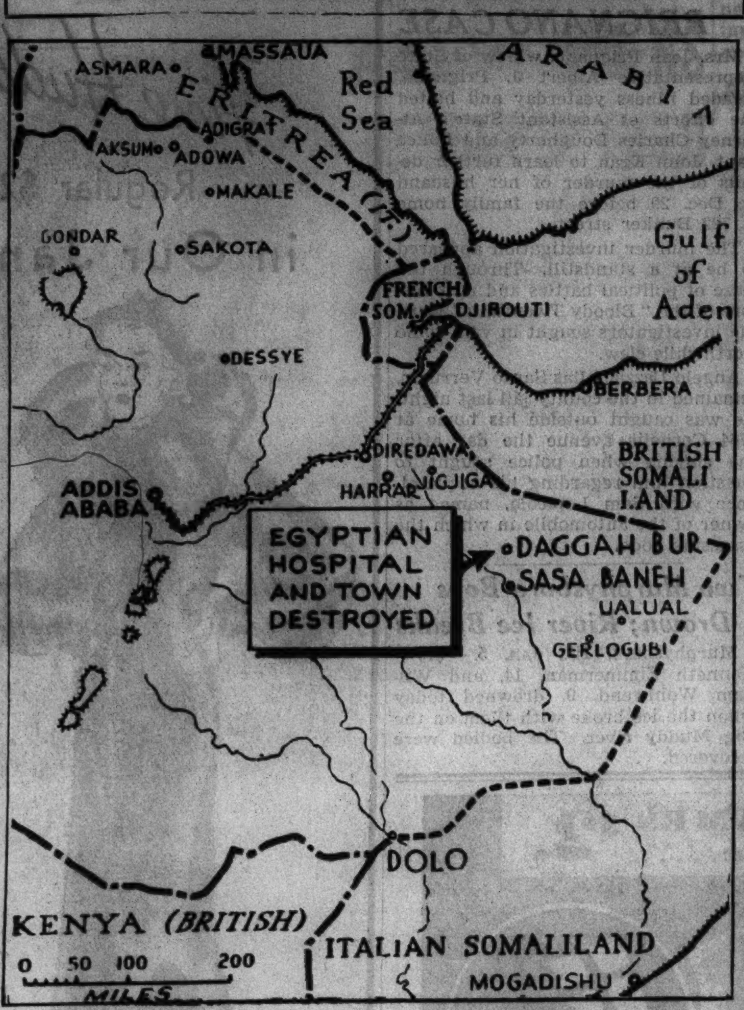
Soviet official utterances in recent months persistently have pointed to what bolsheviks declare is the danger of a new world war as the result of the policies of these nations.

The American neutrality bill also met soviet approval. Izvestia said its effect would be to widen the possibilities for the use of sanctions, thus materially strengthening the stand of the league of nations.

Try Baron, Freed by Peers, as Reckless Driver Today

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Lord De Clifford, 28 year old baron in the oldest peerage of the realm, will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of reckless driving following his acquittal of a manslaughter charge Dec. 12 by the house of lords.

ITALIAN PLANES DESTROY TOWN



Map shows Daggah Bur, town in southern Ethiopia, which was destroyed by a deluge of Italian aerial bombs. An Egyptian Red Cross unit was wiped out in the same attack. The number of casualties is unknown. The Italians have launched the greatest air attack since the war began on both the northern and southern fronts in an effort to stop the forward movement of Ethiopian armies. A column of Italian troops was reported marching across the Danakil desert toward Dessye, Emperor Haile Selassie's military headquarters.

ITALIAN BOMBS DESTROY TOWN IN BIG AIR ATTACK

Planes Rake Ethiopians on All Fronts.

Alaji was bombed. Four were killed and many wounded."

A second communique asserted:

"Yesterday six planes bombed the small town of Amba Bircouta in Walkait province. The damage was slight and there were no victims."

[An American field hospital was set up some time ago at Daggah Bur by Dr. Robert W. Hockman, American medical missionary of Wheaton, Ill. Dr. Hockman subsequently was killed by the accidental explosion of a bomb, and both the state department at Washington and the American Red Cross Saturday disclaimed knowledge of the existence of any such unit. Daggah Bur is 25 miles northwest of Sasa Baneh and about 125 miles southeast of Harrar.]

[Dispatches from Addis Ababa Saturday stated that Dr. T. A. Lambie, American head of the Ethiopian Red Cross, had announced a message reporting the bombing of an American field hospital at Daggah Bur. Sunday's communique mentioned only the Egyptian hospital unit, however, and a Havas French news agency dispatch from the Ethiopian capital said the Red Cross hospital bombed was Egyptian, not American.]

Pope Ignores "Peace Day."

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Dr. S. M. Berry, moderator of the Federal Council of Evangelical Free Churches, declared today Pope Pius had refused to coöperate in today's "peace day" observances, in which European protestant churches participated.

Dr. Berry made his statement during one of the services in London. The observances were the result of an appeal by the archbishop of Canterbury.

The Catholic church not only was invited to coöperate, Dr. Berry declared, "but a very clear indication was given to his holiness, the pope, that if he should take the lead we should all be glad to be ranged under his banner for that particular occasion.

"The answer came back quite clearly that under the circumstances, which were described, and into which I do not need to enter, the pope did not see his way to do it. He said he already had expressed his opinion sufficiently clearly."

PRESIDENT AND COL. ROOSEVELT TO HONOR "T. R."

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and his Republican cousin, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, appeared ready tonight to "bury the hatchet," temporarily at least, in memory of the colonel's father.

The two leaders of the politically divided family, who have assailed each other from opposing platforms, accepted invitations to speak from the same platform here Jan. 19.

The occasion will be the dedication of a $3,500,000 historical museum erected by the state as a memorial to former President Theodore Roosevelt.

Those in charge of the arrangements expressed confidence both would keep the engagement. The ceremonies will be in the imposing auditorium of the new Roman structure facing on Central park.

ITALY REPORTS 390 SOLDIERS KILLED IN WAR WITH ETHIOPIA

ROME, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The latest official casualty list of Italy's losses in the East African campaign against Ethiopia showed today 390 members of Italian forces were killed, with 14 missing in battles, up to Dec. 31, 1935.

Deaths of workmen in Italian colonies during 1935 totaled 259. Of the 61,000 workmen employed, mostly in Eritrea, 11,338 have been returned home, the report said. During December six officers and 68 other men were reported to have died from disease and accidents, with 33 workmen losing their lives from various causes.

32 VOCATIONAL CLASSES OPEN IN CITY TONIGHT

Vocational guidance classes will be opened tonight in 32 centers throughout the city, according to an announcement yesterday by William J. Campbell, state director of the National Youth administration. Information on means of getting jobs will be given in the classes to unemployed youths between the ages of 16 and 25 years.

Part time work will be given immediately to 171 young men and women as assistants to the teachers conducting the job finding classes. The young people, who come from large families on relief, will be paid $19 a month to act as mesengers, typists and assistants in the administration of the occupational guidance program.

Today, members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and officials of the federal Works Progress administration are to meet again on the relief crisis that threatens to close all Illinois relief stations on Jan. 15. At the meeting exact figures on how many persons are working on WPA projects are to be given to show what can be expected of WPA.

PREDICT QUICK PASSAGE OF U. S. NEUTRALITY BILL

Little Conflict Between Two Plans Offered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The Nye-Clark neutrality bill, representing the viewpoint of the senate isolationists, is similar to the administration's own permanent neutrality measure introduced in the senate last Friday by Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, and no prolonged controversy is expected to result from the differences.

The Nye-Clark bill, made public today and to be introduced tomorrow, differs from the administration bill in that it provides for a mandatory embargo on the shipment of arms, ammunitions, and implements of war to any belligerent immediately upon the outbreak of war, and not merely "during the progress of war" as provided in the administration bill.

Exports Discretional.

Like the administration's bill, the Nye-Clark measure leaves the export of raw materials used in the prosecution of war largely discretional with the President. Whenever the President should find that the increase in exportations of any war materials or commodities would endanger the maintenance of peace between the United States and foreign countries, or jeopardize the neutrality of the United States, he would be required to make such a proclamation. Thereafter it would be unlawful to export more than the average annual exports for the five year period immediately preceding the outbreak of war.

The administration bill prohibits the export of raw materials in excess of the "normal amount," but the base period to be used in computing normal quotas is left to the determination of the President.

Another Point of Difference.

The Nye-Clark measure also differs from the administration bill in that it expressly denies any obligation as to the delivery of the prescribed quotas of raw materials to foreign countries at war. It also instructs the President to ask congress to apply further restrictions in case the export of quotas jeopardizes neutrality. This is believed by the isolationists to be necessary, because, in a situation like the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, Italy would benefit by the export of her normal quota of oil, while Ethiopia is not a substantial importer of oil.

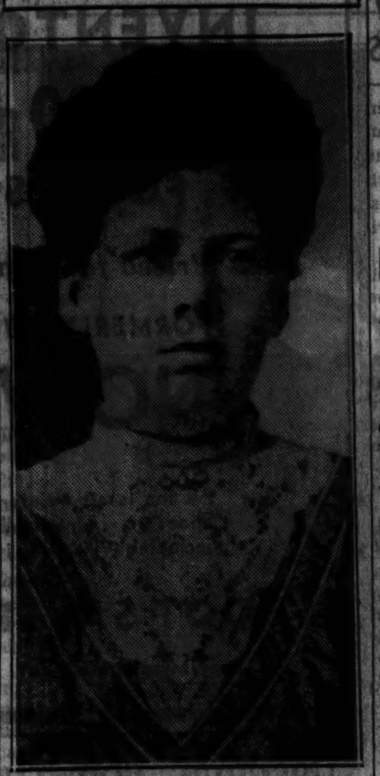
The administration leaders say their bill is even stronger than the isolationist measure with respect to the export of raw materials. It provides for normal quota restrictions upon exports, but permits the President to determine the base period. They say that the use of the five year period immediately preceding the outbreak of war might benefit a belligerent who had been preparing for war and importing excessive quantities of one or more commodities before the outbreak of war.

Foresee Only Slight Hitch.

With the release of the Nye-Clark bill, senate leaders predicted that there would be no serious controversy over the question of neutrality legislation to supplant the existing temporary measure which expires on Feb. 29. The greatest victory won by the isolationists is the provision in the administration bill, similar to their own, that any embargo or restriction placed upon exports shall apply equally to all belligerents. This, they contend, will prohibit the administration from naming the aggressor or coöperating with the league of nations in the application of economic sanctions.

"It should be noted," the authors of the bill declare, "that if the chief executive is given power to choose sides in a foreign war in regard to our trade, the neutrality of the nation is gone. It simply no longer exists. This nation, by refusing the freedom of its trade to one belligerent, but not to another, no longer is neutral in spirit or fact. The protecting hand of this government sooner or later will automatically go out to guard shipments of munitions and war supplies. The next step inevitably is war."

Identity Unknown



Photograph found in the home of Miss Dora Svacina, who died here yesterday leaving a bank book showing a balance of $11,000. Police are seeking to identify the picture either as that of Miss Svacina or a relative, in order that relatives of the dead woman may be found.

SERVANT'S LIFE SAVINGS OF $11,000 BARED BY DEATH

When Miss Dora Svacina, 65 years old, died yesterday in the County hospital, attendants at the hospital discovered in her clothing $70 and a First National bank deposit book showing a balance of $11,000. Miss Svacina was taken ill Saturday night in a rooming house at 1312 South Wabash avenue, where she lived when not working as a domestic. She lapsed into a coma and was taken to the hospital, where she died five hours later without regaining consciousness.

Investigation disclosed Miss Svacina had been employed from time to time as a maid in several fashionable homes. Her bank book showed monthly deposits of $50 for nearly twenty years. Recently employés of the rooming house said Miss Svacina had been planning to return to her native Czechoslovakia. She was unemployed.

STEP-UP OF ATOM MACHINE WIDENS RESEARCH FIELD

New Substances Found; New Ray Produced.

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Opening of "new fields for research" by a 10 to 20 per cent step-up of an atom splitting machine to 6,000,000 or more volts was disclosed today.

The machine, the cyclotron, has been the means of much research into the structure of matter at the University of California. It was designed originally by Dr. E. O. Lawrence, and the enlargements and improvements have been designed by Dr. Donald Cooksey, visiting researcher from Yale university.

Produce New Elements.

"It has been possible to transmute a score of elements into other substances," said a university announcement regarding the rebuilt machine.

"Some of them were well known elements, but others were mysterious substances not occurring on earth naturally. These latter substances are known as artificially radioactive elements. They give off emanations, just as radium does, but last only a few minutes, hours, or days, whereas radium remains active for thousands of years.

Opens New Field.

"From results obtained with the present cyclotron set-up, it is indicated the improvements will open up a number of new fields for research. It will be possible to produce artificially radioactive substances in quantities large enough for testing in connection with medical and biological problems for which radium now is the only available solution. Also it will produce experimental intensities of a new, very powerful ray, known as the neutron ray, which is more penetrating and more highly endowed with energy than the X-ray."

LINDYS' MOVES CLOSELY VEILED BY POLICE GUARD

Family Spends First Day in Welsh Refuge.

LLANDAFF, Wales, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Behind a screen of elaborate police protection, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their sturdy 3 year old second son, Jon, quietly enjoyed the first Sunday in the Welsh refuge today.

Three detectives were on the grounds of the home of J. Llewellyn Morgan, kinsman by marriage of Mrs. Lindbergh. There were two uniformed officers on bicycles, and a police car patroled the street outside the house. The reason for these precautions was not stated.

Heavy rain kept the Lindberghs inside the house. A few friends of the family called, and were admitted by police.

The Lindberghs arrived at the Morgan home last night, coming from Liverpool, where they disembarked from a trans-Atlantic boat Tuesday.

Disclose Secret Moves.

Their intricate movements of Saturday were disclosed authoritatively today. At 4 p. m. the automobile of Aubrey Niel Morgan, husband of Mrs. Lindbergh's late sister, Elisabeth, drew up near the department store of David Morgan's, Ltd., on the principal downtown street of Cardiff, Wales.

The Lindberghs left the car, driven by Aubrey Morgan, and walked through the establishment to a private room, where they had a cup of tea. Morgan then telephoned to the Angel hotel, opposite ancient Cardiff castle, and engaged a suite in another name.

At 4:30 p. m. the Lindberghs moved from the store to the hotel, walking through the streets. They had Welsh high tea in their suite, where a Welsh nursemaid awaited Jon. The manager of the hotel arranged for a hired automobile, and after two and one-half hours the Lindberghs left the hotel by a back exit and entered a nearby garage.

Send Decoy Ahead.

Two detectives were waiting in the garage, but the manager of the garage and the chauffeur did not know who was using the car. First the car left the garage without the Lindberghs, as a decoy. Morgan followed in his car, and the two machines drove past the Morgan home in Llandaff.

Morgan then returned to Cardiff, leaving the hired car at the end of a street leading to the Morgan home. Picking up the Lindberghs, he returned to Llandaff, where the Lindberghs changed to the hired car.

The blinds were lowered, the inside lights switched on, and the car made two false moves toward the house. Finally it appeared from a side street and vanished into the grounds of the Morgan home.

Seek Spanish Haven?

MADRID, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Reports the Charles A. Lindberghs might seek a Spanish haven were revived today by purported negotiations on their behalf for the purchase of a small picturesque estate bordering on Spain's famous "Costa Brava" on the Mediterranean sea.

Usually reliable sources said a man, representing himself as acting for the Lindberghs, was interested in the estate, "Algua Freda," Catalan for "cold water," near Gerona.

EXPECT PARDON BOARD TO STUDY HAUPTMANN PLEA ON WEDNESDAY

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Indications tonight were that the New Jersey board of pardons will hear Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea for mercy on Wednesday.

No notices of a meeting have been sent to the court members, but Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, at their last session, asked them to keep the first three days of this week "open." The governor said the notices would not be sent during the week-end, an indication they would go out tomorrow.

With allowance for delivery of the notices, Wednesday was looked upon as a logical time for a session.

Indications were the court was not disposed to deal hastily with the petition for modification of the death penalty in the Lindbergh kidnap killing case to life imprisonment. The session was expected to continue an entire day, with a decision likely to be made the same day.

"Jafsie" Cancels Bookings.

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon announced tonight he had canceled scheduled stage appearances to deliver talks on law enforcement because of what he called an erroneous impression that he was exploiting the Lindbergh case, in which he has been a prominent figure. He was especially concerned over the action of twenty-five ministers of Plainfield, N. J., who passed a resolution protesting against his scheduled appearance there.

DANCER, FIRED FROM CHORUS, DIES IN PLUNGE

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Soon after she had been dismissed from the chorus of a Broadway night club show, Dolores Ward, 19, plunged to her death today from the 16th floor window of the Midtown hotel.

"If I ever get the break you got I'll jump out of the window," her roommate, Miss Billie Roy, quoted Miss Ward as saying a week ago. The threat was occasioned by Miss Roy's discharge from the same floor show.

The dancer's death, which was suicide, according to Detective James Fitzpatrick, followed a round of visits to night clubs with Miss Roy and two men.

BURGLARS LOOT HOME.

Joseph Kijak, 2106 Thomas street, reported yesterday to West North avenue police that burglars looted his home, taking a rug valued at $165, a revolver, and $102 in cash.

BRAZIL BEAUTIES JAILED; PLOTTED WOMEN'S REVOLT

Two Accused of Leading Communist Movement.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two dark-eyed feminists, allegedly behind a movement which police have characterized as a "women's revolt," were in jail here tonight.

A fortnight after their arrest, police still were debating whether to transfer them from this city to the Pedro I, prison ship anchored a few miles off shore. Already this ship is loaded with hundreds of men charged with participation in the November rebellion.

Charge She Is a Communist.

The greatest attention centers on Donna Eugenia Alvaro Moreyra, a beautiful brunette, secretary of the recently dissolved Brazilian Feminist union. Police charge she is a communist.

Also arousing interest is the simultaneous arrest of Donna Rosa Furtado Soares de Meirelles, another striking, shadow-eyed woman.

Her brother is Syllo Meirelles, former army lieutenant accused by federal authorities of heading the November leftist rebellion in Natal, northeastern Brazil, and himself a prisoner now.

Señora Armanda Alvaro Alberto, prominent educator and president of the feminist union, was released after questioning.

She testified the union, closed by police and denied an injunction in the Supreme court, had no affiliations with the National Liberating alliance, padlocked by President Getulio Vargas last July, as a communist society.

Smokes as She Testifies.

Donna Eugenia confirmed there was no affiliation, but admitted she personally sympathized with some of the ideas advanced by leaders of the alliance. Placidly smoking a cigaret, she testified she was proud to include some of the leaders among her friends.

Dr. Alvaro Moreyra, her husband, refused to say how much longer he thought his wife might be held.

Police were uncommunicative, but it was reported they were seeking two other comely feminists, Norma and Dora Muniz.

FLOODS IN FRANCE DO WORST DAMAGE SINCE 1910 DISASTER

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Rivers throughout France, swollen by torrential rains, continued to destroy millions of francs' worth of property and to flood thousands of acres today.

The Breton marshlands, traversed by the Vendee river, augmented by tides from the sea, are almost all under water. The floods in this region have reached the height of the great disaster of 1910, the worst in French history.

The Loire river and the Seine, flood-control authorities warned today, are still rising and will not reach their maximum level until Tuesday. Villages on the banks of these and other rivers already have been invaded by the swirling floodwater, which is ruining crops and destroying other property.

New York Tax Receipts Rise 50 Million in Year

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—An increase of nearly 50 million dollars in New York City tax collections for 1935 over the preceding year was shown by complete figures released today by Controler Frank J. Taylor.

NAB 6 RUSSIANS AFTER 18 YR. HUNT FOR ASSASSINS

IZHEVSK, U. S. S. R., Jan. 5.—(AP)—An eighteen year search for the men who tortured and buried alive Ivan Postukhoff, first chairman of the Izhevsk city soviet, ended today with the arrest of six former white guards, who will be tried by a military tribunal.

The accused were members of anti-bolshevist forces which gained the upper hand momentarily during the civil war of 1918.

According to bolshevik accounts, numerous soviet officials in different parts of the country suffered fates similar to that of Postukhoff. The killers succeeded, in many cases, in hiding their identities.

Find Day Old Abandoned Baby in Downtown Hotel

A baby boy, only a day old, was found wrapped in an old velvet coat on a service stairway between the third and fourth floors of the Palmer house early yesterday by Edward T. He turned the baby over to the Central police, who took him to St. Vincent's orphanage.

. . . in Bowman's Irradiated Vitamin D Milk

These days, even when Chicago's sun does shine, practically none of the precious ultra-violet rays can filter through the fog and soot to produce the Vitamin D children need.

That's why careful mothers have a standing order with Bowman for Irradiated Milk . . . the milk that is enriched with Vitamin D. They know this simple safeguard will protect their children from unsound teeth . . . and from rickets, a disease of the bones which threatens all small children.

In many wisely-managed households Bowman's Irradiated Milk is used exclusively. For grown-ups, too, need Vitamin D in the balanced diet for buoyant health. And so few foods supply this essential vitamin that the regular diet is almost sure to be deficient in it.

Mark your Bowman milk card for Irradiated milk. Or if you haven't a Bowman card, call Sup. 6800.

You'll be spared some of the discomfort of winter if your general resistance is built up!

Common winter ills may not be serious, but they are certainly uncomfortable to have. And this is one of the peak months for them. Experts say that they occur more frequently, and last longer in January and February than at any other time in the year.

Like many other people your general resistance is likely to be low, after a winter of indoor living. You may not get enough air, and rest, and sunshine. If you feel the need for some resistance-building measure, begin before winter ills bother you. Start with Adex tablets today! You may be spared discomfort later.

ADEX TABLETS and CAPSULES
SQUIBB

Adex provides Vitamin A, which contributes more than any other vitamin toward building good general resistance. It also contains Vitamin D, insufficiently supplied by sunshine, and needed from some other source, at this time of year.

Each Adex capsule provides 6,600 units of Vitamin A and 1,320 units of Vitamin D, enough to more than take care of your needs. And the vitamins are obtained from natural sources only.

Begin with Adex now, and keep on taking them every day. At any reliable drug store. E. R. Squibb & Sons, manufacturing chemists since 1858.

10,000 ASSEMBLE HERE TODAY FOR U. S. SHOE FAIR

Displays Represent 90% of Nation's Output.

BY KAY HALL.

Chicago will become the shoe capital of the nation today with the opening of the National Shoe Fair in the Palmer house and in the Sherman and Morrison hotels. Officials say 90 per cent of the shoe production of the country will be represented by the displays of 450 companies in 775 hotel exhibit rooms and that 10,000 buyers will place orders before the fair closes Thursday night.

The fair is held under the joint auspices of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association and the National Shoe Retailers' association. These societies are meeting together for the first time.

Downtown hotel space was sold out yesterday. To the gala buying spirit and the preparation for a big upturn in shoe business was added the stimulus of the most radical style changes of recent years.

News Keeps Wires Humming.

Wires were busy disseminating to the rest of the country the authoritative style notes of the Chicago show.

The square toes and heels for women's street shoes that have been on their way for a year have taken ranking majority in the spring offerings. The most popular color for street shoes will be British tan, a rust shade that blends with blue, green, and gray tweeds.

Evening slippers will come in patent lether of many colors and will have open toes and open, high heels. Still lower heels for street shoes are to be the mode, according to the stylists.

Men's shoes, too, will have a new style—a one-eighth swing inward of the last designed for greater comfort.

Gen. Johnson to Speak.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson will speak at the opening luncheon of the conventions today in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Other speakers announced are Mayor Kelly, M. A. Mittelman, president of the National Shoe Retailers' association; Frederick A. Miller, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association, and L. L. Imig, president of the National Shoe Travelers' association.

Attending the shoe fair is Robert Wadlow, 17 years old, of Alton, Ill., who weighs 400 pounds, is 8 feet 4 inches tall, and wears size 39 shoes.

359 READ THROUGH BIBLE IN 69 HOURS AT CHURCH 'MARATHON'

Ponca City, Okla., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A "marathon reading" by 359 persons of the entire Bible in 69 hours and 15 minutes was the talk of the Bethel Tabernacle church here today.

Working in relays, participants completed the marathon in 513 reading periods. The Rev. P. T. Stanford, pastor, read the last five chapters last night.

"He's had more experience than the rest of us," chuckled one church member as the pastor worded his way deftly through the tongue twisting words in Revelations.

Report Helene Fortescue and Tobacco Heir Engaged

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Society tonight linked together romantically the names of Helene Kenyon Fortescue and J. Louis Reynolds, tobacco heir, after they gave a party last night, reported to have been an engagement party.

Reynolds, son of Richard J. Reynolds, vice president of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, however, denied a "formal engagement."

Miss Fortescue's father is Maj. Granville R. Fortescue. Her elder sister, Thalia, was a principal in Honolulu's sensational attack and murder case three years ago.

SOS Flashed by British Steamer in the Irish Sea

OPEN FURNITURE MARKET TODAY; GOOD 1936 SEEN

Officials Predict Prices 5% to 10% Higher.

The most profitable year for the furniture industry since 1929 was predicted yesterday for 1936 by officials preparing to open the Chicago winter furniture market today. The market will last two weeks.

A 5 to 10 per cent increase in furniture prices, occasioned by higher material and labor costs and by "new taxes and reserves for other taxes impending," was forecast by Dr. A. P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers.

It will be the twenty-fourth semi-annual major show for the Furniture Mart at 666 Lake Shore drive. The record registration at last summer's show is expected to be surpassed this year since 8,500 reservations have already been made.

Scope of Exhibit Broadened.

This show of the Furniture Mart will be the first to embrace floor coverings, lamps, electric equipment and house furnishings in addition to furniture proper.

Officials of the Merchandise Mart said their registration at last summer's [illegible] was 7,200 and they anticipate [illegible]000 buyers for this one. As us[illegible] the Merchandise Mart show is composed of several exhibitions taking in all household furnishings. This year it is sponsoring the first international housewares show.

In ceremonies opening the Merchandise Mart market at 9 a. m. today Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will press a Western Union key in Washington which will ring a gong in the lobby of the building here. A message from Secretary Roper to the retailers and manufacturers will then by read by T. J. Reed, general manager of the mart.

Many Improvements Made.

Furniture leaders declared that stocks "in 99 out of every 100 stores" are low and that dealers are "banking upon future inflation and a continued rise in prices to produce added profits." Dr. Haake said "the social security law alone will raise furniture costs by not less than 5 per cent when the pyramiding effect on all materials is added to the direct pay roll taxes or reserves which must be laid aside against Jan. 1, 1937."

Marked improvements and innovations in furniture were announced by Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Furniture Mart.

The ninth annual house furnishings exhibit opened yesterday at the Stevens hotel with 400 exhibitors' lines occupying six floors. The National House Furnishing Manufacturers' association will hold its annual banquet in the grand ball room of the hotel on Wednesday night.

NEW YEAR RECEPTION OF TRIBUNE ATTRACTS 3,500; RECORD CROWD

The 15th annual New Year's reception of THE TRIBUNE brought 3,500 persons—employés, members of their families and friends—into W-G-N and the Tribune Tower yesterday for greetings, refreshments, and dancing.

Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, and Mrs. McCormick received the guests on the stage of the W-G-N auditorium. The stream of arrivals passed from there into the second floor mailing room of the tower, which was specially decorated for the occasion.

The bands of Carl Moore and Jack Chapman at opposite ends of the dance floor provided music for continuous dancing. Later employés and the families gathered in their own departments for small receptions.

The attendance far surpassed that of any previous New Year's reception of THE TRIBUNE. The count included 819 children of employés.

OWL ATTACKS 3 WOODSMEN; IS KILLED WITH AX

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The story was told today that a large, hungry owl attacked three woodsmen at the door of their shack at dawn Friday on Isle Royale, causing a serious eye injury to Arthur Ruokonen, 32, of Maple, Wis. Ruokonen was brought to Duluth on the coast guard cutter Crawford.

Ruokonen was taken to a local hospital. He was attacked by the owl after a co-worker, John P. Johnson, had arisen about 5:30 a. m. and gone out of the shack to get wood. Johnson was bleeding when he came back and reported that something had attacked him. Ruokonen went out to investigate and was hit by the owl. A third man, with a blanket over his head and carrying a hatchet, went out. He, too, was clawed, but he killed the bird.

Seize Car Thieves Fleeing Afoot; Others Take Auto

John Maczka, 20 years old, 1340 West Erie street, and Mitchell Pientka, 17, 1301 West Huron street, were seized yesterday by Warren avenue police for stealing an automobile from R. C. Krebs, 4560 South Park avenue, but while the youths were being arrested some one else stole the car. Macka, driver of the car, said he parked it at Huron and Noble streets after a squad from Warren avenue had chased the pair and captured Pientka. When they caught Meczka at his home he told them where the car was abandoned. Police went there and it had been stolen again. Now they're seeking the new thieves.

Girl Keeps Forbidden Date; Spanked, She Tries Suicide

Forbidden by her mother to go out Saturday night, Miss Frances Longo, 16 years old, 1743 North Lockwood avenue, disobeyed, and kept her date with a young man. On her return home she was spanked by her mother. Frances then ran into the bathroom, took a bottle from a shelf, drank its contents, and collapsed. At the county hospital where she was taken, physicians last night said she would recover.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold".

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all".

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is your answer to a cold.

It is a cold tablet, made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

It is internal in effect and it does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels, an important step in overcoming a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

These are the four effects a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

Play safe—make sure! The moment a cold threatens, go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours, until relieved.

Prompt use of Bromo Quinine will often stop a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed of action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Ask for it with your mind made up that you're not going to accept a substitute.

FUSE TO CLASS HATRED SEEN IN ROOSEVELT TALK

Liberty League Replies to "Challenge."

Hits Subservient Congress.

"A subservient congress has abdicated its functions, has accepted its orders, and has permitted itself to be used as a rubber stamp. It has proved as utterly unmindful of the provisions of the constitution of the United States and of the oaths taken to uphold and support that constitution as has the executive whose will it has obeyed.

"It is to be hoped most ardently that 'the way is open in the congress of the United States for an expression of opinion by ayes and nays.' It is to be hoped that the present session will not submit to executive dictation and that it will not permit any more 'gag' rules inspired by the administration which prevent members of the house from registering their opinions freely.

"It is to be hoped that the country will not again be treated to the spectacle of members of both branches of the legislative body being subjected to direct pressure from the executive—pressure made effective both by the perversion of the civil service into a spoils system of unexampled proportions and by executive control of a 4 billion 880 million dollar fund in the name of relief.

Speech Held "Most Dangerous."

"All of this is to be hoped, but he would be naive indeed who would suggest that it is to be expected.

"The speech of Mr. Roosevelt may without exaggeration be called the most dangerous speech that ever came from a President of the United States. Even in the heat of political battle those heretofore vested with the power and responsibility of the presidency have almost without exception used tempered and temperate words.

"They have given evidence of the 'patience' and the 'charity' which Mr. Roosevelt invoked in his peroration. He is the first among our Presidents who in any public utterance has tried to create class hatreds and prejudices. When he injects such a note in what is supposed to be an address to the congress on the state of the Union he is guilty not only of the gravest impropriety but he is setting a precedent which must alarm every thoughtful citizen.

"This address was made in performance of Mr. Roosevelt's official constitutional duty. He was supposed to speak as President of the United States, not as a candidate for office. He prostituted the occasion to political objectives.

Talk Shatters Tradition.

"The annual messages of presidents to the congress have been devoted, from the beginning of our government, to recommendations for legislative action, suggestions of specific points for the congress to consider in its legislative program.

"Friday night, against a carefully arranged background, Mr. Roosevelt shattered that tradition. Aside from a declaration against increased taxation his fifty minute campaign speech to his radio audience contained not a single definite legislative recommendation.

"The nearest approach was this sentence: 'I recommend to the congress that we advance; that we do not retreat.' What this 'advance' may mean Mr. Roosevelt did not elaborate. Was the suggestion based upon the prevalent New Deal conviction that all motion is progress, or does the language convey an intention to renew the unnecessary, unwise, and unconstitutional assaults upon the business of the country?"

The most serious aspect of the President's speech, in the opinion of the league, is the "revelation of the basic philosophy" exemplified in Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that "we have returned the control of the federal government to the city of Washington."

"Servants, Not Rulers."

"This declaration," the league commented, "reveals in all its naked hideousness the fundamental New Deal conception of constitutional government in the United States. If there is one place in the world where 'control' of the federal government does not belong, that place is Washington. The national capital is the seat of the federal government but it is not the source of that government's power.

"The federal government is composed of men selected through processes prescribed by the constitution to exercise certain powers conferred by that document. These men are public servants, not rulers. They are under contract to the people of the United States, and, however whimsically they may regard that fact, they have taken oaths to observe the contract, both in letter and in spirit.

"Control of the government rests with the sovereign states of the Union and with the people themselves, not with the people's hired servants in Washington.

Assails Roosevelt Theory.

"There is a perfect illustration of another feature of New Deal governmental philosophy in Mr. Roosevelt's speech and that is the theory of government as a personal affair—a government of men rather than of law.

"After denunciation of those who disagree with some of his legislative experiments, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"'They realize that in 34 months we have built up new instruments of public power. In the hands of a people's government this power is wholesome and proper.'

"By those words Mr. Roosevelt pleads guilty to one of the most important counts of the indictment against his administration, namely, that there has been created a centralized dictatorial system which is gravely dangerous to the future of constitutional government as developed by the American people. His theory apparently is that irresponsible and unlimited power may safely be reposed in him and his associates even though it would be unwise in other hands.

Resorts Only to Rhetoric.

"Throughout the speech Mr. Roosevelt once more indulged, as at Atlanta and Chicago, in panicky denunciation of all who have ventured to express doubts as to the infallibility of his administration.

"Those who point out the illegal and unconstitutional path he has trod are the hirelings of special interests, the enemies of national progress. But there is no attempt to offer specific answer to criticism.

"Instead, Mr. Roosevelt resorted to the time honored device of rhetorical questions. Neither directly nor by implication does he show either consideration of suggestions that have been offered or willingness to give consideration to suggestions that hereafter may be offered.

"He arouses antagonism against those who thoughtfully fear that his theories of 'advance' lead to greater chaos and not to social and economic progress."

PHILADELPHIA WPA JOBS SOLD, PINCHOT INFORMS ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot, former Pennsylvania governor, charged tonight that "WPA actually assists in the systematic collection of graft from the needy" in Philadelphia.

In a second open letter to President Roosevelt, Pinchot declared he had receipts showing that a private employment agency, which he named, took $20 from one man and $22.50 from another "as the price of securing employment under the government of the United States as maladministered by the WPA."

The former governor charged that applicants for Works Progress administration jobs were referred to a private employment agency by the state employment office and that the private agency then gets them "a job under WPA."

Toledo, O., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two Detroit persons were killed and seven others were injured in an automobile collision near here today. The dead were Mrs. Margaret Erdos, 24, and her sister-in-law, Mary Erdos, 17.

REPUBLICANS IN N. Y. ASK BORAH TO ENTER RACE

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Describing Senator William E. Borah as "the man to lead the movement to preserve our institutions," a group of New York Republicans today asked the Idaho senator to seek the Republican nomination for President.

The request was signed by thirty-three Republicans, headed by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York and W. Kingsland Macy, former Republican state chairman.

In a telegram the group, gathered in informal meeting here, said:

"We Republicans, interested in our country and in our party's ability to present a candidate who can measure up to the severe test of the times, and mindful of your long and distinguished record of service to the people, do hereby express to you our belief that you are the man to lead the movement to preserve our institutions."

TABER PREDICTS BILLION DEFICIT FOR NEXT YEAR

Bonus Measure Speeded Toward Showdown.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The intertwined issues of the soldier's bonus and the nation's deficit today focused the attention of a congress awaiting the administration's budget for the next financial year.

A bonus bill backed by three groups of war veterans and house members in whom the flame of discord has cooled headed toward a showdown in a speed bent house ways and means committee.

The size of the deficit—every congressional leader conceded there would be one—may be revealed in President Roosevelt's annual message tomorrow outlining anticipated federal receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Harrison, Taber Disagree.

A Republican expert on government spending, Representative Taber of New York, has predicted that exclusive of funds for relief and emergency purposes, expenditures for ordinary operations of the government will exceed federal income by a billion or one and a quarter billion dollars.

Taber is the ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, which starts all money bills on the trip through congress.

Disagreeing with Taber's estimate, Chairman Harrison [Dem., Miss.] of the senate finance committee has forecast an excess of only 200 million dollars of expenditures over receipts if processing levies are upheld by the Supreme court.

Bonus May Upset Plans.

To what extent enactment of a bonus bill might upset the administration's financial program house members were unwilling to predict. Some said the President could use his authority to issue new currency without its affecting the federal figuring.

But Mr. Roosevelt said last year that a bonus act would toss into the lap of congress the question of finding new taxes to raise money for payment. He remarked, too, in his message to congress Friday night, that on the basis of present laws no new taxes are necessary.

Legislators, forecasting without "ifs" and "ands" that a bonus bill will be enacted even over a veto, noted that the President was careful to leave a loophole for a request for new taxes should any new law require them.

Bonus leaders picked Wednesday as the latest date for the ways and means committee to write its official approval of the bonus bill framed by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled Veterans.

Chairman Doughton [Dem., N. C.] said the bill "might" be reported out Tuesday or Wednesday. The committee will take up the bill tomorrow, without holding open hearings. Some members saw a possibility of a house vote before the end of the week.

House and senate will assemble at noon tomorrow to hear their clerks read the Roosevelt budget message.

BONUS WOULD ENABLE PAYING 623 MILLION DEBTS, SAYS LEGION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The American Legion today said cash payment of the bonus would yield $623,615,793.86 to American merchants on debts incurred by veterans during the depression.

The prediction was based on 42,500 returned questionnaires on how Legionnaires would spend the money. The replies represented, the Legion said, "a random cross section of 5 per cent of the membership."

The estimated debt payment figure was said to represent 31.363 per cent of the total bonus payment.

$119 LIQUOR SHOP HOLDUP.

Two men, armed with revolvers, entered the liquor store of John Montesano, at 659 East 79th street, yesterday and, after forcing Montesano and three patrons into a rear room, fled with $100 taken from the cash drawer and $19 taken from the three customers.

SECY. PERKINS LISTS BENEFITS OWED TO LABOR

Calls Security Act Most Significant of Era.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Calling the social security act one of the "most significant" of the generation, Secretary Perkins today said American workers "can expect in the future a definite security and protection from the most unpreventable economic disasters."

Referring also to the Wagner labor disputes law and other state and federal legislation, the labor secretary added in her annual report for the fiscal year ended last June 30:

"We have come to the point in our American life when it seems obvious that every wage earner should expect as a result of the laws . . . that he will work under sound conditions which give him personal protection."

Lists Eight Minimum Guarantees.

Miss Perkins listed as "within this code of application":

1. Generous workmen's compensation insurance.
2. Strict laws with regard to the guarding of machinery to prevent accidents.
3. Prevention of occupational disease.
4. Building and arrangement of buildings to prevent loss of life and accident by fire; prevention of overcrowding; adequate ventilation; sanitation.
5. Shorter hours.
6. Prevention of child labor under 16.
7. A sound minimum wage law with a procedure to prevent exploitation.
8. Provision for the collection of wages for those denied "through fraud, carelessness, or otherwise."

Finds No Real Opposition.

She said these seemed to be minimum standards which every wage earner has a right to expect, contending there is "practically no real and sound opposition to a program of this sort in any state, but there have been lapses of performance."

The lapses, the secretary said, have occurred "partly by ignorance, partly by selfishness and shortsighted programs of self-interest on the part of some employer groups."

The secretary said more legislation calculated to benefit labor was enacted during the fiscal year than in any like period in history, but she asserted that the state child labor legislation has been disappointing.

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—C. A. Bailey, 45, principal of Rockfield High school, died today from injuries suffered four weeks ago in an automobile accident.

SLAY BURGLARY SUSPECT; FORMER U. S. AID SEIZED

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A suspected safecracker was killed today, a former Seattle policeman was among three companions wounded, and a former special assistant United States attorney was held for questioning.

The man killed in a police trap at a bakery was identified as Carl Thomas, 35. John F. Garvin, Seattle lawyer and former special assistant United States attorney, was held for questioning. Police said he was found in a house in which two safecracking suspects later took refuge only to be routed with tear gas.

Two women and three other men, including the suspected safecrackers, were arrested. One critically wounded suspect was Joe Nell, 55, former Seattle policeman. He was discharged from the force in 1824 after his conviction of department store robbery.

Los Angeles Harbor Hit by Gale; Shipping Halted

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Reaching a velocity of forty-five miles an hour at Los Angeles harbor, a northwest gale tied up small craft sailing and in the metropolitan area, where its speed was lessened, broke off tree trunks and leveled telephone poles. Held back by the wind, air transports from the east were several hours late.

HE ASKED FOR IT; HERE IT IS.

Mr. Roosevelt's stump speech to the radio audience was another of his calculated attempts to inflame class hatred. The opposition to him and his administration, he said, consisted of nothing more than a handful of bloated plutocrats. To be sure, he admitted, they have their millions of followers, but this following is made up of stooges and dupes.

This is his answer to the indication of the Literary Digest poll that two-thirds of the voters in the United States are eager for the opportunity to vote him and his addle-brained administration out of office. The millions who have come to distrust and fear him, so he says, don't know what it is all about. Mr. Roosevelt pretends that taxpayers don't know what he is costing them; that housewives don't know that the cost of living has gone up and up; that stockholders who have organized for self-protection by the hundreds of thousands have no reason to fear his program of spoliation; that owners of insurance policies and savings accounts feel under obligations to him for jeopardizing the security they had bought and paid for.

If Mr. Roosevelt thinks he can get away with that his conceit matches his hypocrisy.

He talks of bloated plutocrats, he who was born to great wealth and never had to earn his living! Mr. Roosevelt is a far richer man, and his wife is a far richer woman, than all but a few of his opponents. His intimates, like Vincent Astor, are all rich men.

He talks of "unscrupulous money changers" and conveniently forgets that he ran a neat little pool in German marks when the exchange rates were running wild.

He speaks with justified contempt of "the manipulations of dishonest speculators," conveniently forgetting those stock peddling circulars of only a few years ago which bore his name. Mr. Roosevelt, who lent his name and his reputation to the flotation of Camco, one of the wildest of the boom-time promotions, now dares to denounce stock jobbery! The suckers who placed faith in the business competence and integrity of Franklin D. Roosevelt, director of the Consolidated Automatic Vending Machine company, do not speak over nation-wide hookups, but they have not forgotten.

The same Roosevelt who now denounces the "rulers of the exchanges of mankind's goods" is the same Roosevelt who, as governor of New York, took no step to regulate the greatest of all the exchanges. The New York Stock exchange and the New York Curb exchange, around which clustered most of the financial abuses of the boom era, were under the Roosevelt thumb during the boom era. The speculator in German marks and the director of Camco did nothing to protect the innocent investor when he most needed protection. It is curious that Mr. Roosevelt overlooked that fact the other night when he was shouting that he and he alone had the will and the competence to protect the little fellow from the plutocrats who "rule the exchanges."

Mr. Roosevelt, the stump speaker, had much to say about the sins of big business, but he neglected to note that he is himself a large stockholder in one of the biggest of them—General Electric—and perhaps in many others as well. General Electric has made a lot of money these last few years out of government contracts for useless and uneconomical power plants financed by the federal treasury. General Electric obliged Mrs. Roosevelt when it rescued her subsistence homestead scheme when it was on the verge of failure, and a good many observers said it was a small return for the favors which had been conferred by the New Deal. General Electric had clear sailing in the days of Mr. Roosevelt's codes, when little business men like Fred Perkins, the battery man, were going to jail.

Mr. Roosevelt asked in his speech whether home owners are once more to be obliged to pay high interest rates. Again he conveniently forgets. This time his memory does not extend to that housing venture in the New York metropolitan area. Mr. Roosevelt has an investment there. No reduction in interest rates has been granted those who bought property in this so-called model development. Home owners who are in debt to Mr. Roosevelt must pay their interest notes at the old rate and on the day they are due or out they go.

This is the Roosevelt who now says that those who oppose him are plutocrats and the dupes and stooges of plutocrats. No wonder Mr. Farley has felt impelled to try to explain what his chief meant the other night and has made a poor job of the explanation. No wonder the editorial supporters of the administration have been hard put to it to justify the speech and have fallen back on the labored and the obvious.

Mr. Roosevelt's hypocrisy was too evident. No competent defense was made of that speech because no competent defense could be made of it or the man who delivered it.

THE NEW RELIEF CRISIS.

The responsibility for the present relief crisis in Illinois rests squarely upon the federal authorities. They have taken Illinois money to spend in other states; they have repudiated their pledges to Gov. Horner; and they have displayed a degree of folly in planning and of incompetence in administration of relief which defies characterization.

Mr. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins promised that the federal government would finance relief for all the unemployed who are able to work. Mr. Hopkins has fallen short of his goal by 65,000 families. These families, he now says, must be supported by the state, if at all.

Even in an administration distinguished for its repudiations here is something outstanding. Illinois increased its sales tax by 33 per cent upon Mr. Roosevelt's pledge that if Illinois would take care of the unemployables he would care for the rest. Illinois, at great sacrifice, has done its part and now the inimitable Hopkins runs out on the agreement. He says he's sorry, but Illinois had better find the money somewhere. Appeals from Gov. Horner to Washington have gone unanswered.

Illinois might be able to shoulder the added burden if the federal government had not already raided the state's wealth. This is no pauper state, but its taxpayers cannot be expected to support their poor twice, once by way of Washington and again by way of Springfield. If Mr. Roosevelt expects us to carry a larger share of the relief burden we shall not complain provided we are given adequate warning and, above all, provided we are enabled to meet the bill through a reduction in federal taxation.

The present crisis could have been avoided. Money was available to continue relief activities on the agreed terms, but there was not enough for relief and for Mr. Hopkins' organized nonsense. There was certainly not enough for relief, for organized nonsense, and for vote buying. It is only because part of the federal contribution is being wasted in boondoggling and another part misused for political objectives that the crisis has arisen.

REFORM PAROLE OR ABOLISH IT.

The resolution of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association protesting against undue leniency in parole expresses the growing conviction that the parole system has become one of the weakest points in our very unsatisfactory defense against crime. Some critics of the system demand its complete abolition, and this extreme demand will prevail if drastic corrections are postponed much longer. The news of the day is constantly punctuated by crimes committed by parolees, many of them habitual offenders whose release offered no likelihood of reform. The state's attorneys' resolution notes that approximately 50 per cent of serious crimes are committed by offenders with police records, and asks for a stricter policy from parole boards.

The purpose of the parole system has been perverted by politics and by professional humanitarianism. A reasonable consideration of the possibilities of reform after punishment and under subsequent supervision has been exploited unscrupulously for political favoritism. But more important is what the first plank of THE TRIBUNE platform for Illinois calls "the parole business"; that is, the practice of representing criminals seeking parole. Organized criminality, which includes the politicians and lawyers who themselves try to keep on the safe side of the law but help criminals to escape justice, has been an adjunct of the parole system.

The system has been in operation long enough to have exposed its shortcomings, and these are dangerous and cry out for correction. That correction must be made from the viewpoint of public safety. The chief essential to make the parole system safe for the community is to put it as far as possible out of the reach of the alliance of crime and corrupt politics; to make it, if possible, independent of all politics. The second is to restrict its scope and operations.

Editorial of the Day

NOT HELEN'S FACE.

[Boston Herald.]

The fact that ancient Troy was the seventh and not the sixth of the nine cities that stood one after another on the famous site is interesting even if it does not confirm the Homeric narrative. It throws fresh light on the story, and the archæologists of the University of Cincinnati are to be congratulated. The newly found bones may not be those of the noble Hector or of the aged Priam—the body of Priam was flung on the beach, "a body without a name," as the pious Æneas laments—but, anyway, they are bones.

Dr. Blegen conjectures that the sixth city, or village, was destroyed by an earthquake not long after 1300 B. C. This might corroborate the legend of the building of Troy by Laomedon with the aid of the earth-shaking Poseidon, whom he afterward cheated of his fee, a piece of chicanery that was worse than a crime, for it is not prudent to defraud the immortal gods.

The "historicity" of Troy and of the Trojan war is finding more defenders as scientific inquiry progresses. Schliemann was not a man of science, nor of wide or deep learning; yet scholars no longer smile indulgently at his acceptance of the Iliad as an authentic account of events. Gladstone found the Homeric poems a mine of material for the reconstruction of Hellenic origins. Herodotus treats the Trojan war as an episode in the never-ending struggle between Europe and Asia, a struggle which was economic at the base.

It was not Helen's face that launched a thousand ships against the topless towers of Ilium; it was the pressure of material need. Priam's city, the capital of a powerful state, commanded the fishy Hellespont and the route to fruitful Scythia. Byzantium, presumably, did not then exist. Troy was wealthy. Achilles in his great speech refers to the rich stores heaped up there "before the coming of the Sons of the Achæans." This wealth and this dominating position, not the lovely Helen, drew those hosts into a conflict which could end only with the annihilation of one. Many nations rallied to Priam. Some even conjecture that there was an Israelitish contingent in his service. The outcome was the destruction of an Asiatic empire and the establishment of flourishing colonies of Ionian Greeks on the Asian mainland.

The relatively new theory that all wars are economic conflicts thus gets further support from the once-ringing plains of windy Troy.

THE PORT OF MISSING THINGS

The cushions in an automobile are often spoken of for their softness and upholstering, but their greatest benefit to the human race is hardly ever mentioned. It took me a long time to discover the true value of the automobile cushion. I had lost my pocketbook, and while it did not contain a large quantity of money—the pocketbooks of the white collar class seldom do these days—still it was all I had and the gasoline gauge showed that I was going to be obliged to stop at a gas station before long and fill the tank. And it costs money to fill the tank with gas. And there I was without any.

I searched all over the car but found no trace of the pocketbook. I drove back to a little glen where I had parked the car and wasted a few yards of perfectly good photographic film. I searched all around in the grass, but it was no use—nary a sign of that pocketbook.

I stopped at the first gas station I came to and endeavored to persuade the gas man that he ought to let me have gasoline on the promise I would immediately send him the money by mail. The gas man couldn't see it. I asked him to gaze on my open, noble countenance and then say I could not be trusted for a few paltry gallons of gasoline. The gas man gazed and then went inside his little gas station and shut and locked the door. I caught a glimpse of him through the window as I drove away; he was loading a shotgun.

I managed to reach another gas station and launched into another sales talk in regard to getting gas on credit. I didn't tell the gas man to gaze on my open, noble countenance, though; that didn't seem to help me any. I explained to the gasoline vender that I had lost my pocketbook and I did it with such power and pathos I expected him to burst right out crying and to tell me I could have all the gasoline and oil, road maps, and cold drinks I wanted, and what would I like to have him send me for Christmas. However, he managed to restrain his tears and murmured something to the effect that what I said was old stuff and didn't go with him any more because he had been gypped too many times.

But as he walked away he said something about pulling the seat cushions out and looking behind them. Now there was a great idea. I pulled the seat cushions out and sure enough in the space behind them was my pocketbook. And also a pearl handled knife that I had mourned for three months thinking it was lost forever. There was a pair of pliers, too, and a monkey wrench and some other things I had lost at various times. I had a great time exploring around back of the cushions. It was like coming on a treasure chest buried by pirates on a desert island.

Since then I have lost and recovered all sorts of things from back of the cushions; a pair of spectacles, a two pound box of candy, field glasses, two tins of corned beef, a pair of shoes, and all sorts of bric-a-brac. It makes me believe firmly that everything that is lost when you're in an automobile can be found back of the cushions.

It wasn't long after I had made my great discovery about the cushions before I saw a woman sitting in her car weeping hysterically. Of course I stopped my bus and went over and asked her to tell me her troubles. "I've lost the baby," she sobbed. "He was sitting right by me here cooing and prattling so sweetly and suddenly he disappeared. Oh, what shall I do?"

Laughing merrily, I asked the woman to get out of the machine and I would soon return her darling child to her eager arms. Very doubtfully she got out of the car and I pulled out the front seat cushions and there sure enough was little Johnnie or it may have been little Suzie shouting with happiness and glee. Oh, how grateful that mother was because I had found her baby. But it was nothing and I refused the dime she offered me out of the gratitude of her heart.

Since then I have helped many motorists who were in trouble. Some of them had lost a dog, or a suitcase, or a pair of pants, or a picnic basket. And one poor man had lost his wife. But need I say more? Of course we found each and every one safely stowed away and well and happy behind the back of the seat cushions. And now I am giving you this great secret. It may be very useful to you some day. No matter what you've lost, from a needle to the kitchen stove, you'll find it back of the cushions. I read only yesterday of a circus man who had a wagon show down south who had lost the elephant. Ha, ha! that is absurdly simple. I am going to send him a telegram, collect, telling him just where he'll find the elephant.

SONG.

From frozen sedge
A bluebird sings—
Her song's a pledge
Of lovely things.

My hushed heart gloats,
And calls its own
Those golden notes
Like petals blown.

They float, they fall,
Hang fluttering!
But hark, a call
Comes answering!

And now the marsh
Seems strangely cold,
The season harsh,
And myself old.

DENT CHANEY.

THE COST OF LIVING has mounted in American cities to an average of 40 per cent higher than in 1913 and in Chicago to 75.1 per cent. These days I go into a store to get a shirt or a pound of salt pork with just the same joy that I go into the dentist's office to get a back molar pulled.

I HATE these cold, bleak January days. I hate 'em like an administration Democrat hates the straw vote.

SNAKE VENOM FOR HEMORRHAGE.

SOME years ago [1893] C. J. Martin described the rapid blood clotting power of certain Australian snake venoms, particularly that of the tiger snake. He showed that under the influence of this poison, if given in sufficiently large doses, clotting would occur in the blood vessels themselves. Some time later he again tried snake venom, using the Russel viper, and discovered that minute quantities of this substance would coagulate blood which had lost its power to clot.

Because of the number of individuals who suffer from hemorrhagic conditions it seemed wise to determine whether snake venom would supply a remedy. Rosenfeld and Lenke have recently published the results of their research on the use of the Australian tiger snake venom. They chose it because of its known properties and the fact that it does not prepare tissues for infection by bacteria.

One case—that of a man aged 51, who was rather constantly exposed to arsenic dyes because of his occupation [furrier]—was admitted to the hospital suffering from a severe anemia. Under routine treatment the blood improved in character, although in the following six months he had two serious hemorrhages, each subsequent to the extraction of a tooth. Even after recovery the patient would notice at times blood oozing from the gums. Pressure and the usual methods failed to abate the blood loss, which was stopped only by a transfusion of blood. On another occasion, when a transfusion proved ineffective, tiger snake venom was employed as a last resort. Bits of absorbent cotton soaked with the diluted venom were pressed against the bleeding areas. In two minutes bleeding had ceased. After an hour the pledget was removed and bleeding returned. Once again snake venom stopped the flow within two minutes. Whenever the pack was dislodged, however, as during the eating period, the flow of blood was observed. It required the constant application of venom for several days to control the hemorrhage.

Another patient, a man aged 28, was a true hemophiliac, that is, a hereditary bleeder. His maternal grandfather was a bleeder and the patient was told that the bleeding disease existed in his grandfather's family. Following tonsilectomy and a tooth extraction dangerous hemorrhages occurred, each one continuing for approximately a week. Three or four years earlier this man had bled for 16 days after a slight laceration of the gum. The employment of snake venom was necessitated by the extraction of a molar tooth, inasmuch as packing the cavity failed to stop the hemorrhage. The venom was then applied on cotton without pressure for ten minutes. A clot formed quickly, but was soon dislodged by the continuous blood flow. A firm pack was then used and pressure was maintained for ten minutes. The patient immediately went to sleep, but was awakened some hours later by recurrence of the hemorrhage, which was quickly stopped by a fresh application of the poison. Some time later the clot was mechanically removed when bleeding recommenced. This was followed by a plain gauze pack without venom. At this time the blood loss was much greater and the venom was again resorted to, with renewal of the packs each day. Nine days thereafter the wound had healed without further hemorrhage.

All told, these authors used the remedy successfully in eight cases, in each of which control could not be secured through the application of previously known methods. They conclude that the diluted venom must come into contact with the raw bleeding surface, and that hemorrhage will cease within a very short period—one to two minutes on the average and ten minutes at the outside. In true bleeders the application must be renewed at frequent intervals. There were no unfavorable results from the use of the poison.

St. Patrick must have made certain that there were no "bleeders" in Ireland prior to his snake edict.

ABNORMAL GROWTH.

Mrs. C. A. E. writes: My 12 year old daughter is 25 pounds overweight. She has an abnormal appetite. Should a reduction diet be attempted?

REPLY.

By all means. There may be some glandular disturbance. Nevertheless, an effort should be made to control the diet by giving foods that are low in calories. A normal amount of proteid should be fed, but little starch and less fat. Bulky foods—green vegetables—will satisfy hunger. It would be well to have the program under the supervision of a physician, as growth must proceed. Send a stamped and addressed envelope for reducing sheets.

GRANULATED EYELIDS.

E. O. C. writes: What causes granulated eyelids?

REPLY.

Granulated eyelids [blepharitis] may occur in association with a debilitated condition of the body. Lack of cleanliness, bad hygienic surroundings, and irritation due to dust and smoke are other common causes.

Cleanliness is of great importance. The eyes should be washed several times daily with a solution of hydrogen peroxide or boric acid. An ointment containing yellow oxide of mercury—1 to 2 per cent—is often helpful.

If the condition does not clear up quickly your physician should be consulted.

DIET FOR BLEEDER.

Mrs. C. B. R. writes: Should a bleeder be on a special diet?

REPLY.

A diet high in calcium is considered advisable though its value has not been proved. Of recent years favorable results have been obtained by the administration of liver.

MORTGAGES.

Barrington, Ill., Jan. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Several years ago I sold a property on which the buyer placed a first mortgage in order to raise the amount required as payment at the time of sale. He asked me to accept a second mortgage for the balance still due, and upon the advice of an attorney I took a [1] bonded second mortgage. The first mortgage recently was foreclosed. I would like to know if this bonded second mortgage is in reality [2] a judgment note that [3] can be collected from the former owner or [4] have I lost this money? If it can be collected [5] what steps must I take? G. J.

1. Presumably what this means is that a bonding company has executed an agreement to make the mortgage good. The value of this agreement would depend on its wording and on the assets of the bonding company.
2. A judgment note is one that contains a clause authorizing a judgment by confession. The way to ascertain whether your note contains such a clause is to read it.
3. Presumably it can be collected from him if he has sufficient assets or income.
4. Not on the bare facts stated.
5. The first step would be to place your claim in the hands of an attorney for collection. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEED TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Ten years ago my mother's father died. A few weeks before his death he gave his children his personal property and cash securities, also stock and bonds. There were four children, two sisters and two brothers. Mother's share was some cash and a deed to six lots in a cemetery. A few years later she gave the deed to brother No. 1 for safekeeping. Last year she asked for it and was refused. The deed is in her father's name. She has never signed it nor has the other sister or brother No. 2. She wishes the deed for herself. 1. Is the deed worthless until all sisters and brothers have signed it? 2. Can he sell the deed without consent of my mother? 3. How can mother go about claiming something which was given to her and let her brother keep in good faith for her? W. J.

1. The deed naming the father as grantee is of no particular value to other persons.
2. No, on the facts stated the property was inherited by all the children.
3. Employ an attorney to probate the estate. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE NECESSARY.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My parents are both dead. They left a small estate without a will. All of the several heirs are of age. The estate has never been probated and no administrator appointed. A first mortgage of $3,000 is due March 7, 1936. The real estate men tell me this mortgage can be renewed. I do not see how this can be done without a clear title. 1. Can the heirs gain title to the property without probate proceedings? 2. Can the mortgage be renewed under the present circumstances? 3. What is apt to happen to this property if it is not probated? A. S.

1. Probate would be necessary in order to produce a merchantable title to real estate.
2. It probably can. Your letter does not make clear whether you are in the position of debtor or creditor.
3. There will be complications when you come to sell.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—The geisha girl, who once ruled supreme as Japan's principal entertainer and whose fame has spread so widely that the word geisha appears in most English language dictionaries, is fighting a losing battle against modernism as exemplified by taxi dancing and other westernized forms of entertainment.

Like the jinrikisha, which one rarely sees nowadays in the larger cities, the old type geisha girl is no longer popular in modern Nippon. Unlike the jinrikisha, however, the geisha do not intend to be replaced entirely by western importations.

After putting up a losing battle, they have finally decided to go modern. Hereafter if the public prefers jaz the geisha will give it jaz. If the customer wants his entertainers attired in western clothes rather than in the traditional manner, he will get what he wants.

This is the result of a far reaching decision by the Geisha association. To train the geisha in western ways a school has recently been opened in this city. Here girls are taught the latest American dance steps. While most of the girls still adhere to the kimono, the majority have shifted to the western style of hairdressing. About 1,000 geisha are already enrolled.

Meantime, however, the taxi dance halls and cabarets, which have a good head start on the geisha houses, are filled to capacity each night. Some observers declare it is doubtful whether the geisha girl will ever recapture her popularity.

In the exclusive Shimbashi district, for instance, only about 200 girls of the 1,000 hired are able to fill engagements. Formerly patrons had to plead for the services of these expert entertainers.

The geisha, however, are making a determined effort to win back their customers. Officials of the Geisha association are optimistic. They point to the fact that almost all of the girls are able to master ordinary western dance steps in an hour. At practically all of the large parties many of the girls are to be seen dancing American steps with the guests to the accompaniment of music furnished by an electric phonograph.

The geisha girl readily takes to western forms of dancing. This is because her feet are nimble through years of painstaking dancing apprenticeship. It should be remembered that most of the girls are recruited from the age of 10, or even earlier, and are put through rigorous daily dancing exercises.

The taxi dance halls in Japan differ considerably from such places of entertainment in other countries. A children's dancing party is what most visitors from foreign lands call these halls. Little girls—mostly less than 5 feet 2 inches in height—dance to the latest American melodies.

As the music stops the little girls all hurry to their side of the room. The patrons, who are almost exclusively men, are not permitted to mingle with their partners during intervals.

The discipline of the dance halls corresponds to that maintained in the best girls' seminaries abroad. This is due to the ever watchful police, who, it is said, have an "understanding" with the geisha houses and the owners of the licensed quarters.

All dance halls must close at 11:30 p. m. If any dancer is seen with a man in the street, or even in a taxicab, after closing time she spends the rest of the night at the nearest police station. This rule is strictly enforced.

THE TREND OF LOCAL TAXES.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—I do not think enough attention is being paid by your paper to the increase of taxes which the metropolitan area of Chicago is now experiencing, and the greatest abuse seems to be in the board of education.

Taxes for the years 1932-'33 were cut 40 per cent, of which the state tax, eliminated by the governor, was 10 per cent, so the net cut for the local government was 30 per cent. The 1934 taxes are up 10 per cent and the 1935 taxes will be up another 10 per cent, or back to 85 per cent of the 1931 taxes. The 1936 taxes, tentatively, will be raised considerably, and probably will be as high as the 1931 taxes.

As a practical mortgage man I believe 25 per cent of the foreclosures in this area were caused by excessive taxes and the resultant discouragement of home owners. With the cut in taxes they took heart and borrowed money from friends or on their properties. Every cut in taxes of $1 could be capitalized at $10 and gave a borrowing value of $6 to help pay the taxes. With the raise in 1934 and another raise in 1935 the spirit of discouragement is again appearing among property owners in spite of the much better situation in real estate as regards occupancy and collections, although rent raises have been negligible.

I particularly call your attention to the $13,000,000 tentatively appropriated by the board of education for new school buildings in 1936, most of which is for elementary schools, although the board of education says there are fewer pupils in the elementary schools this year than last and only a few more in the high schools.

Incidentally, comparative figures for the years 1931-'32 in the 1934 Daily News Almanac [page 381] show that the maintenance costs and operating costs of the public schools in Chicago run from 50 to 100 per cent higher here than in cities like New York. I think these matters should be given considerable publicity and the board urged to keep its appropriations down or we will run into another tax squeeze and possibly a tax strike.

TURN THE RASCALS OUT.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—After reading your editorial "Turn the Rascals Out" I felt it my duty as a citizen and business man to express my admiration for your fearless statement of conditions and the remedies suggested in that editorial. I wish it could be read by every thinking citizen. If we are loyal to this great nation of ours we need to think of such things.

G. F. ROBERTS.

Toulon, Ill., Jan. 1.—Your editorial "Turn the Rascals Out" is highly fitting and proper, and the placing of this slogan in THE TRIBUNE's platform of 1936 is justified. This is the time to handle those fellows without gloves. The day for compromising and lukewarm opposition to their now evident malicious and gleeful subversion of the public's welfare is over.

L.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—To your new platform and your New Year's editorial on turning the rascals out, I say bunk, trash, and applesauce. The American people are gullible, but you presume too much on the extent of their gullibility and credit them with too little intelligence if you expect them to swallow your outpourings of gall, partisan fury, fraud, and deceit as truth. THE TRIBUNE is the lobbyist of the rich, the powerful, and the agent of those who wish to continue the industrial iniquities of the past against the mass of the American people. You are the spokesman and propagandist of a few commercial, financial and industrial oligarchies who would move heaven and earth to continue their oppressive tyrannical autocracy and overlordship of the American worker and farmer. Their counsels despite your heroic propaganda in their behalf shall not prevail.

MYRON NEDWICK.

THE PRICE OF MEAT.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Mr. Charles Day Moore, through your column, takes exception to my criticism of the administration's policy of scarcity, on account of which the American public in 1935, with 15 per cent less income from handling meat products, bought 4 per cent less meat but paid 22 per cent more for it than in 1934. Mr. Moore says the administration should not be held accountable, as the shortage was "probably due to the drouth."

"Let's look at the record." According to figures just given out by the Institute of American Meat Packers, meat production in 1935 shows a decrease in beef, veal, and lamb of 7 per cent, while the decrease in pork, affected both by the drouth and the administration's policy, was 40 per cent. That seems to answer Mr. Moore's "probably."

Again, if the situation was due to the drouth, what right have Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Wallace to continually pat themselves on the back for having brought about higher prices to the producer?

What they have been trying to do, and succeeding with the gullible, is to make the public believe that the increase in the price of live stock to the producer is due to their slaughter of pigs, while the higher prices for meat paid by the consumer and the decrease in the amount of meat Americans have had to eat are chargeable to the drouth.

They have said nothing about the 15 per cent decrease in income to the handlers of meat products.

This is just another example of the honesty and consistency of the New Deal.

G. H. VAN CLEVE.

THEY LIKE IT THERE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—In this morning's TRIBUNE there is a letter signed by Louise Whittaker which deals with the conditions of certain people living just outside the village of Lyons. The letter states that "most of these people were employed before the depression and have been unable to obtain adequate assistance since losing their jobs."

For the information of your readers relief is extended to persons living in this area by the Brookfield office of the Cook County Relief administration of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Relief, as in all cases, is extended on the basis of need. The number of families being cared for in this area varies, but it averages from fifteen to twenty per month. The amount and type of relief is determined in each case on the basis of the particular family's needs.

Your correspondent states that these people live almost entirely on food salvaged from the Chicago garbage dump. Case workers report that while these families do salvage food from the dump, they use it for feeding chickens and geese which they raise as a means of supplying a part of their food needs. Case workers have urged some of these families to move to more habitable quarters, but they have been unwilling to do so.

LEO M. LYONS,
Executive Secretary, Illinois Emergency Relief Commission.

NAMELESS STREETS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—What difference does it make what names the city fathers give the streets of Chicago? There are so few signs with any names on at all that you have to go in and ask the corner druggist or groceryman what street his business is located on and possibly it may be the one you are searching for. During the two years of the Fair I rented rooms to tourists and they said Chicago had the poorest street naming system in the whole of the United States. E. L. K.

HOOVER CHIDES ROOSEVELT FOR 'INCITING FEAR'

Resents All Critics Being Branded "Wicked."

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight characterized President Roosevelt's message to congress as "a good sample of the political method of accusing every one as being terribly wicked and corrupt who objects to the many departures of the New Deal" from proper national objectives and ideals.

Accompanied by a secretary, Mr. Hoover was en route from his home at Palo Alto, Cal., to New York City to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance company next Wednesday.

He issued a typewritten statement which said:

"Mr. Roosevelt's message on the state of the nation might have been entitled 'War on Earth and Ill Will Among Men.' It was a good oratorical word picture of proper national objectives and ideals, and a good sample of the political method of accusing every one as being terribly wicked and corrupt who objects to the many departures of the New Deal from these objectives and ideals.

Assails Coercion of Citizens.

"It also embraced the familiar theme that before the date of creation was moved to March 4, 1933, 'the world was without form and void.'

"A few samples of the many departures from the ideals stated might be cited. The President said: 'I, the executive . . . established a due relationship between government and people. They were an appeal from . . . the clamor of partisan interest to the ideal of public interest.'

"The disregard of the nonpartisan civil service and the horde of 250,000 spoils appointees seem to leave something lacking in the fruition of this ideal.

"The warning that 'the only thing to fear is fear' has daily practical reminders, as we witnessed for the first time in American history the administrative official using fear to coerce the common man.

"Bogey to Create Fear."

"The President implies that prior to the creative era, the unemployed were dependent upon inadequate private charity and that some new unknown wicked person wants to consign them back to such a state. The fact is that they were adequately cared for almost wholly by federal, state and local public funds, but under local administration and responsibility. Having violated that ideal of American government, and being in a stupendous mess, a bogey is set up to create fear in those on relief.

"The most ominous note of all was the President's warning that the power he has assumed would be dangerous in other hands. 'In 34 months,' he say, 'we have built up new instruments of public power. In the hands of the people's government, this power is wholesome and proper.'

"It just happens that the ideal upon which our government was founded, and hitherto conducted, is that it is dangerous to the people to have any man possess such powers, or to allow any man to thus aspire to personal government instead of a government of laws.

Abnormal Powers Disquieting.

"The question is not that these powers, having been created and now in the hands of the good, might be transferred to the hands of the wicked, if the New Deal is not continued; it is that they never should be possessed by anybody in these United States."

After attending the board meeting in New York, Mr. Hoover will go to Lincoln, Neb., to deliver an address Jan. 16 on "agricultural." He declined to indicate its nature but said, "that's the fourth, you know." He previously has made three speeches criticizing the Democratic administration.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, boarded Mr. Hoover's train here tonight en route to Washington from California, and invited the former President to have dinner with him. The former President said he accepted the invitation.

REMBRANDT DUE HERE TODAY FOR INSTITUTE SHOW

Rembrandt's $750,000 painting, "Christ at Emmaus," is scheduled to arrive in Chicago today from the Louvre in Paris, according to the latest information received by directors of the Chicago Art institute. At the institute, where it will be taken under armed guard, the canvas will remain for two weeks as the feature attraction of one of the most valuable collections of Rembrandt's work and that of his pupils ever to be placed on exhibition. Originally the picture was scheduled to be in Chicago Dec. 12, but because of a mistake in Paris its shipment was delayed.

DEMOCRATS WILL ATTEMPT TO EAT DEBT OF PARTY

Jackson Dinners to Cost $1.25 to $50 Plate.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Democratic party wil try to eat itself out of debt Wednesday night.

Throughout the nation party members and guests will sit down almost simultaneously to approximately 2,500 "Jackson day" dinners.

Sponsored by the Young Democratic clubs of America the dinners will range in price per Democrat from $50 here to $1.25 in a small South Dakota town.

Frank Wickem, president of the Young Democratic clubs said 250,000 tickets are in the mails and an additional 50,000 will go out this week.

Speech Due with Fish.

The dinners have been arranged so President Roosevelt's address at 10 p. m. [E. S. T.] will reach the diners while they're all at the table. Democrats in California will hear his words with the fish course, while in the east they should be hearing him about demitasse time.

The Young Democratic clubs are trying to make it clear that when a Democrat pays $50, or $10, or $1.25 a plate he won't get that much to eat. The party gets $45 of the $50, $7.50 of the $10 and so on.

Plenty to Eat.

To onlookers however, the $50 menu is nothing to dismiss lightly. It is:

Tomato stuffed with fresh lobster
Crab flake with Russian dressing
Diamond backed terrapin soup au madere rastegais
Heart of capon with Irish bacon, southern style
Broccoli polonaise
Rice croquette with grape jelly
Heart of romaine with hearts of palm
Artichoke and alligator pear with Lorenzo dressing
Graham bread and cheese sandwiches.
Coupe of fresh strawberries with nougat ice cream Chantilly
Gateau Jackson
Demitasse

The reason the dinners are being held on Jan. 8 is because that's the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans when Jackson defeated the British.

The Young Democrats are hopeful of raising $500,000 by the dinners. The party has a 1935 balance of $22,711, but it still has unpaid obligations from previous campaigns amounting to $401,315.

G. O. P. TO EXTEND ANTI - ROOSEVELT PLEDGE CAMPAIGN

Extension into the country towns of Cook county of the activities of the Republican reorganization committee, which centers around the gathering of cards pledging voters to oppose President Roosevelt and Gov. Horner, will be begun at a dinner meeting at Henrici's restaurant tonight.

The speakers will be Police Magistrate George F. Lee of Maywood, Forest F. Coburn, president of Broadview; Maurice M. Shay, former mayor of Berwyn; George W. Berns of Cicero, and John P. Mack of Riverside. A. W. Komarek of Riverside will be the chairman. Residents of the suburbs are invited to attend.

The post-holiday luncheons of the Republican Round Table will be resumed this week, with Laurens M. Hamilton, a member of the New York general assembly, as the speaker. The meeting, instead of on the customary Wednesday, will be on Thursday in order that the speaker may comment on President Roosevelt's Jackson day speech Wednesday night. The speaker is a great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

City Farmers.

DURING the last two years the Tribune Experimental farms have been credited with having stimulated a new interest in farming, especially among city readers of this column and among farm visitors. Today hundreds of business men in the loop district of Chicago own farms and ranches in various parts of the United States.

The interest of these people in farming apparently goes much deeper than investing their money in land. Running a farm, although often miles away from their loop offices, has become a serious business with many, an avocation that takes first place with hundreds, while with others it is a hobby. Chicago and Chicagoans are closely linked with the soil; much of the city's wealth is from the soil, and it is only natural that the inhabitants have a genuine interest in agriculture.

In times like these it is not unusual for men and women of the city to look for places to invest their money, places to spend their time in a fascinating business.

Seventy-seven years ago Joseph Medill, then editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, wrote of agriculture and reflected the city's attitude toward farming back in those days. In an old brown volume of clippings of stories written by Mr. Medill there appears the following article under the title "Dignity of Agriculture," which should cause city farm owners to have a keener appreciation of their land:

"The farmer's avocation is the natural avocation of mankind. In the catalog of professions it is the only one which has roots penetrating into the ground. All others are merely grafted upon its branches. Man instinctively yearns after his natural employment. Ask the lawyer, or the merchant, or the banker, or the doctor whether or not he intends to continue in the same business all his days and, nine cases in ten, he will tell you that he intends to spend his declining years in the peace and quiet of rural life. They follow their various pursuits, not because they love them, but because they desire rapidly, and without severe labor, to accumulate wealth with which to purchase those comforts which can be found nowhere but on a farm.

"How many farmers, in the winter of their days, intend to become doctors, or bankers, or merchants, or lawyers? The bare mention of such an idea seems monstrous. And yet there are hundreds of young men—sons of farmers and grandsons of farmers—who pant for an opportunity to learn the art of measuring calico or to become experts in the science of defending law breakers.

"Their fathers are apt to charge this unnatural craving to a restless and unhappy disposition or to a desire to shirk hard labor, but the real cause is want of interest in their daily occupation, in consequence of the lack of well sustained agricultural associations and well sustained agricultural papers—those two chief promoters of that noble pursuit which is the foster-mother of honesty, the nursery of genius, the greatness of a nation, the peace of a community, the happiness of an individual, the hope of the world."

Then under a subhead, "Antiquity of Agriculture," appeared this comment by Mr. Medill:

"Agriculture is the foster-mother of all other occupations and professions. The first labor performed by man was in the cultivation of the earth. It always has been the most important avocation of our race; and if, in the final consummation of human destiny, there should be a gradual cessation of industrial pursuits, and a gradual extinction of the species, the last labor performed would be in farming, and the last man would be a farmer.

"How apt is the resemblance between the life of a man and the life of the world! Man's better parts are the first developed. His earliest attachment is for his mother. This attachment is mixed with a feeling of dependence, and when he dies his higher and nobler faculties outlive all the rest."

FARMER-LABOR EDITOR TO GET HEARING TODAY

Liggett Widow Charges Criminal Libel.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edith Liggett, widow of the slain Walter Liggett, publisher of a crusading weekly newspaper of Minneapolis, is to appear tomorrow in a St. Paul magistrate's court as the complaining witness against Henry G. Teigan, editor of the Minnesota Leader, organ of the Farmer-Labor party in this state. Teigan is charged with criminal libel of the memory of Walter Liggett, who was murdered by gunmen here Dec. 9.

Charges against Teigan are based upon statements made by Teigan in an article printed in the Leader immediately following the death last week of United States Senator Thomas D. Schall of injuries received in an automobile accident near Washington.

In the article the Leader said it was "unmasking" Walter Liggett's bitter attacks upon Gov. Floyd B. Olson as Republican party propaganda.

The story stated Schall and his adherents were financing the paper solely to disseminate "vicious and untrue" charges against the governor. I added that Schall and Republican leaders paid money to Liggett for this purpose.

Teigan is at liberty under a $2,000 bond posted last week when he appeared to surrender voluntarily to the warant obtained by Mrs. Liggett. He said today he was prepared to prove every statement his paper printed.

Attorneys said today that under Minnesota law circulation of statements—whether true or not—about a dead person which tend to discredit him, constitutes libel. This law was passed on the theory that the dead man is unable to protect himself by replying to such statements.

CHARGE REDS USE SCOTTSBORO CASE TO BOOST PARTY

Decatur, Ala., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A charge that the Scottsboro case is being exploited by communist organizers in a revival of efforts to gain converts in Alabama was made today on the eve of the reappearance in court of the nine colored defendants accused of attacking two white women.

The defendants will enter pleas here tomorrow to new indictments at re-arraignment proceedings, preliminary to retrial of the case.

Detective J. T. Moser of the police force at Birmingham, where the prisoners have been held in jail, said approach of the trials has brought renewed activity among organizers of the communist party who he said were attempting to gain members among colored persons there and among south Alabama sharecroppers.

The new indictments in the Scottsboro case were returned recently by a Jackson county grand jury, upon which a colored man sat for the first time in sixty years.

In a decision last April the United States Supreme court handed the case back to the Alabama courts on grounds of "systematic exclusion" of colored men from juries.

I SIMPLY COULD NOT KEEP WARM WITH GAS—SO HAD IT TAKEN OUT

This is a recent photo of Mrs. Grace P. McKinney of Wilmette. She tried gas heat but had to have it taken out. Couldn't keep warm. See her letter above.

"I simply could not keep warm with gas—so had it taken out. Gas was uneven, unsatisfactory, and terribly expensive. Our bill for gas heating and burner rental, winter of 1934-35 was $151.38. We keep good and warm all winter with coal for not more than $95.00."

Grace P. McKinney

HUNDREDS REPORT FAILURE OF GAS HEAT

Gas Bills Staggered Them

SPACIOUS HOME—We bought a house with a gas burner in it and decided to give it a trial. We were staggered by the first month's bill. The second was even worse. Had to shut off heat from various rooms. What a winter! Shivering in the bedrooms, shivering in the living rooms. Over the bitter protests of the gas people we put in a coal furnace. For our year with coal heat we spent only $72.00 for coal. —Mrs. W. Zei, 4432 N. Mozart St., Chgo, Ill.

Gas No Cleaner Than Coal

FIVE ROOM HOUSE—I failed to notice where gas was cleaner than coal. Had it taken out. For one month gas cost us $30.52. Average cost of coal for the last eight years is only $80.00 a year.—E. Langer, 3215 N. Opal Ave., Chgo, Ill.

SOUTH SIDE

Gas Was Too Expensive

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—Gas was not satisfactory and was too expensive. I had it removed. Our four months' trial cost us $90.00, but coal or coke heats the bungalow for the whole season for only $65.00.—A. Helbling, 9927 S. Lowe Ave., Chgo, Ill.

No Heat On Second Floor With Gas

TWO STORY HOUSE—With gas heat I could never get heat on the second floor and had to use coal for hot water besides. Gas bills ran $42.00 to $53.00 per month, coal bill for entire season was never more than $150.00 and we always had plenty of heat and hot water.—Mrs. L. Jensen, 6512 S. Morgan St., Chgo, Ill.

So Cold With Gas Threatened to Move

EIGHT ROOM HOUSE—With gas our house was so cold I told the landlady we would have to move. However, she had the gas heater removed and put in coal and coke and we are comfortable. Gas cost her $150.00 for six months, while coal cost her only $60.00 for the same period.—O. Olson, 6506 Greenwood Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Would Not Heat Floors

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—We tried gas for fuel. The air only was heated and not the walls. Consequently, when the burner shut off the house cooled immediately. The cost of gas was actually double that of coal and we were not really warm.—Mrs. W. Franz, 1310 W. 98th St., Chgo, Ill.

Why 2 Out of 3 Go Back to Coal

SIX ROOM FLAT—I soon found out why every two out of three people who tried gas were returning to coal. Gas cost me $80.00 for the season, for which I could have had three winters' supply of coal.—C. Egbert, 7129 S. May St., Chgo, Ill.

Had to Go to Bed to Keep Warm With Gas Heat

HOUSE AND STORE—When we used gas we had to put on our coats to keep warm and finally had to crawl into bed because it was so cold. We changed back to coal again and have always been comfortable.—Gloria McNeal, 4922 Vincennes, Chgo, Ill.

Gas a Hopeless Makeshift for Heating

SOUTH SIDE HOUSE—We had gas for two months and kicked it out because it was a hopeless makeshift for heating. When we put coke back in, it seemed like going into a house after living in a tent.—C. Addington, 4352 S. Wells St., Chgo, Ill.

Gas a Failure in Zero Weather

CHICAGO APARTMENT—With gas heat when it got below zero, 52° was the most heat we got. With coal we could always get the temperature as hot as we wanted. Gas heat cost me double the amount of coal.—P. Trainor, 326 W. 60th Pl., Chgo, Ill.

Never Warm With Gas—Bills Exorbitant

UPPER FLAT OF TWO FLAT BUILDING —Was never warm with gas and bills were exorbitant. Had it taken out. Gas heat cost for a season $223.12. Coke heat only cost me $80.00.—Mrs. M. Wilhelmy, 304 W. 118th St., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Heat Cost Double

FIVE ROOM BRICK COTTAGE—Last winter I had gas heat installed, but heating cost almost double and still we didn't have the comfort that coke gave us. Gas cost us $120.00. Coke would only average $63.00 a year over a period of nine years.—F. Arndt, 6522 S. Marshfield Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Never Warm in Zero Weather With Gas

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—No trouble in below zero weather to keep the house warm with coal, which I can truthfully say I could not do with gas. I tried gas for three years. For the past two years I have used coal at an average yearly cost of only $54.93.—F. Schmidt, 8007 Kimbark Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Struggled Through a Winter of Gas Heat

THREE ROOM FLAT—I was misled by the alleged wonders of gas heat. I struggled through a winter of it but its cost was approximately $70.00. Coal cost me only $55.00 for the same period in a 6-room cottage and is more satisfactory.—C. Scherdin, 4409 Shields Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Bills So High Had to Move

CHICAGO HOUSE—We moved into a place that had a gas furnace. To our sorrow our gas bills were so much more that we had to move out as soon as our lease was up.—Mrs. F. Patett, 1409 E. Marquette Rd., Chgo, Ill.

No Hot Water With Gas Heat

SOUTH SIDE HOUSE—With gas my home was not warm and at times it was cold. Besides we always had to use the gas heater to get hot water. Not so with coal. Gas was too expensive—$185.00—so I have gone back to coal. —W. Beam, 7825 S. May St., Chgo, Ill.

Back to Coal and Comfort

SIX ROOM HOUSE—Gas cost us $74.42 from August, 1934, to January 4, 1935, and we were not even comfortable. Then I got five tons of good old Pocahontas Mine Run, costing $41.00, and we are not only enjoying comfort, but will have enough left to heat water all summer.—Mrs. E. Hollingshead, 7113 S. Union Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Two Months of Gas Would Have Paid Whole Winter Coal Bill

SEVEN ROOM HOUSE—I found out to my sorrow that the cost of gas was too high so I changed back to coal. My gas bill for two months was $48.92 which would almost have paid for coal for the entire heating season (7 tons of Pocahontas) total, $50.75—A. Breski, 3523 S. Francisco Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Was Not Clean

SOUTH SIDE HOUSE—I found gas no cleaner than coke and some grades of coal. Besides gas cost me $175.00 a year while for sixteen years I burned soft coal at a yearly cost of $75.00.—J. Hough, 143 W. 107th St., Chgo, Ill.

Persuaded By Gas Salesman

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—Persuaded by the blandishments of a gas salesman, I fell for the installation of gas heat. Whew! It cost me $133.83 for a five months' period. Had I burned coal as formerly my heating cost would only have been $48.00 for the same period.—Mrs. L. Coykendall, 8125 Manistee Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Had to Launder Curtains 4 Times in 3 Months With Gas Heat

TEN ROOM HOUSE—In the three months we had gas heat we had to launder the curtains four times. Coal is cleaner, cheaper, more reliable. Since going back to coal it has only cost us $12.00 in seven weeks, but gas for heating and cooking and rental of burner made our bill $50.80 for only one month.—Mrs. E. Gillespie, 8145 S. Elizabeth, Chgo, Ill.

Tenants Complained About Cold—With Gas Heat

TWO FLAT HOUSE—With gas heat my tenants complained about the cold so much that I got good and angry with them and would have liked to have gone after my friend, who persuaded me to use gas heat, with a gun. So I changed back to coal and saved $20.00 a month, and have a nice, comfortably heated home.—S. LaGila, 4952 S. Kolin Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Suffered From Cold With Gas Heat

FIVE ROOM HOUSE—We tried gas heat and were disappointed as we never suffered so much cold before. The cost of gas for about six months, including rental, was $121.32. This year my coal bill was $73.50—some difference!—Mrs. L. Bissonnette, 9745 Winston Ave., Chgo, Ill.

WEST SIDE

Kept Overshoes On With Gas Heat

MILK DEPOT AND LIVING QUARTERS —With gas heat whenever we had company everybody had to keep their overshoes and coats on. Gas for February cost $33.45 and I also got a bill for rental on heater. The month of January when we had zero weather we didn't burn $10.00 worth of coal.—Mrs. J. Stranske, 249 N. Crawford Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Too Cold to Take a Bath

TWO FLAT BUILDING—With gas heat we couldn't get the temperature over 60 degrees on the first floor; on the second it was so cold you couldn't take a bath. Gas cost me $22.00 to $28.00 a month; my coal bill only runs to $65.00 a year.—Mrs. R. Poggensee, 2105 N. Mulligan Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Basement Playroom Unbearably Cold With Gas

WEST SIDE HOUSE—Even at double the cost of coal we were unable to keep our home comfortably warm with gas heat. With gas my family was perched around the registers trying to keep warm and our basement playroom was unbearably cold.—E. Roberts, 1824 N. Kimball Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Cost 3 Times As Much As Coal

FURNACE HEATED HOUSE—I tried gas but it cost me about three times as much as coal and we were never comfortable.—O. Schwartz, 2418 Nordica Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Prefers Bin Full of Coal

WEST SIDE HOUSE—Give me a shovel and a bin full of coal any old time in preference to gas. I paid $48.04 for two months' gas heat, but coal heat for an entire season only cost me $72.12.—Mrs. J. Freeman, 2952 N. Meade Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Too Expensive for Employed Couple

FURNACE HEAT—As my wife and I are both employed, we thought gas heat would be a good thing to try, but took it out because it was too expensive. Six months' comparison is as follows: Cost of gas heat, November to April, $155.68; cost of coke, same period, about $72.51.—W. Swager, 818 S. Keeler Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Had to Use Christmas Money for Gas Bills

FOUR ROOM APARTMENT—How would you like to spend your Christmas money for gas bills and let your children go without presents? If you yearn for that, you may have my gas steam radiator, and welcome! I got the gas bill down to $12.47 for one room only, but went back to the economy and satisfaction of coal, which costs about $5.00 per month for all four rooms.—Esther Clark, 643 N. Troy St., Chgo, Ill.

Had to Wear Sweater With Gas Heat

SMALL HOUSE—A high pressure salesman sold me on gas, but I could never get temperature over 68° and had to wear a heavy sweater all winter to keep warm. Gas bill each month was over $30.00—three times more than my coal bill.—Mrs. S. Putnoski, 2517 Colvin, Chgo, Ill.

Gas Heat Sweats the Windows

APARTMENT BUILDING—I found that heat from gas or oil goes only a short distance from the register. They do not heat the floor. Gas sweats the windows so much you can find a pool of water on the window shelf at all times.—Miss C. Briggs, 2130 Washington Blvd., Chgo, Ill.

Coal Is More Satisfactory and Economical for Heating Water

TWO FLAT BUILDING—I know that coal is the most satisfactory and economical for heating water. I tried gas and it required from $12.00 to $15.00 worth of gas per month just to have hot water, while $5.00 is sufficient for coal.—Mrs. C. Olsen, 216 N. Lamon Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Cost of Gas Exceeded Estimate

SIX ROOM FLAT—Gas heat was estimated for my house not to exceed $125.00 for the season. The first three months was $150.00. If I had continued, it would have been over $400.00. Coal costs less than $100.00 a season. —Dr. Haller, 1253 N. Central Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Couldn't Open Front Door

EIGHT ROOM HOUSE—Not only is it expensive but to try to keep the house warm was some problem. When we had gas if you opened the door for two minutes to talk to the mailman you would have to sit for an hour later with your coat on.—F. Lamey, 5249 W. Monroe St., Chgo, Ill.

SUBURBS

Heat Not Uniform With Gas

FIVE ROOM BRICK BUNGALOW—The gas and oil people all harp on the subject of uniform heat which I say you do not get with either one. Gas heat cost me $330.30 in the 1930-31 season. The next winter I used coal and it cost me $72.00. Coal saved me $258.30. They estimated $162.00 at new rates and I laughed at them.—J. Coles, 807 Marvin Parkway, Park Ridge, Ill.

Gas Heat Rusted Boiler

SUBURBAN HOUSE—We tried gas, but found that the quick changes caused condensation inside the boiler which rusted our stack and the boiler as well, so we took it out. Gas cost us about $40.00 per month for a six months' trial. Coke cost about $14.50 per month in zero weather.—R. Ohneth, 1136 Greenleaf Ave., Wilmette, Ill.

Gas Heat Falls in Spite of Insulation

INSULATED SUBURBAN HOUSE—Although especially constructed to retain every possible bit of heat, we had to move because gas couldn't keep us warm. Gas cost for 4½ months was $77.82—twice what coal would have cost.—Mrs. L. Wickizer, 4713 Middaugh Ave., Downers Grove, Ill.

Even Bought Gas Furnace for $350, But Couldn't Keep Warm

EIGHT ROOM HOUSE—I could not get enough heat to keep us warm with gas heat. After two years of patience I had gas furnace disconnected and installed coal heat. I paid $350.00 for the gas furnace alone. Back to comfort and economy with coal—only $96.00 per year now to heat our home.—J. Huxtable, 431 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill.

Could Heat Only 4 Rooms With Gas

SIX ROOM HOUSE—I tried gas heat and although I could heat only four of our six rooms at 70° the bill was $121.40 from September 14 to March 19. I am now enjoying coal heat which heats all six rooms at 80° which my wife likes. I find coal as clean as gas and much less expensive.—A. Gunther, 1115 S. Ridgeland, Oak Park, Ill.

Impossible to Get 70° With Gas

FIVE ROOM BRICK BUNGALOW—It was impossible on cold days to warm the house to 70° with gas heat, but with coal heat it is as easy to keep warm in extremely cold weather as in mild weather. Gas cost us $163.30 for nine months; coal cost for the entire winter was $72.06.—R. Penzel, 3603 S. Gunderson Ave., Berwyn, Ill.

Upstairs Was Cold With Gas

EIGHT ROOM HOUSE—I gave gas two months' trial, but could not keep the upstairs warm. Back to coke at less cost, and we enjoyed the rest of the winter months in an even heat.—Mrs. M. Vates, 274 Indiana St., Elmhurst, Ill.

Prefers Old Coat to Gas Heat

SMALL STORE—I would prefer my old coat to gas heat. Gas cost me $144.22 for five and one-half months and there was no heat from 11:00 P. M. to 7:00 A. M. With coal it cost only $75.00 to $80.00 for about the same period and we had heat all the time.—G. Kraemer, Box 12, Hazel Crest, Ill.

City-wide Disapproval of Gas Heat Is Indicated by Letters from Every Section

From every section of the vast area of Chicago, have come hundreds of letters to the Chicago Coal Merchants Association stating that gas has failed to cope with a Chicago winter. In addition to those who have taken the trouble to write to the Association, how many more who have not actually written letters about it, must be equally dissatisfied with their gas experiment?

This city-wide disapproval of gas as a heating fuel, based on practical experiences, should serve as a warning to anyone who might be thinking of risking his money and the comfort of his family by changing from coal or coke.

NORTH SIDE

Could Not Afford Necessities of Life On Account of Gas Bills

EIGHT ROOM HOUSE—Tried gas but cannot allow myself the necessities of life due to the enormous bills. I am putting in coal again because it costs only $120.00 a year, while gas bills are $45.00 to $50.00 monthly.—Mrs. E. Gorr, 1256 Early Ave., Chgo, Ill.

House Not Comfortable During Gas Heat

EIGHT ROOM BRICK HOUSE—House was not really comfortable with thermostat set at 70 during gas heat. Gas for nine months cost us $266.00; coal cost us, with janitor service, $95.00.—Mrs. M. Hartenfeld, 1317 Pratt Blvd., Chgo, Ill.

No Odor from Coal

SIX ROOM BUNGALOW—From November 12 to April 30, our gas heat cost us $160.67, or $30.00 per month (not including the extra cost of the installation and rental of equipment.) Coal costs us on an average of $18.00 per month, gives us longer term of seasonal service, better heat, no odor.—Mrs. S. McGowan, 2940 Chase Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Pleasures of a Coal Fire

RENTED HOUSE—One year we rented a gas heated house and it cost exactly twice as much each month for fuel as when we heated with coal. So we moved back to a coal heated house. Our lovely coal-burning fireplace gives the family so much pleasure that could not be had with gas heat; popping corn, toasting wieners and marshmallows over the glowing coal.—Mrs. J. Kiebel, 1918 Leland Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Had Gas Taken Out—Too Expensive

THREE ROOM BASEMENT FLAT—I tried gas, but had it taken out. It cost me $98.88 for a little over three months. Coke heat for the same period is about $40.00.—Mrs. H. Yeager, 1829 Cornelia Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Going Full Blast—But Tenants Complained

ROOMING HOUSE—Our tenants complained all the time of not having any heat when we had the gas burner burning full blast, so we had the gas burner taken out and are burning coal. Gas cost us $2.50 per day. Coal costs only $1.25 per day.—A. Mikol, 1618 Fullerton Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Could Not Get More Than 68° With Gas

TWO FLAT BUILDING—I am one who was fooled by the full-page gas ads. I put in gas, but from the time it was put in I had men day and night regulating this and that and they failed to get the temperature above 68°, and most of the time it was 64°. Now we are back to coal again and are warm and happy.—C. Worthington, 6914 N. Artesian Ave., Chgo, Ill.

One Half Cheaper to Heat With Coal

TRIED GAS—After heating with coal for over 50 years we decided to try gas. Before four months of winter were over our gas bill was about $170.00 but we were not as comfortable as with coal. It is over one-half cheaper to heat with coal. You always have the comfort you want heating with coal and coke compared to terrible bills of other fuels.—Mrs. J. Freis, 6035 N. Talman Ave., Chgo, Ill.

A Good Joke

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—I laughed at my brother for having bought a refrigerator —it seemed so unnecessary with gas heat.—Miss M. Hanifin, 454 Melrose St., Chgo, Ill.

Gas Costs Double for Office

BUSINESS OFFICE—I was sold on the idea of using gas as a fuel to heat my office. In three months we used $72.83 worth of gas compared with $30.75 worth of coal for the same period the previous year.—H. Kastens, 1776 N. Ogden Ave., Chgo, Ill.

First You Roast and Then You Freeze With Gas

CHICAGO APARTMENT—No more gas heat for me. It roasts you out for about an hour and then you freeze for about six hours. Coal heat is nice and dry, but gas heat was terrible.—Martha Blum, 2422 Greenview Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Use of Coal Gives Employment

SEVEN ROOM HOUSE—My gas expense is over and I am burning coal again and talking coal. Five months of gas cost me $251.08. With coal I have more heat at much less cost, including employment of a young high school boy to take care of the furnace which gives him a job. —Mrs. A. London, 6 N. Michigan Ave., Chgo, Ill.

NORTHWEST

No Hot Water With Gas

NINE ROOM HOUSE—With gas heat our basement was too cold to be of any use and we got no hot water. It cost us $106.00 from October 1, 1933, to February 6, 1934, while coal (which we have gone back to) runs only $90.00 for the whole winter.—Mrs. C. Donaghy, 5054 Winona St., Chgo, Ill.

Basement Playroom a Fairy Tale

LARGE HOUSE WITH BASEMENT—You ought to investigate those statements printed in the papers that gas heat makes a comfortable sewing room, work shop or recreation room out of the basement. I don't know how they can stay in the basement. Gas cost me $143.13 for about 3½ months. Coal cost only $90.00 for the season.—J. Finnegan, 5642 Henderson St., Chgo, Ill.

Twice as Much Dirt from Gas Heat

BUNGALOW—This Spring after one year of burning gas I find as much dirt and smudge as after two years of burning coke. Gas for heating my bungalow for 1 year will cost $260.00. This is twice the cost of coke.—Mrs. L. Eckert, 1742 N. New England Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Was Just Miserable With Gas Heat

SMALL APARTMENT—We were never warm, just miserable with gas heat. It cost me $30.00 for two months plus rental for gas and when we went back to coal $30.40 worth of coal lasted me four months.—Mrs. J. Hendry, 3856 Argyle St., Chgo, Ill.

Chill Over Entire House With Gas

SEVEN ROOM BRICK BUNGALOW— With gas heat there was a chill over the entire house after the flame shut off. Had gas removed at request of entire family. Children begged for good old coal. Coal gives us more heat and more even temperature and we save enough by using it to have our home thoroughly cleaned each year.—Mrs. B. Wickert, 6100 Newport Ave., Chgo, Ill.

Coal and Coke Found To Be the Most Satisfactory Fuels for Chicago Homes

Space permits us to reprint only a few out of the many hundreds of letters that Chicago householders have written to the Association. Each letter expresses personal variations of the same basic facts:

1. Gas for heating costs too much—usually about double.
2. Gas does not give enough heat—nor is it steady and even enough for protection against a Chicago winter.
3. Coal or coke are proved by countless practical experiences to be the lowest cost fuels, as well as the most satisfactory.

AUTOMATIC CONTROL—If you desire the convenience of automatic firing, you can get an automatic stoker at moderate cost. It is not necessary to use high-priced, unsatisfactory fuels, to enjoy this comfort. A heat regulator that adjusts the dampers and drafts costs only $17.95 installed.

HEATING IS IMPORTANT—It is essential to proper shelter, one of the prime necessities of life. Phone any coal merchant member of the Association today. He will gladly advise you on the right kind and size of coal or coke for your home, and you can depend on him for good quality, honest weight, proper grading. If you wish to know whether or not your coal merchant is a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association, just phone State 9723.

NAVAL PARLEY RESUMES TODAY WITH PLAIN TALK

See End to Sparring Over Japanese Demands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Plain speaking and definite statements of policy will supersede academic discussion when the naval conference resumes at Clarence House, tomorrow. The end of the week is expected to disclose whether the now hopelessly deadlocked conference produces results.

Hope of reaching an agreement on quantitative [total tonnage] limitation along the lines of the Washington and London treaties, which expire at the end of this year, has been abandoned. Neither the Japanese nor the French will agree to a ratio system. The French are expected to launch their battle for ample security against the new German navy now building.

Say Agreement Possible.

The delegates coming back to London tonight said, however, that there is a definite possibility of an agreement on reduction of the size and cost of future warships and apparently toward this end the conference will aim its efforts next week, barring the success of which they will pack up and go home.

William Phillips, United States undersecretary of state, in any case will depart Jan. 16 for Washington to make a preliminary report to President Roosevelt. Unless the conference gets down to brass tacks this week, Phillips' report, according to the delegates, will be entirely negative.

Since the conference opened Dec. 9 most of the time has been devoted to consideration of the Japanese proposal for a common tonnage ceiling for all first class navies, and the British plan for establishing maximum tonnage figures for the next five years.

French Want Big Ships.

The Japanese plan was rejected outright by all other delegations. The British plan found some favor, but the French want to reduce the proposal so as to declare future building programs for only one year ahead.

The British will argue their case for smaller battleships and cruisers in order to save money. Both the French and Americans oppose reducing the size of battleships and cruisers on the grounds that the larger units are required by countries which do not have naval bases throughout the seven seas.

Norman H. Davis, the chief American delegate, will push the American proposal for a 5 to 20 per cent cut in all fighting fleets. Other points broached will be fortification of the Pacific Islands and humanizing submarine warfare.

U.S. ENVOY VISITS ISHBEL'S PUB AND WISHES HER LUCK

Ye Olde Plow Inn Does a Roaring Business.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SPEEN, Buckinghamshire, England, Jan. 5.—With a steady flow of fashionable visitors, including Ambassador and Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham of the United States, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, is doing a roaring trade as a publican in Ye Olde Plow Inn.

The inn yard was crammed with automobiles until closing time last night and today many cars were stretched along the steep little lane alongside the inn.

The American ambassador and his wife visited the 17th century hostelry to partake of refreshments and convey their wishes for future success to the landlady.

Rooms Are Crowded.

The small chintz curtained rooms with log fires and inglenooks were crowded. In the kitchen the cook, who prepared Ramsay MacDonald's meals when he was prime minister, was roasting joints and baking cakes, while Ishbel, in a serviceable cardigan suit, helped to serve the customers.

"Jock," Miss MacDonald's perky Aberdeen terrier, welcomes all guests at the gate.

Last night Miss MacDonald made her first official appearance in the taproom. A serious game of darts was progressing, but she interrupted the contest to invite every one to "have one on the house."

After C. B. Child, the former landlord, introduced her to all the customers, she brought in foaming tankards and stood beside a settee while the men rose and wished her happiness and prosperity.

"Everything will be all right if you come," she replied simply.

Demand "the Usual."

There were amusing moments when the old country men, who have patronized the inn for years, demanded "the usual" and had to be asked to explain what that was. At present the cook is the only servant from Downing street working in Ye Olde Plow Inn. The housekeeper will arrive later. Meanwhile, Ishbel is being helped by a friend.

While she is proving a big success as the landlady of a country inn, her brother, Malcolm, is faring less well in his chosen career of politics.

Despite the fact that he holds the office of minister of dominions, Malcolm, like his father, who is now lord president of the council, has no seat in parliament owing to his defeat in the general election.

But, whereas Ramsay MacDonald seems a fairly safe bet as a government candidate for the Scottish universities seat, his son is meeting strong opposition from the local Tory association in his efforts to return to Westminster via the Ross and Cromarty by-election. Malcolm, who is standing as a National [government party] candidate, has the backing of the Liberals, but many predict the opposition from the Conservatives may prove too strong for him.

Coloradoan Just Learns Gold Isn't Coin of Realm

Denver, Col., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A perplexed old man wondered why the county treasurer yesterday refused his gold. Refusing the coin, Chief Clerk Dan Horan took the man to the United States mint, where the taxpayer received 10 silver dollars for his gold. He then paid his taxes.

BEGIN HEARINGS THIS MONTH ON BUILDING CODE

Public hearings are to begin late this month on the revision of Chicago's building code, according to Ald. James J. McDermott, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the redraft. The work started eight years ago.

Yesterday F. J. Thielbar, appointed by Mayor Kelly in January, 1934, to head a new commission to complete the code, said there were delays during the last year because the commission learned that in order to round out modern building regulations it was necessary to revise ordinances governing the board of health, the department for the inspection of steam boilers and cooling plants, and the bureau of fire prevention.

The new code is intended to modernize construction practices in Chicago, to set standards for air conditioning and to reduce building costs, according to Mr. Thielbar. He remarked that the draft has been approved by all leading technical engineering societies, including the Illinois Society of Architects, the Western Society of Engineers, the American Institute of Architects, and the Chicago Board of Underwriters.

Recital Trade Revived After Holiday Coma

Artists Win Praise; Some Programs Criticized.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The recital business came to life again yesterday after its holiday coma and made a not too auspicious start on its 1936 career. There can be no legitimate complaint about the quality of the artists themselves, but the programs in which some of them demonstrated their powers offered too many opportunities for criticism to a person who is slightly unbalanced on this particular subject.

The Monday morning paper is no place for another long, ill-tempered diatribe on program making. Therefore, I shall get down to details, and try to stress the high points of the day, taking only as many pot-shots at the artists for their choice of music as I think their patience will bear.

Cyril Pitts, a tenor whom you have probably heard often on the air, made his Chicago recital debut at the Studebaker. His voice is light, but of pleasing texture. He gave an interesting demonstration of the possibility of adapting a microphone technique to the concert hall, keeping his production easy and relaxed, and moderating his climaxes in such a manner that the power required in them fell well within his vocal endowments.

A singer who broadcasts frequently learns to keep the line of his phrases, and to confine his use of dynamics to a comparatively narrow range. This knowledge has a certain value in recital singing, but there is no doubt that it limits the expressiveness of the songs and lessens their dramatic qualities.

The program was arranged in a very scholarly manner, with four groups in the four principal languages of music. I think the details could have been improved, even within this rather pedantic frame, by a more generous measure of familiar songs. Such a revision would not compromise the musical excellence of the program in the least, as long as the revising be done with care and taste. That was a delicious taste of Respighi, by the way, despite its unfamiliarity.

Alexander Corado, a Chicago bass, traced the history of the German lied from about 1815 to the present day in his Kimball hall recital yesterday. He bends his voice skilfully to the task of bringing out the last ounce of dramatic value in a song, and turned in an especially good performance of "The Erl-King." His delineation of the part of the father had nobility and dignity in it. Elizabeth Morris acquitted herself well in the grotesquely difficult accompaniment.

The entire program was in German. For the benefit of those who do not understand the language Estelle Ayer Johnson read a translation before each song.

The recital did not pretend to offer a comprehensive survey of this particular art form, for such names as Schumann, Franck, and Strauss were omitted. Chicago composers were scheduled for some attention in the latter part of the program. ! was surprising to find out how many local musicians have worked in the field of the German lied.

Alberto Salvi's instrumental quintet appeared in the late afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club theater in two large scale ensemble numbers. In addition there were harp solos by this breathtaking virtuoso and an old French sonata by an unusually constituted string quartet.

The complete ensemble consists of harp, flute, violin, viola, and cello. These forces offered Chicago a first performance of Pierne's "Variations Libre et Finale," a work that seems as full of vague, wishful romanticism as the less successful products of Franck, and as busily concerned with that hopeful threshing about in search of what will pass for first rate melodic inspiration.

This type of ensemble, with its immense opportunity for lyric expression of the tenderest kind, seems to have excellent possibilities, but a corps of arrangers must be put to combing the literature of music and adapting genuinely great works for its use. Such a suggestion will enrage musical purists perhaps, but so will the statement that high entertainment value must be built into all concert and recital programs if concerts and recitals are ever going to broaden their present rather limited appeal.

In a Toccata by Alvars, Alberto Salvi gave as astonishing a demonstration of harp virtuosity as you can hope for this side of your celestial home. He has immense fluency and clarity, and a good flair for effectiveness of the legitimate sort. Included in this solo group was a daring attempt to transfer to the harp the "Danse Espagnole" from "La Vida Breve" of De Falla, a piece of music in which sonority plays a great part. The "Moment Musicale" in F Minor falls into the idiom of the harp perfectly, for Schubert seemed to be deploring mildly in this little piece the fact that the piano is, after all, a percussion instrument.

The aggresive Emanuel sisterhood brought Sonia Sharnova of the Chicago City Opera company to Temple Emanuel last night for the second in its series of winter recitals. The organization has worked up great interest in these programs; the temple was filled with a friendly and enthusiastic audience.

Sharnova has voice and personality, and, what is worse, her program structure does not offer the vulnerable points for attack that would give me the opportunity to finish this rather gloomy piece on a note of climax. She salted and peppered her programs with familiar things and kept to a rather high standard of musical excellence throughout the evening.

This contralto, whom you may have seen in the rags of Agnese in "La Fiamma," possesses a big fund of confidence, and her audience is able to relax in the knowledge that whatever she attempts she will do competently. Sharnova does not have to strain after either dramatic or vocal effect, for the drama is natural to her and her voice is well trained and reliable.

The assisting artist last night was Dorys Le Vene Seelig. She received something of an ovation from her hearers for her vigorous G Minor Ballad of Brahms.

Sons—Sculptor—Mail—Letter.

AFTER Josef Lhevinne played on a recent evening at the Renaissance society [the latest distinguished visitor is Abraham Rattner, whose paintings are now on exhibit there] he told a story. It concerned a woman who had ten sons but who never spoke of them. She was, it seemed, not proud of them, and explained why when somebody mentioned her large family to her.

"My first son is a senator," she explained, "and my second is stupid, too. My third son is a minister and a fourth can't make a living, either. My fifth is a banker and the sixth also is in jail. My seventh son won the croix de guerre and my eighth hadn't seen service at the front, either. My ninth son is a pianist and my tenth is a little crazy, too."

ANY romantic oddment is cheering for the new year—so, although it's a little too intimate, perhaps, for a newspaper column, we bulletin that Guitou Knoop, the young sculptor who is here from Paris, dined the other evening with a young American she met in the Greek isles. He saw her name in the newspaper, learned that the young woman with the Dutch, Russian, Swedish and French backgrounds he had met in the Greek isles was in Chicago, and traveled five hours to dine with her.

Miss Knoop, who spends her mornings modeling—she has two Chicago commissions for portrait heads—is still the town's most sought after visitor. Not, however, because she is a celebrity as much as because she is young, gay, simple, intelligent and charming.

IN the morning mail. "Coming from the remote reaches of the gallery in the Auditorium the other evening, I happened to glance at the mail chute which is next to the stairs, and saw another evidence of 'what can you expect from this administration. It was jam packed full of mail! And judging from the dust, and slightly mellow appearance of the envelopes it has been there for some time. . . . Wouldn't it be interesting to know what misfortune was caused by a letter that was never received or what reconciliation was made possible because a note written in the heat of temper was never read? But, then, maybe they all started out 'Please remit. . . .'

JOHN DOHERTY.

THE small son of the present Peruvian ambassador to Washington, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, was in Rome with his parents, and he recorded his impressions in a letter to a Milwaukee aunt, Mrs. Fred Page Tibbits:

"Daddy and mummy went to see the pope yesterday. They brought back many blessings, but I have not seen any. We have been to many broken houses, also to an old circus where the wild beasts of the Roman zoo were given martyrs to eat. In London, tigers and lions are fed on dead horses—daddy says it is nasty. I have many more things to say but cannot remember them.

"Daddy has told me a story about St. Peter and why he died upside down. I like the story.

"When in Venice I gave corn to the pigeons—one burst. It is not true, it is only a joke. Daddy says I must only tell the truth but can have a joke. I like jokes. Frank de Freyre."

3 Charities' Boards Meet Today to Plan Joint Benefit Feb. 6

One of the biggest benefits of the pre-Easter season is announced today by the boards of Emerson house, Madonna center, and Sunset camp. The three organizations jointly are taking over the opening of Saks Fifth Avenue's new store at 669 North Michigan avenue on Feb. 6.

All four floors of the store will be in use that night with fashion shows on the first three and with music, buffet supper and dancing on the top one. A meeting is being held today to make further plans. Mrs. Julius T. Benedict, representing Madonna center on the committee, will be in charge of entertainment; Mrs. Paul Rowan [Lydia Swift], president of Emerson house, will supervise the bar and supper plans, and Mrs. Herbert Friedlich, president of the Sunset Camp league, is ticket chairman.

Good Morning!

A desperate but not very successful attempt, "This Is the Life" to put Jane Withers securely on a starring footing and win sympathy for her.

Janie flashed and sparkled and set folks talking as an imp of Satan in "Bright Eyes," starring Shirley Temple. My impression is that she would have more than held her own had her sponsors continued to cast her in this sort of rôle—which she did quite as easily and naturally as Shirley does her lovable youngster parts.

But no—they had to try and make another Shirley of Jane—and it just hasn't worked.

"This Is the Life" tells a trite, synthetic yarn that will be regarded with boredom by adults and intelligent children.

Jane is discovered as a youthful prodigy who heads a vaudeville act. She is cruelly exploited by her adopted parents who regard her only as a meal ticket and who treat her as Cinderella was treated by her mean stepmamma.

One evening as the small star is dining alone in her dressing room, an escaped prisoner [innocent of the crime he's been serving time for] comes through her window. . . . Jane binds up his wounds, assists him to escape—and runs away to join him. Because she doesn't like to be an actress. She just wants to have fun like other little girls. . . . The rest of the story is concerned with the adventures of the two, their capture, Michael Grant's vindication, and the ruse by which the cruel guardians are finally put to rout.

H. E.

Jane, who is built like a small gladiator, works hard. Far too hard. She's a clever, likable youngster and given the right sort of chance would undoubtedly make good.

John McGuire plays Michael unremarkably. Sidney Toler, Emma Dunn and Francis Ford endeavor, with occasional success, to give the piece a lift.

[I've just hated writing this review.]

See you soon!

Holidays' End Starts Exodus to Warm Seas

Southern Hemisphere to Draw Unusual Number.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOW that autumn benefits and the holiday festivities are a thing of the past, almost every one who is free to go seems to be planning to leave in search of relaxation from snows and thaws.

The enchanted islands of the Caribbean and the Pacific are, as always, the most popular destinations, but this year there are more than the usual number of travelers going to the southern hemisphere.

A former Chicagoan, Mrs. Jesse Spalding of New York, who has been at the Ambassador East for the last week seeing relatives and old friends, is leaving Saturday for Los Angeles, where she will sail for Honolulu. Her sons, Jesse III. and John, are returning east to school, but her daughters, Jane and Joy, will go with her.

Also accompanying her will be four Chicago relatives, her mother, Mrs. J. Hill Whiting, who has been spending the holidays with her daughter, Mrs. Rudolph E. Prussing; her mother-in-law, Mrs. Charles F. Spalding; the elder Mrs. Spalding's niece, Miss Louise F. Clarke, and her granddaughter, Miss Beth Coleman. They will spend a month in Hawaii.

Eckharts and Edgar Uihlein to Start World Cruise.

The Percy B. Eckharts and Edgar Uihlein will be on the Reliance when it sails Thursday from New York on a tour of the world that will depart from the usual itinerary. On account of the war in Ethiopia this cruise will circle the globe by way of South America and South Africa.

Sailing Saturday on the Statendam for the West Indies will be the Samuel W. McCaulleys of Winnetka and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Freund of Evanston, with their daughter, Miss Irene Freund.

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne is joining Mrs. John Stuart Coonley Jr. in San Francisco and will sail with her on the 17th for Honolulu, where she will spend a month visiting Mrs. Coonley. His old friends here are expecting Mr. Coonley to come east on a brief trip at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand to Explore Philippines.

A voyage of exploration among the islands of the Philippine archipelago is in store for Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Forest. They sail on the 24th on the President Hoover from San Francisco and will reach Manila the middle of February by COUNT AND COUNTESS ANTHONY MARIA POTOCKI, the former Gloria Griffiths, who arrived in Chicago Saturday from their brief wedding trip to New Orleans, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dodd Healy at cocktails yesterday afternoon. Last night the Potockis went on to Detroit, where Count Potocki is in business. They will return to Chicago next week-end in time for a reception that Mrs. Moisant Griffiths, Countess Potocka's mother, will give for them Saturday afternoon in her apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. Miss Griffiths and Count Potocki were married in Chicago on Dec. 26. Count and Countess Potocki were entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Tavern by Josef Staniewicz of the Polish consulate. Among M. Staniewicz's other guests were Stanislaw Szukalski, the sculptor, and Mme. Szukalska.

Clock Hosiery Appearing in Smart Shades

Trim Ankles Achieved by New Stockings.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's quite an indoor recreation, this stunt of prying into the likes and dislikes of the men—finding out what they like us to wear and when. The latest news from these frank critics consists of rather illuminating remarks about the ankles and ankle covering. All they used to fret about was the fact that we didn't or did manage to keep the seams straight in the back. Now they are noticing the sheerness and the slenderizing effects of the new hosiery and waxing most enthusiastic about clocks.

So we proceeded to sleuth for clocked stockings and found a grand new supply in a shop famous for its footgear as well as the newest shades and tricks in hosiery. You'll find lovely French clocks in all street shades and warm sun tanned tones to go with sunshine fashions. Some are priced very modestly and some can be yours for rather more than you usually pay for your foot flatterers, but after one look at the filmy beauties you are lost. These are the most perfect companions for afternoon dresses and swanky cocktail costumes, the perfect contrasts for slim sophisticated patent lether opera pumps and intriguing high heeled French Oxfords of satin or corded silks. Wear clock stockings if you want slender, sleek ankles; they literally slice inches off the ankles.

The shopper out for the sheerest hose to be found should ask to see three new alluring shades in superthin one thread 54 gauge chiffon. A gorgeous shade called sunkissed for southern wardrobes, another called tropique, and still another called autumna. Then for direct and dramatic contrast try the new, deep blue called blue melody in that well wearing hose of bridal veil lace mesh. The best looking street shade in the clock is called auburn.

INSTALMENT I.
A SIMPLE MURDER.

The immense public fervor shown in the murder of old Mr. Saranack is explained by the fact that it was a middle class murder. That is to say, it was obvious almost from the first that the murder was not the work of burglars, gangsters, or crooks—or some mysterious person with a doubtful past. Moreover, the murder was so simple—there were no technicalities to make its discussion difficult. Every one could talk about it without fear of being pulled up by the clever one of the family.

Briefly, Mr. Julius Saranack, a rather old-fashioned man in the later seventies, left his club at about 6:30 o'clock on a Wednesday afternoon to return to his house—Hillfoot, Landkey road, Callingham, Kent.

The house had been temporarily shut up and the servants, including the chauffeur, had been given a holiday. Though Callingham is but thirty miles from Charing Cross the train service is a poor one with a couple of changes. Mr. Saranack, who usually traveled up and down by road, seems to have been irritated by this. For at the second change he refused to continue the journey, hired a car and drove the remaining ten miles.

It was known that the servants had not yet returned to the house when he reëntered it for the blinds were still drawn and no smoke issued from the chimneys. It was known that he went to his bedroom study on the first floor and opened the small safe. It was known that he took out eight uncut diamonds of no very great value—for uncut stones were a little hobby of his. This was revealed by his own fingerprints on the drawer in which they were kept. It was known, too—owing to the behavior of his watch—that between 8:59 and 9 o'clock on that Wednesday night a thin rope was thrown round his neck from behind and tightened on a slip knot. Death followed almost immediately from heart failure, indirectly resulting from pressure of the rope on the windpipe. The servants, coming back to their duties later in the evening, found him most evidently and dreadfully dead.

Those were the main facts and there were practically no subsidiary facts. True, the eight uncut diamonds disappeared. But the way in which the rope was used—as a preliminary to snatching the diamonds—was not the technique of any sane, professional thief.

Scotland Yard started on those facts. They did not, at first sight, suggest a particularly baffling mystery. Either a clumsy amateur burglary, declared Scotland Yard, a private vengeance with theft thrown in as a blind.

On the axiom that coming events cast their shadows they pried into everybody's past movements—and found nothing because they were looking for too much.

Yet the murder of Julius Saranack cast a definite shadow. Two days before it was committed. And the shadow fell over a perfectly innocent conversation between two perfectly innocent persons in a sitting room in a highly respectable hotel at Torquay.

Mr. Hartlandt K. Massiter, recuperating from a minor operation on what he was pleased to call "the British Riviera," stared at the resolute face across the writing table. For a moment he looked offended, then he thought better of it and laughed.

"Miss Esdale, I certainly do admire you. I'm almost tempted to offer you a job as a drummer. 'Commercial travelers' you call them here."

Torrance Esdale.

"Thanks awfully!" Torrance Esdale did not look in the least offended, but neither did she join in her employer's laughter. "I'm afraid I know nothing about salesmanship, though."

"Well, I've never called a woman a liar yet and I guess I'd better not begin on a British lady. But for the last twenty minutes you've been steadily selling me the abilities of this young man—what's his name?—Gerald Saranack. As a preliminary you had me describe to you the exact nature of my property in Mexico, and there's not one single item of the description—not one—that you haven't worked into your selling talk! And there's not one snippet of information you haven't used to make me see that this young fellow is the only mining engineer in the world who'll fill my bill!"

Torrance smiled her frank, humorous smile.

"I'm sorry! I suppose now I've given you an unfortunate impression of Englishwomen. But I really thought you wanted somebody efficient by the way you talked, and Gerald is just that. Absolutely efficient."

"You've given me an even finer idea of Englishwomen than I had before—but on different lines, if I may say so. I believe in your proposition myself, but the young man has one defect as far as my business is concerned. He doesn't seem to be married."

Torrance's smile grew softer, crept into her eyes.

"He—would marry if you gave him the job," she said.

"Is that so?" returned the American, discreetly grave.

They regarded each other with a sudden friendly expectancy. Every day, for three weeks, Torrance had studied her employer's plump, clean shaven, elderly countenance and now for the first time she glimpsed the kindness behind its grayish folds. And every day, for three weeks, Mr. Massiter had studied Torrance's gilt-and-ivory beauty and had marveled that anything so physically perfect could so completely refrain from "playing" it. Now he saw the color stir under her velvety skin and her dark eyes grow starry and secret. . . . His elderly heart kindled at the sight.

"If I may say so, Miss Esdale, this young Saranack is a remarkably fortunate individual."

Torrance ever so slightly shook her head. It was the ghost of a movement, but it sent a golden tide washing over her hair—ripple after ripple of light deepening the pale silver gilt into brightest gold. ["Art or nature," thought Mr. Massiter, "that is a very exquisite effect."]

"I don't think Gerald considers himself fortunate particularly," Torrance demurred. "And I don't know that I want him to. He and I—I mean, we're not that kind. For one thing we've known each other from our respective prams, and for another we think that life is too difficult nowadays for a romantic marriage to be wise or safe. So we manage to keep our sense of proportion about each other. We take each other more or less for granted."

Mr. Massiter blinked. He felt as though a star had informed him that it did not believe in shedding light. Here he sat, gazing with the critical pleasure of the connoisseur—and the name of Hartlandt K. Massiter was not unknown to the art circles of two continents—at one of the most beautiful girls who had ever crossed his path, and she was telling him that a virile and presumably intelligent young man took her for granted!

"If you will pardon me, Miss Esdale, you seem very young and—and personable—to be marrying for anything but love."

Again there was a suspicion of rose-red in her smooth, ivory cheeks.

"We do love each other, Mr. Massiter. But we discovered that much when we'd only just left school. We can't, after all, go on discovering it. We know each other's qualities too well, good and bad. Gerald is impulsive, and I'm——"

"Self-satisfied."

She gave him a startled glance.

"Am I?"

"Well—perhaps I should have said self-confident. Or still better, I should not have criticized you at all.

But Torrance, with her usual thoroughness, wanted to pursue the subject.

"Perhaps I am self-satisfied. But you see—it sounds conceited—I've always been able to get what I wanted."

"What you need," said Mr. Massiter with homely directness, "is a good fierce quarrel with your beau and to be in the wrong about it. If you had to scratch another girl's face before you could get him back——"

"There simply wouldn't be another girl, with Gerald," said Torrance superably. "As for quarreling, we're always at it. Five or six times already he has dashed off 'forever.' Now I come to remember it we're in the middle of a row at this minute. About my trying to land him a job. He hates getting things through any influence of mine."

"Then it would seem to be useless for you to send him to talk to me."

INSTALMENT XLIX.
THE LAST CLEW.

Faster than any saddle horse on the bridle path, doomed to a life filled with blood-stirring workouts, pleasant comradeship from men in uniform and much proffered sugar and carrots from kind old ladies, Siwash had settled well into the pleasant routine of a happier world. Already as a result of much good departmental oats his stomach had lost something of its extreme leanness, but he still bent his neck to leave a wet mark on the boot of the mounted officer who bestrode him, and ran sideways at the breakaway.

Officer Casey saluted as he went rocketing past the angular school teacher and the small barking dog. There was a tiny brass plate on the cantle of his saddle, bearing the inscription "Siwash, presented to the department by Miss Hildegarde Martha Withers. . . . Honorary Life Member, Patrolmen's Benefit Association."

Miss Withers couldn't read the inscription, but she knew it by heart. "After all," she said to the inspector as she dropped into his office at Centre street later that afternoon, "what better use could I have made of money that wasn't, strictly speaking, my own?"

Inspector Oscar Piper was busily rearranging the grim murder exhibits which filled the cabinets of his office. He pushed a sash weight farther toward the wall, moved aside a garnet hat pin which had once been Miss Withers' own property.

There was just room enough for an odd weapon, rusty but unstained with blood, which had been contrived out of a horseshoe and a hoe. Beside it was a man's sock and a toy air pistol.

The inspector nodded absent mindedly. From a drawer of his desk he took an envelope containing a briar pipe. "Wish I knew what to do with this," he observed to Miss Withers. "And I thought it was going to be exhibit No. 1!" He dropped it on the table.

Miss Withers shook her head sadly. "Anyway, the case seems to be successfully closed without that clew," she observed. "I received this in the mail today. . . ."

She showed the inspector a square official envelope. It contained a blue ticket and a terse invitation under a date line of "Ossining, N. Y."

"At the request of Warden Lewis E. Lawes you are hereby invited to officiate as one of the twelve legally required witnesses at the execution of Abraham Thomas, at midnight, Oct. 31. Please acknowledge."

"I got one, too," said the inspector. "Guess the warden thought we might be interested in seeing the end of a case we'd worked on. . . ."

Just then the door opened and Dr. Charles Bloom, medical examiner for Manhattan, looked in.

"Busy, inspector? O, hello, Miss Withers. I just wanted to ask Piper if he's got any use for this invitation I just received from Sing Sing."

The doctor produced a square envelope. "I could never stand to sit through an electrocution," announced the veteran of nearly a thousand post mortems. "So I thought. . . ."

Suddenly the doctor's voice died away, and his white teeth clicked noisily. "Say—where did you find my pipe?" he shouted joyously, and hurled himself upon what was to have been people's exhibit A. "I haven't seen it since—since——"

"O, for goodness sake!" gasped Miss Withers. She sat down suddenly. "Since you examined the body of Violet Feverel in Central park!" She drew back and stared at the medical examiner. "Yes—O, yes, of course. You're middle aged . . . traveled abroad . . . excellent tastes with money to spend . . . thoughtful and careless by turns . . . and you deal with chemicals. What else was there? O, yes—doctor, do you really mind telling me if you have—if you wear a denture?"

Dr. Charles Bloom stiffened a little. "What's that? Why—why yes, my dear lady. But nobody except you has ever guessed it!"

The inspector, his head behind his desk, was making faint cackling sounds. "There's nothing funny about false teeth," snapped the doctor, as he lovingly filled his lost pipe with fine aromatic tobacco. "Wait till you have to wear the damn things!" And he stalked out of the office.

"Oscar," said Miss Withers after a moment of silence had elapsed, "if ever I grow pedantic on one of our little adventures, will you please remind me of the affair of the briar pipe?"

The inspector was still cackling as she turned and flounced out of his office, the square envelope from Ossining gripped in her hand.

As soon as she reached home she sat down at her writing desk, lifted a plumed pen from a tiny glass full of colored stones, dipped it into a well of clear blue ink, and began:

"Mr. Lewis E. Lawes, Ossining, N. Y. . . ." She dipped the pen again. "Miss Withers regrets. . . ."

way of Hawaii, Japan, and China. From Manila they will embark on a cruise among the neighboring islands. They expect to return in April.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton also are sailing on the President Hoover on the 24th, bound for Honolulu, where their daughter and son-in-law, the William B. Cudahys, have been spending their honeymoon.

A cruise around perilous Cape Horn that will touch at some of the least visited ports of South America is to be taken by a number of Chicagoans in February. Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes, and Miss Helen K. Gurley are making the trip, which will take six weeks, bringing them home the end of March.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren E. Taft are going "down under" in February, sailing on the 4th from San Francisco for New Zealand.

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Smith of Glencoe are sailing Feb. 7 on the Statendam on a West Indies cruise that will go through the Panama canal to South America.

William Albert Robinsons to Visit Mrs. Crane.

The young William Albert Robinsons will be traveling soon, but instead of traveling away from Chicago, as most people are doing at this time of year, they will be traveling toward it, for they are sailing from Tahiti, which they call home, about Jan. 26. They will land at San Francisco on Feb. 5 and will come directly to Chicago to visit Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr.

Cornelius Crane, who is in Tahiti with his brother-in-law and sister, will accompany them to Chicago, and his wife will be arriving at home about the same time from Switzerland, so the elder Mrs. Crane is anticipating a happy family reunion in her great house at Lake Shore drive and North avenue. The younger Mrs. Crane has been studying voice in Zurich since late summer.

Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed Arrives from South Today.

Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, who flew to Palm Beach Christmas night with her son and nephew, John S. Reed and John S. Schweppe, is returning today. Young Mr. Reed has returned to his studies at Yale and his cousin is back at Harvard.

Stuyvesant Peabody Jr. spent the holidays at Hobe Sound, where his friends, the Valentine C. Bartletts, have a lovely new villa. The Seymour Wheelers of Lake Forest are at the Jupiter Island inn at Hobe Sound for the season and, according to our correspondent there, they were guests of the Gene Tunneys at the opening luncheon of the smart Seminole club last Sunday.

The Marvin Hughitts have opened their villa in Palm Beach, and Mrs. McKay Le Roy is at the Breakers there for the season. Her brother, Robert McKay, with whom she spent the summer in Cannes, has taken an apartment in Palm Beach for the winter.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick will open her charming Villa Today in Palm Beach this week. Mrs. Wolcott Blair is in New York now, but she will join her husband in Palm Beach as soon as their new house there is completed, which will be very soon, according to latest reports.

Franklin M. Millers Join Chicagoans at Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller have joined the Chicago colony at Palm Beach and are installed in a charming blue stucco house, the Villa Azura, for the remainder of the winter.

When Mrs. Robert J. Thorne arrives at home today from Phoenix, Ariz., she will have first hand information for her family of its newest member, the baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Spence [Laura Thorne] in Phoenix on Dec. 15. The baby has been named Katherine for her aunt, Mrs. George Gillespie, the former Katherine Thorne, who lives on a ranch near Phoenix.

Miss Elizabeth Ballard and Miss Margaret Kidder of New York, who has been visiting the Ballards in Winnetka, left yesterday for Bryn Mawr and Miss Susan Ballard is returning to Vassar early this week.

So many of the debutantes returned to college last week-end, and those still in town are so tired after the whirl of the last few weeks that Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever is postponing the party she was to give during the holidays for Miss Valeria Harris until Miss Harris' spring vacation from Mount Vernon seminary. Miss Harris returns to the seminary in Washington, D. C., tomorrow.

Patty Kelly Departs for Sarah Lawrence.

Miss Patty Kelly, debutante daughter of the Carl Kellys, left yesterday to return to her studies at Sarah Lawrence college. Miss Marjorie Kelly, the Kellys' other debutante, will not leave for her studies in California for ten days.

From San Diego, Cal., where they are spending the winter, comes an announcement from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dauchy of that city and Chicago of the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to Thomas Pleasant Faulconer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Faulconer, who also are spending the winter in San Diego. Miss Dauchy's aunt, Mrs. Willian F. Dummer, is on her way home to Chicago after a holiday visit with the Dauchys.

A campaign for guarantors, one for each member of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, will be launched at a luncheon of the board and the auxiliary board of the orchestra today at the Chicago Athletic club.

Mrs. Edward Morris is expected to return from a southern cruise in time for the luncheon, and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan and Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne are among others interested in the campaign. A quota of 75 guarantors is sought to carry the orchestra through the remainder of the season.

The second concert in a series of four sponsored by the Chicago Chamber Music association will be given this evening in the foyer of Orchestra hall. The Philharmonic String quartet will be the artists, and they will draw a fashionable crowd to the hall. Among those interested in the concert series are Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Miss Beatrice Norton, Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Miss Janet Fairbank, and a score of others.

Coverall Apron Has Trim Lines

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRONS.

Every woman wants the aprons she wears around the home to be dainty, but she also wants them to be large enough to be practical. The model shown today unites both desirable qualities. This apron is the "coverall" type, beloved of housewives for many years. Although an apron of this type is almost a tradition, pattern No. 2660 injects a definite air of modernism in the decisive lines and use of up-to-the-minute printed fabric. This coverall is ideal for all household chores, and if fashioned of sheer and dainty material is quite appropriate to be slipped on over the party frock for hostessing.

Pattern No. 2660 comes in sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch cotton in gay prints and 12½ yards of ready-to-use bias binding.

Modern Flower Block

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Modern Flower Block" is one of the simple applique designs which are easily cut and prepared for quilt making. The various colors used in this pattern make it one of the gay, cheerful blocks for which the quilt maker may select her own color arrangement other than red, green, and blue on a white ground. The quilt may be composed entirely of applique blocks or be set together in an alternate fashion with plain blocks of white or a harmonizing color.

Makeup Speed Creates Weird Facial Results

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You mustn't tell anyone that you're so smart that it takes only a minute for you to make up. Because, if you do brag about speed, you will be suspected of not taking the right amount of time for which the job calls. That speedy clause in your bragging may do for the touchup away from home, but not for leaving home mornings, afternoons, or evenings.

I do think this is an important feature about making up that is overlooked by a great many women. I know any number of women who just slap on powder and rouge and lipstick, with their hat in one hand, so to speak. It's a last minute, hurry-up application. It isn't right to look at makeup this way when a little care in its application does so much not only for the face, but for the morale.

I'm all for every woman owning a dressing table at which she can sit down. Then she is certain to take the time. If you stand up before the bathroom cabinet mirror to do this beautifying work, you hurry more than you would did you approach it in the more leisurely setting. Indeed, there are women who slap the makeup on before a hall mirror, where the light is not good at all. These hurriers rarely ever go in for the protective or foundation cream, and until one has mastered the use of one of the basic creams, she never knows what makeup really can do for her. The whole job is smoother, more finished looking and, of course, far more flattering.

We spend so much on the phase of beauty upkeep that it is a pity to go in for slap-dash methods of getting our money's worth. It's the older woman, too, to whom this hurry-up system is most applicable. I don't know whether she hasn't quite overcome the prejudice against the cosmetic properties, whether there doesn't lurk in her system somewhere the idea that it is a bit scandalous to bedeck her face with color, but she performs the rite in so surreptitious a way one suspects her puritan ancestors still influence her, so that she is turned out neither saint nor particular sinner. Just drab, insofar as makeup can work miracles today. If you are going to use makeup at all, take time to get it on smoothly, beautifully, and flatteringly.

It Takes a Genius, it Seems, to Be Wife of a Man of Genius

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Wives of geniuses, please write: "Perplexed One" asks: "Can one woman govern a man of genius?"

First, before digging into ways and means of handling genius, we would take pains to find out if it were genius we found on our hands and not one of the phony claimants.

If it is proved that the real thing is submitted to your care, we doubt if the idea of governing him is the wise approach. Certainly the last thing he, the genius, must get an inkling of is that he is being governed. Genius, as has been said times without number, is the infinite capacity for taking pains, great application to work. In this, the genius' wife may have to make compromises that other wives are not called upon to make. The talent, the art, whatever the drive, application to it takes first place in the mind and heart of the genius.

Girl of 3 Shouldn't Be Expected to Act Like Grownup Person

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Circumstances have made it necessary for us to move in with my parents and my little girl Susan has received perhaps more than her share of loving attention," a mother writes. "I can still boast that she does have lovely table manners for one so young [she will not be 3 until September] and that her eating habits are still unspoiled. But O, what a will and determination my child does have!"

May I start by giving you a general warning? That is, do not try to make your little daughter too much like a grownup person—too proper, too quiet, and too well mannered. All this training she does need to acquire gradually, but for her normal growth and development she needs freedom, activity, understanding, and wise guidance.

This will that she has is a fine thing and only needs the right handling to become a great asset to her.

I wish you all could ignore her a little bit more, giving her what I call wholesome neglect, which doesn't mean less interest but interest of a different kind. And don't discuss her at all in her presence.

What to Do For "JITTERY" NERVES!

When you are weak, tired out, nervous, cross, irritable and easily upset, science now says that one of the real causes is usually GLANDS STARVING FOR IODINE. For it is the body's tiny, hidden glands which actually control the assimilation of nourishment—the conversion of food into strength, rich, red blood, energy and solid, "stay-there" flesh. Without NATURAL IODINE, these glands fail to operate properly. Assimilation fails, metabolism is irregular and the food you eat not only is largely unused and improperly digested, but tends to clog up the whole system. Indigestion, constipation aggravate your weakened condition and the result is, inevitably, jittery, jangled nerves, sleeplessness and a tired-out, run-down condition.

Now, however, with Kelpamalt, the world's richest source of NATURAL PLANT IODINE (don't confuse this with ordinary liquid iodine, which is sometimes toxic), you can quickly get right down to the cause of the trouble. Besides providing plant iodine and the minerals that assure good digestion, Kelpamalt helps the system convert your food into rugged strength, tireless energy and builds the calm nerves, lasting endurance and the extra lbs. of good, solid flesh that make you feel so well.

Try this amazing new mineral-iodine concentrate for 1 week. Notice how much better you feel, how well you sleep, how your appetite and digestion improve. Notice how worn out, exhausted nerves quickly calm and grow strong. Over 4,000,000 people annually use Kelpamalt. Costs but little to use. Be sure to get the original Seedol Kelpamalt Tablets.

Walgreen DRUG STORES

According to CULBERTSON

REBIDS BY THE OPENING BIDDER.

When your partner, over a one-bid by you, has shown a lower ranking suit at the two level, you must not bid two no trump on a minimum holding. You must have, for this response, at least 3½ honor tricks, divided among three suits. And you must have at least two small cards of your partner's suit.

With a rebiddable suit and a minimum hand, always rebid your suit. Bid any new biddable suit if it is lower ranking than your first suit and can be bid at the two level. But to show a new suit at three, you need additional strength.

You have bid one spade, your partner's response was two diamonds. Your rebid is:

Two hearts	Two spades
♠ A K 6 3	♠ K Q J 7 5
♥ K Q 5 2	♥ 6 2
♦ 8 2	♦ J 7 3
♣ 10 7 4	♣ A 10 7
No added values, but contract is not increased.	A minimum, but with a rebiddable suit.

Two no trump	Three clubs
♠ A Q 9 4	♠ A K 9 6 2
♥ A 10 8	♥ Q 4
♦ 10 7	♦ Q 6
♣ A 9 7 3	♣ K Q 10 5
3½ H. T., with two cards in diamonds.	An additional H. T. necessary to bid 3.

Explicit Bidding.

Some of the most difficult bridge problems involve nothing but how to reach the proper contract. Those players who manage this on a large proportion of hands might be aptly called "bridge purists" because their partnership language is so clear and so exact.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH

SOUTH
♠ A 9 5

♣ A Q 10 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	2 diamonds	2 spades
Pass	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
5 clubs [final bid]

Monday is Student day in Ely Culbertson's column. Write your bridge troubles and questions to him, care of The Tribune. Remember to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The crucial bid was South's three spade cue-bid, with its unusual weakness implication on this particular hand. It must be carefully noted that South did not make this bid at the time when it would have denoted great strength, directly over East's two spade bid. Instead, he passed. So his cue-bid, subsequently made, was clearly a warning of duplication, which North accepted by abandoning the slam.

It should be pointed out that, while North and South deserved credit for staying out of an unmakable slam, they had their opponent to thank for it. Without East's bid, the true situation could have been uncovered only through the use of the Culbertson void-showing convention, which would have disclosed the duplication of values without help from the enemy.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner bid one heart, next hand bid one spade. Both sides were vulnerable. My hand was: ♠QJ94, ♥5, ♦K1085, ♣AJ62. I bid two no trump. Was this correct?

Answer: No. You should have made a penalty double. The largest penalties often accrue from doubles of one and two bids.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Pardon us, girls, while we remind you of one little item of grooming that's apt to repose unused on the cabinet shelf in cold weather—the deodorant. Take it down, we suggest, and use it, whether or not you think you need it. Remember what the ads tell you—that you're not the one to judge.

In any event, there isn't any point in taking a chance. What with wool dresses, warm rooms, and the fact that perspiration is a perfectly normal function in every healthy person, using a deodorant in winter seems only logical for all of us. You may not need to use it so frequently as you do in midsummer, but of course you'll want to take precautions against damaging your own reputation as a fastidious woman.

Use your favorite—the one you've found most satisfactory for your own particular requirements. If you have not a favorite but are looking about for one that is efficient and easy to use, we can recommend one—a liquid that checks perspiration, destroys any odor and is not irritating. It has an applicator that's played a large part in its success, with a well wound pad of cotton at its end that prevents dribbling.

This is to be used on an immaculately clean surface, of course, patted, not rubbed, rather freely. How the individual should use it will depend pretty much on the individual's requirements. Twice a week is usually sufficient for the average woman, but we wouldn't make a flat rule about it. Like most preparations of this sort, it is to be used before, never within twenty-four hours after, removing hair. We know you'll like it. ELEANOR NANGLE.

GoldenCookies Are Tiny Bits of Ambrosia!

Crunchy Morsels Have a Wide Appetite Appeal.

BY MARY MEADE.

Tiny puffballs of crunchiness, "short" and golden and nutty under a sweet white jacket—and a fragrant cup o' tea—there's a combination due to honey the tongue of a gossipy caller or to send the bridge girls home in a twitter! Or serve up these melting roly-polies with the children's custard for your finicky man, and prove to your satisfaction that their appeal is as potent to the masculine sweet tooth as to the feminine.

The recipe for these winning morsels is one I begged for you from a friend whose mother was a truly superb cook. [And since we still are hearing from the "husband chefs," here's a note of interest to them: On first hand authority I know that the latter had her first cooking lessons from her husband, honestly, after she was married! He told me about it over some melting waffles of his own concoction.]

But enough of aside comment! Here's the how of these tiny cookies. Try 'em and know that our praises aren't idle words.

Canadian Cookies.

2 cups sifted flour
5 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
1 cup nut meats
1 teaspoon water
½ teaspoon vanilla
Confectioner's sugar

Cream the butter until it has the consistency of whipped cream. Gradually work in the flour, confectioner's sugar, and nut meats. Add the vanilla and water, doubling the amount of water if necessary to make the mixture cling together. Shape the crumbly mixture into balls about the size of a large marble and lay on a baking sheet. Chill and bake in a 400 degree F. oven until delicately golden. While still hot, roll each cooky in confectioner's sugar. The heat will cause a rather thick, soft coating of the sugar to surround each "marble."

Another recently begged recipe is one for chocolate apple butter squares, tender and fragrant and utterly delightful. Served warm, these may be welcomed as starkly unadorned as plain gingerbread. With a fluff of whipped cream they make a pleasing dessert—or [and we think this is best] each square may have a melting cascade of a soft confectioner's icing slithered over it just before serving.

Chocolate Apple Butter Squares.

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 squares baking chocolate
½ cup boiling water
1⅓ cups sifted pastry flour
½ teaspoon soda
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sour milk
¾ cup apple butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup nut meats

Cream the shortening and sugar until fluffy, and whip in the unbeaten eggs. Add the chocolate, which has been melted over hot water, and stir in the boiling water. Sift the flour with the soda, baking powder, and salt. Combine the sour milk, apple butter, and vanilla. Add half the sifted dry ingredients, mix well, then half the sour milk mixture, then the remaining dry ingredients, and finally the remaining liquid. Beat well, add the chopped nut meats, and turn into a large dripping pan lined with waxed paper. Bake at 350 degrees F. until the cake begins to shrink from the sides of the pan. While still warm, cut in squares, and serve either hot or cold.

GOLDEN GLOVES BOUTS OPEN IN CHICAGO FEB. 11

It's Time to Send In Entries Now!

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's ninth annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournaments will start Feb. 11 in two sections of the city. From then on until the Chicagoland squad of 24 amateurs is chosen on March 6 action will be heavy on all fronts.

As in other years THE TRIBUNE will hold two tournaments, one for novice boxers and the other for experienced boxers. This latter division, the Open division, constitutes the only means of approach to the Tournament of Champions from which will come the team to battle New York in Madison Square Garden on March 23. The novice boxers will determine their champions during this Tournament of Champions, but they will not be a part of it.

Send in Entries Now!

Today THE TRIBUNE prints the Golden Gloves entry blank for these tournaments. Entries will not be accepted after midnight Feb. 3. All contestants must be examined by physicians prior to the night of the bouts, so it is important that you send your entry in early. Information will be sent you by mail telling you when to report for your medical examination. Other instructions also will be given you.

As in other years medical examinations will be held at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street.

Early Boxers Get Choice.

When you report for examination you will be assigned to one of the three Chicago sections. Those who report first, in other words those who send in their entries first, will have choice of section. The dates for the three sections are as follows:

West side—Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street, Feb. 11, 12, 13, 17, and 18.

South side—White City, South Park avenue and 63d street, Feb. 11, 12, and 13.

South side—124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 53d street, Feb. 18 and 19.

North side—Loyola university, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, Feb. 18, 19, and 20.

The south side tournament will be the largest. This always has been true and as a result two Open division boxers in each of the eight weight classes will qualify for the Tournament of Champions. The west and north side tournaments will be represented by one boxer each in the eight weights. Thus Chicago will have 32 boxers to compete against the boys from 13 states. Oklahoma and West Virginia have been added to this great amateur tournament this year. The states represented last year were Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and Missouri.

Same Rules for Novices.

Novice boxers also will be qualified under the same arrangements. Two will be qualified in each weight from the south side and one each from the west and north. Thus thirty-two boys will be eligible for the semi-finals and finals of the Novice tournament which will be held in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions.

The difference between Novice and Open division fighters is not a hard and fast line. It depends on experience and number of bouts fought, but the number of years' experience also will be counted. Open division boxers must pay their own registration fee to the Central A. A. U. association. The fee for the novice boxers will be paid by THE TRIBUNE.

Pick Team March 6.

The Chicago squad, which will fight in New York on March 23, will be chosen on the night of March 6, immediately following the finals of the Chicagoland tournament. Last year Chicago won the intercity matches and then went on to defeat the champions of Italy. Only two Chicago boys were able to stand off the challenge of the out of town boxers. It is hoped that our own Chicago amateurs will do better this year.

The immediate task for each boxer in Chicago is to be certain your entry is sent to THE TRIBUNE as soon as possible. Then begin your preparation. In checking your weight division estimate your weight, or better yet, weigh yourself stripped. The preliminary entry does not bind you from shifting weight class later. But you may only compete in one weight class and you can fight in only one division.

Send your entry blank to Wilfrid Smith, Sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago, Ill. Your letter of information will follow within a few days.

Toledo Sports Coliseum Razed by $50,000 Fire

Toledo, O., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin razed the Toledo Coliseum today. District Fire Chief Fred Schlorf said the frame structure was built at a cost of $50,000. Twelve companies fought the flames for three hours. Two firemen were injured. The Coliseum was used as the scene of food shows, wrestling matches, and other sporting events.

SILVER FOOTBALL.

JAY BERWANGER of the University of Chicago will receive THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S twelfth annual Silver Football, actual size, awarded to the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team for the season of 1935, between halves of the Chicago-Wisconsin basketball game tonight.

Berwanger well may feel proud of the fact that the point margin in his favor in winning this trophy was the highest in the history of the competition, dating back to 1924. Points accrue from ballots of the board of award, consisting of 23 members, with two points for first choice and one point for second choice.

With 23 members of the board of award voting, the highest number of points which may be received by any individual is 46. Berwanger received 40. He was first choice of 19 of 23 members of the board of award, second choice of two. The Chicago star was named first by seven of ten Big Ten coaches, by nine of ten officials working in conference games. It was a remarkable tribute to his offensive and defensive ability, leadership, and sportsmanship—cardinal attributes considered in the choice.

Looking back at balloting of previous years we find Wesley Fesler of Ohio State had 37 points in 1930 and Clarence Munn 33 points in 1931.

In the first contest in 1924 Red Grange of Illinois, known as the "Galloping Ghost," was narrow victor over Moon Baker of Northwestern, 23 to 18, with the result in doubt until the last four ballots. That may seem strange now in view of Grange's name in football and subsequent exploits on pro gridirons. At the time, however, there was room for argument strictly on the "value" proposition, the basis on which the award is made.

Northwestern in football had earned the name of "a coach's graveyard." Its football eleven had won one of 14 conference games in the three previous seasons. Alumni, tired of the story, began a movement to interest prep players of athletic caliber in the cultural advantages of the Evanston institution. Moon Baker was one of the first recruits in the renaissance which has continued since.

In 1924 Northwestern defeated Indiana, 17 to 7, lost by a field goal to Chicago, then strong; by narrow margins to Purdue and Notre Dame, and by a larger score to Michigan. Its victory column included South Dakota, Cincinnati, and Michigan State besides Indiana. Baker, a natural football player, was given credit for the improvement. So there really was an argument as to relative value, although Grange's absence from a list of Silver Football winners naturally would be regarded as a calamity, possibly a mistake, at this writing.

The closest contest of the series was in 1928 when Chuck Bennett of Indiana won by one point, 21 to 20, over Walter Holmer of Northwestern. Other close ones were in 1925 with Tim Lowry of Northwestern 23 and Benny Friedman of Michigan, 18 [Friedman won the Football in 1926]; in 1932 with Harry Newman of Michigan, 28, and Gil Berry of Illinois, 23; in 1933 with Joe Laws of Iowa, 33, and Pug Lund of Minnesota, 17 [Lund won the trophy in 1934].

WISCONSIN AND CHICAGO MEET ON MIDWAY TONIGHT

Purdue Battles Unbeaten Ohio State.

Now, what do you think of Western conference basketball?

The season hasn't really started, only two games were played Saturday night, but in those court engagements two of last year's champions, Wisconsin and Illinois, bumped into trouble. And undoubtedly there will be more surprises tonight and on Saturday when the week's schedule of nine games has been completed.

Wisconsin must have known that Ohio State, undefeated in practice games, would be difficult to negotiate. But the Badgers, in their most dirgeful moments, didn't conceive they would be held to a 24 to 8 count at the half and would lose ignominiously, 44 to 23. And Illinois, supremely confident that Iowa would be a soft touch after the early minutes, was completely surprised and lost a heart breaking contest, 27 to 26.

Combes' Failure Costly.

Iowa's fans concurred in Illinois' optimistic attitude, for Iowa's fieldhouse was less than half occupied to see Sid Rosenthal, John Barko, and Van Ysseldyke play deliberate basketball to rout the Illinois quintet. Even so, the Illini went ahead by a point in the closing minutes and only failed of a tie or victory when Harry Combes missed two free throws. Thompson of Iowa fouled Combes with 16 seconds left to play, but Combes missed both penalty shots and the game was over when the Hawkeyes captured the ball and held until the gun.

Tonight the Illini visit Minneapolis. This also was considered a setup for them, but after reading of the Gophers' valiant battle against Notre Dame, the Illinois team probably doesn't know which way to turn. Minnesota led Notre Dame 11 to 6 at the intermission and lost by only two points, 29 to 27. Coach George Keogan started his veterans in place of his sophomore trio of Moir, Meyer, and Nowak, and the veterans didn't get a field goal in the first half. The game was under control in the second 20 minutes until a late Minnesota rally threatened. This was the same Minnesota quintet which was overwhelmed by De Paul.

Badgers Meet Maroons.

Wisconsin comes to Chicago's Midway tonight. Chicago now has an improved quintet with sophomore talent supporting Bill Haarlow, last year's high scorer in the Big Ten. Perhaps, the Maroons will prove again that speed is more important than towering players. At any rate, Chicago cannot be rated less than even. In between halves of tonight's game Harvey T. Woodruff, conductor of THE TRIBUNE column "In the Wake of the News," will present Jay Berwanger of Chicago with the silver football emblematic of the most valuable player to his team during the recent conference football campaign.

Purdue plays at Columbus tonight and the result of this game will give a better idea of how far Ohio State can reasonably expect to go this season. Last year Purdue and Ohio State divided their series. Purdue won at Lafayette, 42 to 41, overcoming Ohio's half time lead of 31 to 16 in the season's greatest rally. On Feb. 23 last year, Ohio State won from the Boilermakers, 40 to 39, on their home court.

Michigan Is Unbeaten.

Undefeated Michigan, with its Townsend brothers at forward to bolster last year's indifferent quintet, entertains Indiana tonight at Ann Arbor. The Hoosiers lost their first game of the season Friday night to De Paul university, 35 to 31. Indiana depends largely on long distance shooting, except for occasional goals by Fechtman, its tall center, but in Gee Michigan also has a supercenter. This game should be a close fight.

Northwestern had no difficulty winning from Marquette Saturday night, 37 to 15, after a slow start. This concludes the Wildcats' preliminary drills in which they lost to Notre Dame 40 to 29; tied the Irish in the mixup New Year's eve, 20 to 20, and defeated California, Pittsburgh, Carleton, and Michigan State.

A FIGHTING FARMER DOES HIS CHORES

Charley Retzlaff, heavyweight fighter who'll meet Joe Louis at the Chicago Stadium Jan. 17, climbs a windmill on his 2,000 acre ranch at Leonard, N. D., to do a repair job. Retzlaff and Louis are former Chicago Golden Gloves boxers, Retzlaff appearing in the 1932 tournament and Louis winning the light heavyweight title in 1934.

Chewing a straw in the best farm tradition, Retzlaff takes a little time out from his chores. The North Dakota socker will arrive in Chicago tomorrow to continue training for the Louis bout.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CUB players hope that Glamorous Bob Lewis, the club's traveling secretary, brings a kitful of aspirin with him on the spring training trip. . . . One day last March when the players were being transported from Los Angeles to Wilmington, Cal., from where they take the boat for Avalon, their motor coach ran into a cow, flooring the animal for what appeared to be a knockout. . . . Lewis leaped off the bus and administered a couple of aspirin to the critter, which before long staggered to its feet and walked away without leaving so much as a lawsuit in its wake. . . . The Cubs are scheduled to make eight trips out of Tampa on buses next spring. . . . President William Harridge of the American league will go to New York Wednesday to work out major league schedules with Ford Frick, president of the National league. . . . All the players in the professional tennis troupe, which appears in Chicago Jan. 15, are under a percentage contract, except Bill Tilden, who splits profits with Bill O'Brien, manager of the tour, at the end of the season. . . .

The reason Guy Mercer, guard on Northwestern's basketball team, seldom takes a long shot at the basket is that he can't see that far. . . . He wears glasses at all times when not playing. . . . Dick Templeton, Stanford track coach, is recovering from an operation for a kidney disorder. . . . He had been ailing for a year. . . . Three Purdue basketball players feel at home when they enter Jefferson High school gymnasium, which the Boilermakers use for their home floor. . . . Edward Elliott, Jewell Young and John Sines are former basketball stars of Jefferson High, which is coached by A. B. Masters, a former Purdue player. . . . The reason the Cubs' deal for Pitcher Curt Davis of the Phillies did not go through was that Manager Jimmy Wilson demanded Tex Carleton as well as Chuck Klein. . . . Buck Newsom, Washington pitcher, can do Amos and Andy as well or better than the originators, he says. . . . The Pirates will celebrate their 50th anniversary as a National league team next season. . . .

The International league this winter sent the biggest and smallest umpires to the major leagues. . . . Cal Hubbard went to the American league and Tiny Parker, about half the size of the Green Bay tackle, has been signed by the National league. . . . It's getting so you can't believe a word you read in the newspapers, some of them, I mean. . . . Just the other day I read a piece written by a New York correspondent for a news service in which Gene Sarazen was quoted as saying that he was the biggest money winner in the history of golf. . . . This must have been interesting news to Walter Hagen and Horton Smith, and perhaps even to Harry Cooper. . . . Pete Melinkovich, cousin of George, who was a regular at full back and half back, is a freshman at Notre Dame. . . . Frank Dobson Jr., son of Maryland's coach, will be a football candidate at West Point in 1936. . . . George Anderson, California's speedy sprinter, insists he will play football after the Olympic games. . . . He was a quarter back in high school. . . . Coach Brutus Hamilton, however, may have other ideas. . . . Gene Lillard, infielder who will report to the Cubs from Los Angeles, is keeping in shape playing badminton. . . . Ray Roberts, Michigan trainer, is a student pilot. . . . He became interested in aviation after leaving West Point, where he served for several years as assistant trainer. . . .

Billy Burke, national open golf champion in 1931, has been appointed field adviser for the Burke Golf company. He'll take over the job immediately. . . . The duplication of the names is just a coincidence as he had no previous connection with the company. . . . Burke is now pro at the Country club, Chagrin Falls, O.

Ten Years Ago Today—Jake Schaefer regained the world's 18.2 balkline championship when he defeated Edouard Horemans, 1,500 to 890, at Orchestra hall. . . . Tommy Loughran pounded out a ten round decision from Joe Packo at Grand Rapids, Mich. . . . More than 238 were entered in the $10,000 Los Angeles open. . . .

Louis Eases Up in Drill for Retzlaff

Handlers are not taking chances of overtraining Joe Louis for his first bout this year, a scheduled fifteen rounder against Charley Retzlaff at Chicago Stadium Jan. 17.

After Louis boxed four rounds with four sparmates yesterday [the same routine he had followed in his opening drill Saturday], at Trafton's gymnasium before a large crowd, Trainer Jack Blackburn announced that the former Chicago Golden Gloves champion will not do any gymnasium work today, tomorrow, Thursday, or Friday. He will box again Wednesday. Then, after the two day respite, he will resume sparring Saturday and continue daily until the day before the match. Whether or not he appears at the gymnasium he will do five miles' roadwork in Washington park every morning.

Has Respect for Retzlaff.

The week's schedule left the impression that Louis may be taking the bout too lightly. This was denied by both Louis and his trainer.

"I saw Retzlaff score a one round knockout over Stanley Poreda at Los Angeles," the Brown Bomber said. "Although he appeared to telegraph his punches, they are potent, and I'm not going to let him hit me if I can help it."

"Retzlaff's tough," Blackburn declared. "I ought to know. I trained him for several of his matches a few years ago. I was in his corner the first time he stopped Art Lasky. Although I didn't handle him when he knocked out Lasky recently for the second time, I understand he has improved his boxing."

Jacobs Attends Workout.

Mike Jacobs, under whose direction Louis is boxing, attended yesterday's workout, but he didn't pay much attention to it. The same was true of James C. Mullen, Stadium co-matchmaker. It seems that they are worrying only about Retzlaff.

"I won't feel easy until Charley arrives and hard training has ended," first one and then the other said.

Retzlaff is scheduled to arrive tomorrow to open training at Madison Square loop gymnasium.

Pack Is Confident.

Lorenzo Pack, 1935 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who is doing fine work as a professional, watched Louis yesterday. Efforts are being made to develop Pack into a bout with Louis.

"What do you think of Joe?" he was asked. "Do you think you can lick him?"

"Why not?" he answered, "he's human like I am."

15,000 WELCOME SOU. METHODIST HOME TO DALLAS

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Southern Methodist university's football squad came home tonight from its defeat in the Rose Bowl to a conqueror's welcome.

All Dallas that could approach the Union station was present to greet the team that, despite its lack of success in Pasadena, had carried Southwest conference football to a new national ranking.

Coach Matty Bell was somewhat overcome by the demonstration. "It was sure swell of the folks to support the team this way," he said as he shouldered his way through the press. "We never expected anything like this. It will help the boys. They're a great bunch."

Guesses on the size of the crowd ranged from 15,000 upward. One station gateman said more people came to meet the team "than was here the last time a President came to Dallas."

KIEFER BREAKS NATIONAL MARK IN 75 YARD SWIM

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Johnny Weissmuller's 14 year old national 75 yard backstroke swimming record was broken today by Adolph Kiefer, Chicago High school boy, in the final time trials of the Orlando Olympic stars aquatic meet. Streaking the distance in 43.6 seconds, Kiefer clipped three full seconds from Weissmuller's mark of :46.6.

It was the third national record of the meet to fall before the Chicago youngster's powerful strokes. In one trial Friday he set up a time of 7:17.5 for the 550 yard backstroke and 7:17.6 for the 500 meter backstroke. George Kojac, New York, established the former marks of 7:22.2 and 7:18.6 in 1927.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The crippled world champion Montreal Maroons, without the leadership of their manager, Tommy Gorman, or the services of their star defense men, Lionel Conacher and Allan Shields, last night whipped the Blackhawks, 3 to 2, after spotting the Chicagoans a 2 to 0 lead.

It is possible that the Hawks at the outset felt a surge of sympathy for the Maroons in defense matters when they saw Conacher and Shields, injured Saturday night in Toronto, on the bench, dressed in civies. At any rate the four Hawk defense men, especially in the first period, were just about as much out of the game as the two injured Maroons.

But for three miracle saves by Mike Karakas, the Maroons would have been leading from the first minute of play instead of trailing 1 to 0 at the end of the first period and 2 to 0 up till the eighteenth minute of the second period.

The Offense? Good Enough.

Until Tommy Cook, benched most of the evening, allowed Baldy Northcott to steal the puck from him and glide in for the winning goal in 9:20 of the third period, the Chicago offensive did well enough. The aggressiveness of the forwards never died down, and their efforts after they were really sunk furnished some of the most exciting minutes for the disappointed crowd of 14,000 fans.

The first goal was made by Doc Romnes on an assist from Paul Thompson in 18:55 of the first period. Up till that point most of the liveliness was the result of Jimmy Ward making chumps out of Defensemen Coulter and Wiebe, and Stew Evans doing the same for Defensemen Burke and Levinsky, said demonstrations being thwarted in sensational manner by Karakas. Karakas, incidentally, was obliged to make 16 stops during the first period.

March Nets One.

Bob Gracie added to the pastime of showing up the helpless Hawk defense men in the second period, but through Karakas' agility the 1 to 0 Chicago lead stood up until the Hawks made it 2 to 0 in 15:10 of the period. At this juncture Levinsky made a nice pass from the center of the Maroon defense zone to March, who came down fast in right ice. Mush cut loose while going at full speed to register the goal.

In 18:10 of the second period the Maroons got the signal from one of the assistant managers to turn on the heat. Gracie, Marker, and Cain staged some figure skating around the torsos of the Hawk defensemen, climaxed by a quick poke by Gracie for the goal. Marker and Cain got assists.

The assistant managers were still flashing the scoring orders when the third period got under way. In 3:40 a mêlée was precipitated and eventually Dave Trottier shoved the rubber to Russ Blinco, who skated in close to beat Karakas. This tied the score at 2 all.

The Big One.

And here is the way the Maroons put over the winning marker. Ward got stymied on his right board, inside the Hawk blue line, and shot a lateral pass which was intercepted by Cook. Before Tommy could decide what to do with the rubber, Northcott skated up, took it off Tommy's stick and without missing a glide, skated straight at Karakas' toes. Then a flip and the winning counter was home.

Feathers Leads Tennessee All-Stars to 13-6 Victory

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Beattie Feathers, a member of the Chicago Bears professional team, led the University of Tennessee All-Stars here this afternoon as they defeated a picked Vanderbilt team, 13 to 6 before 2,000 shivering fans. The game, scheduled for the benefit of the Knoxville Shrine's crippled children's fund, was playen in mud.

HEAVYWEIGHTS BOX TONIGHT IN MARIGOLD RING

Erjavec, Fuller, Schultz and Androff See Action.

Four heavyweights who have qualified for further competition in the Chicago Stadium's current heavyweight elimination tournament are scheduled to appear in three of six bouts tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. They are Johnny Erjavec, Duluth; Scotty Fuller, Indianapolis; Frank Androff, and Russ Schultz, both of Minneapolis.

Erjavec and Fuller fought four rounds to a draw in the second round of the tournament at the Stadium last Thursday. They will meet again tonight, this time for eight rounds. Androff, who knocked out Frank Shierloh and Bob Elliot in the tourney, is matched to clash with Tim Charles, Louisville fat boy, at four rounds. Schultz is booked to fight in another contest at this distance against the best available opponent.

In other matches Edwin Waling, Detroit featherweight, will oppose Sam Scoglio, and Bob Tinsley is paired with Joey Richards at five rounds.

Jack Heise, Bowling Green, O., has been named Androff's foe in the third round of the eliminations at the Stadium Friday. Schultz will be opposed by Lou Thomas, Indianapolis, on the card. Harry Thomas has been matched to fight Frank Edgren, Wyoming, and Tom Beaupre will meet Harold Anderson. Each of these matches is booked for six rounds. There will be six other conflicts, two at six rounds and four at four rounds.

A professional wrestling show will be presented at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, and an amateur boxing program is offered at Coulon gymnasium, 1154 East 63d street, tonight. The mat card is headed by an encounter between Al Williams, Fox Lake, and Bill Kief, Cincinnati, O. Preliminary matches there bring together Lefty Pacer and Charles Grubmyer, Jack Gacek and Walter Logan, Tiger Nelson and Al George, and Jack Root and George Schwab. Bouts at Coulon gymnasium include those between Sam Le Monti and Bob Wiley, and Barnell Johnson and Benny Miller.

Five matches will comprise Promoter Billy Cepak's show at Cicero stadium Saturday night. . . . Three involve Frank Sagilio and Scotty McLean, and Billy Miller and Laddie Tonelli at ten rounds, and Harvey Massey and Puggy Weinert at six rounds. . . . Frank Agnes will face Danny Villa, and Vearle Davis will encounter Benny Miller in two of eight amateur contests at the 124th Field Artillery armory Wednesday. . . . Bob La Monte, west side welterweight, is in quest of bouts with the winner of the impending Tonelli-Miller fight at Cicero, and with Pat Murphy at Marigold one week from tonight. . . . Harry Shall, trainer, is grooming Ben Goldberg for the 1936 novice Golden Gloves bantamweight crown. . . . Gorilla Jones, former middleweight king, has signed to appear at Milwaukee auditorium Jan. 27. . . . Frank Battaglia, Palmyra, Wis., fighter, is being sought as his opponent. . . . Otis Thomas, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves titleholder, will meet Dutch Weimer at St. Louis, Jan. 17, after he fights Frank Vogel at Janesville, Wis., next Monday. . . . Tony Michaels, Ashtabula, O., junior lightweight, has returned for matches here after a three months' absence,

INGEBRETSON IS SKI MEET VICTOR AT OCONOMOWOC

Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Leaps of 103 and 107 feet enabled Leif Ingebretson of Rockford, Ill., to score 151.10 points for class A honors in the tenth annual Milwaukee-Oconomowoc Ski club tournament today.

Ingebretson succeeds Walter Bietila of Ishpeming, Mich., a member of the United States Olympic ski team, as champion of the class.

Rabbit Hunt in Snow Provides Great Sport

BY BOB BECKER.

Now that we have a fair snow mantle on the ground throughout Chicagoland, it is a lot of fun to go on a rabbit hunt. One of the major attractions in rabbit hunting when there is snow on the ground is that one can read all the stories of wild animals and birds that are told in the snow.

Every time a squirrel has bored down through the snow to dig up an acorn or a hickory nut . . . how the rabbits stick to certain fixed trails or routes through the woods . . . the meeting places of rabbits in thick cover where the snow is all tramped down by the cottontails . . . the wanderings of an opossum as told by the snow . . . we saw these and many other things the other day, and they made our rabbit hunt a real winter outing.

Tobias Gets a Workout.

When we tramped through the woods the other day in company with Francis Hogan to see if Tobias, our clumber spaniel, could find a few cottontails and thus get a little workout on game, the snow was soft, and therefore noisy. The combination of the big white dog crashing through the brush and our noisy walking was almost too much for the rabbits, because several we routed in the woods jumped so far ahead of us that they didn't give us shots.

On the other hand, we saw one sit so tight in an open grassy field that he had to be stepped on before he would swing into action. This one put a stand of heavy bushes between us and his course. Although we did a beautiful job of thinning out the brush we didn't even scratch him with two shots from our 20 gauge. But Hogan nicked him with a long shot.

The End of Mr. Rabbit.

We were in just the right spot at one time during the hunt to get a real picture of the action in rabbit hunting. We saw Toby oust a rabbit ahead of Hogan and on his side, watched the cottontail start hitting on all eight cylinders as it tore away to the left of Hogan, heard the crack of the 20 gauge and then end over end rolled the rabbit, a clean kill. This was good fun for the big white clumber that hasn't had much chance to work rabbits, and he seemed to enjoy retrieving the animals. He picked them up so as to get a good balance on each rabbit and thus make a neat carry.

Our experiences on this little midwinter hunter showed the value of a dog in finding game, and proved that the fellow who works with his dog gets the most chances to shoot.

Birds Are Rather Brainy.

On two occasions when we swung away from Hogan and Toby to make a short cut through some thick piece of brush, game was flushed. Twice the clumber located cock pheasants that were hidden under logs, which shows how resourceful these smart birds are.

COCHRAN MADE 7-5 FAVORITE TO KEEP CUE TITLE

Welker Cochran, world's three-cushion billiards champion, who will defend his title against Willie Hoppe in a 360 point challenge match in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, has been installed a 7 to 5 favorite to retain his championship by betting commissioners.

Hoppe has been in town for the last four days practicing against Johnny Layton, 11 times world champion, and Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan, who finished fourth in the recent title event. Cochran will arrive from his home in San Francisco today to taper off his training schedule.

SKATES ENTRIES, HUNDREDS OF 'EM, STILL POUR IN Playgrounds Nominate Many Teams.

Call the roll of teams from clubs, parks, and playgrounds. Entries poured into THE TRIBUNE'S sports department Saturday and yesterday for the nineteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies which are scheduled this week-end at Garfield park. And the end has not come, for today hundreds of letters, which were mailed before last night's deadline, will be brought from THE TRIBUNE'S central mail department.

Several factors have combined to make this entry list one of the largest in years, if not the largest. Only the final check will reveal how many hundreds of boys and girls have registered to compete for Silver Skates. Chicago now is sports minded because the present cold weather has accentuated usual interest.

Gold Medals Are Attractive.

Then, too, the new policy of giving gold medals for all who win preliminary races is attractive. Many realize that they probably cannot capture a major prize. These are working diligently to win gold medals. And, of course, every boy and girl who reports for his or her preliminary event will receive a souvenir bronze button.

Typical of interest in Silver Skates, which has no counterpart in any other tournament in the country in point of interest, value of prizes, and number of entries, is this letter from Earl E. Kitching, coach of a team which bears his name.

"The skaters in this group never have competed in a race before, but will do their part in making the Derby a success." The Kitching Skating club will enter seven in the men's senior Derby. Twelve in the boys' intermediate Derby, and eight in the boys' junior Derby. All live on the southwest side of the city.

There's a Chance for All.

Silver Skates cannot have too many entries. Because of the system of preliminaries with awards for all winners, and the fact that trials in three boys' classes will be held Saturday afternoon, competitors will have a fair opportunity to prove their ability. Boys in the midget, juvenile, and junior divisions will race Saturday. The other classes, boys' intermediate, men's senior, girls' junior and girls' senior, will have their preliminaries Sunday afternoon, after which the seven championship races will climax the two days' racing.

It is impossible to give detailed accounts of each team. The last minute prevents, but from the group of playgrounds, parks, clubs, and skating organizations will come the team champion which will hold the Walter Eckersall memorial trophy for one year. And there is a silver trophy which will be awarded to the team which has the largest number of skaters taking part in the Derbies.

Here is a partial list of teams entered Saturday. Yesterday's mail will not be opened until this morning.

Eugene Field park, Leonard Sterling and Ethel Dalton, instructors; ten boys and eight girls entered.

Tarpons' Skating club, William McDonald, captain; 51 boys entered in five races; this club has competed in Silver Skates for the last four years, and this year has more than doubled its entry.

Burley playground [board of education], E. C. Schubel and Dorothy Stahl, instructors; 18 boys and 11 girls entered.

Fulton playground [board of education]; E. C. Stoffey has entered a team of 15 boys.

Almira Simons park [park district], George Sonnenleiter has entered two skaters.

Mosley playground [board of education], Charles S. Williams will bring a team of seven skaters to Garfield park.

Davis playground [board of education], Nicholas Oker, instructor, has nominated 11 boys.

Gary playground [board of education], Blanche Feisman has entered 11 girls. The boys' team already has been sent in.

Waters playground [board of education], William A. Schaefer has sent in an additional list of ten boys.

Kohn playground [board of education], William J. Callahan has nominated a squad of 40 boys from the far south side.

Avondale playground [board of education], William Mayberry has entered 20 boys and six girls.

Ryerson playground [board of education], Helen O'Malley has entered 29 girls, and Henry Meyer has entered 32 boys for one of the largest group in Silver Skates.

Meyering playground [municipal], William C. Weiss has entered ten boys.

Moran playground [municipal], John J. Fahey will have seven boys and five girls in the Derbies.

Perry playground [board of education], Charlotte Wallin has sent in the names of seven girls.

Goethe playground [board of education], Philip Schuster, instructor, has entered 29 boys from the northwest side.

Oakland playground [board of education], Instructor A. Laurent Turner has a team of 11 boys.

Sherman park [park district], Mike Griffith has a team of six.

Delano playground [board of education], George H. Mummert has submitted the names of 34 boys.

Wilson playground [municipal], Fred Parucka has a squad of 18 boys.

Brentano playground [board of education], William H. Horschke and Alice Reats have an additional entry of 37 boys and three girls.

Emmet playground [board of education], Gustave J. Elste has entered 24 boys.

Mount Carmel High school will be represented by 42 boys.

Thirty-third Place playground will have 14 boys in the meet according to Dennis Galvin.

Hamlin park [park district], H. G. Gaffney has entered 19 boys.

Mark White square [park district], five girls and 27 boys have been nominated by Joseph Novak Jr.

Swift playground [board of education], J. F. Gohl and Julia Dullon have a squad of 49 boys and eight girls.

Belding playground [board of education], Julia C. McKay has sent in the names of ten girls.

The home address of each of these boys and girls has been forwarded and each will receive a card furnishing all details concerning the time to report.

OLYMPIC STARS TELL THRILL OF SILVER SKATES

BY ONEIL FARRELL.
[U. S. Olympic Skating Coach.]

ABOARD S. S. MANHATTAN, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Members of the American Olympic speed skating team take time out every now and then to talk about who'll win the Silver Skates Derby back home. Three of the five members of the team aboard this ship, not to mention the coach, made their first big stride toward national and international recognition by earning Silver Skates. Some of us won this race a long time ago, but to all of us it's still the best event in the game—next to the Olympics.

Just take a look at the personnel of our team and you'll see how the Silver Skates Derbies bring out the best skaters in the country. Eddie Schroeder of Chicago won the senior Silver Skates championship in 1931. Leo Freisinger, also of Chicago took the intermediate division title in 1933. He intended to try for the senior championship last year, but suffered a broken leg. He plans to go back after the title next year when the Olympics are out of the way.

Wins in Milwaukee.

Bob Petersen of Milwaukee, won the Chicago Tribune's Silver Skates championship in his home town in 1935. Delbert Lamb, also on the Olympic team, was second to Petersen. The only other aboard the ship is Allan Potts, and he probably would have been a Silver Skates champion also but for the fact that his home is in Brooklyn.

Freisinger was just telling us the other day that his greatest ambition always had been to make the Olympic team. But he half regrets that it had to be this year because he's leaving his home town without having established himself as a senior Silver Skates winner. That broken leg last year was a bit of bad luck, but next season, with the added experience he'll get in Olympic competition, he should be a sure thing in the Silver Skates races.

That Victory Thrill!

"I won't presume to pick the winner in the Silver Skates races," Schroeder said today. "But whoever does win will get one of the biggest thrills of his life, I know. A good many thoughts flash through your mind when you hit that last corner out in front and hear the scrape of skates right behind you. When you pass the finish line still in front you get a thrill that nobody can understand who hasn't been through it."

This writer fully agrees with Schroeder. It was in 1925 that I won the Silver Skates. I've been through a good many great races since—on both sides of the Atlantic—but one of the biggest thrills I ever had was when I came home first in that Silver Skates Derby.

PLAYER AWARDS IN STANLEY CUP SERIES CHANGED

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—(AP)—An additional incentive for national hockey league clubs to finish as high as possible in their divisions was offered at a meeting of the league's board of governors yesterday. Instead of splitting the playoff receipts among the six contending teams, as in previous seasons, the leader in each division will get twice as much as the second-place club and second twice as much as third.

The change was made to discourage attempts to avoid the arduous first place series and take the easy route to the Stanley cup finals. Another playoff change substituted a best two out of three series for the semi-final between the second and third place winners in the preliminary playoffs for the usual two game total goal series.

HENDRIX UPSETS ALLISON IN SUGAR BOWL NET FINAL

New Orleans, La., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., unknown in the tennis world outside of his state, won the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament here today over the veteran Wilmer Allison, the No. 1 ranking player in the United States, 6-4, 1-6, 9-7, 6-1.

Americans and Rangers Fight to 0-0 Draw

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Rangers and Americans, New York's National Hocky league representatives, tonight battled to a scoreless tie before more than 15,000 in Madison Square Garden.

The rivals let no opportunities go by to bounce each other around. Ching Johnson, Heller and Ayers refused to give an inch when the speedy Americans invaded their blue lines, and the crowd roared as players were knocked down and went skidding along the ice. Dutton, Murray and Brydge gave the Ranger forwards a rough evening also.

The Rangers missed two opportunities to score. In the first period, Charlie Mason found himself clear with Worters out of position. He rifled one waist high that hit the post of the goal and caromed outward. In the second period, Bun Cook picked up a loose puck and managed to light the red light but the official ruled that he had kicked it in.

DETROIT, 5; CANADIENS, 2

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Detroit's Red Wings, with a third period scoring burst which produced three goals, defeated the Montreal Canadiens, 5 to 2, before 9,000 spectators here tonight to remain at the top of the National Hocky league's American division.

Marty Barry, center on the first Wing line, had a brilliant night, making three goals and one assist.

Detroit entered the third period with only a 2 to 1 margin, on goals by Barry and Lewis. Then Pettinger scored on Goodfellow's pass, and Barry counted twice on plays by McDonald and Lewis.

The Canadiens' scores were by Goldsworthy and Desilets.

Only four penalties were handed out, two against each club. Detroit's margin of superiority was evident in the number of stops by the goalies, Smith, of the Wings, having but 20 against 32 for Cude.

KLEIN CARDS 272 FOR MIAMI GOLF VICTORY: RECORD

Shaves Six Strokes Off Tourney Mark.

Miami Springs, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Willie Klein of Wheatley Hills, N. Y., and Miami Beach, put together two par breaking rounds of 64 and 68 today to win first money in the $2,500 Miami open golf tournament with a 72 hole score of 272, six strokes under the record.

In the most amazing display of golf any one day ever produced over this sunbaked, windswept course, the 34 year old Klein performed these feats:

Duplicated his 1926 victory in this 13 year old south Florida money tournament and became $500 richer.

Makes Record Look Bad.

Slashed six strokes off the record 278 with which John Revolta, Milwaukee, reigning P. G. A. champion, won the tournament two years ago.

Equaled with his morning round, the 18 hole record of 64 Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Louisville, Ky., established in the 1935 tournament.

Posted 16 birdies and one eagle in 73 holes of play.

Shooting 72, two over par, on opening day, Klein settled to his work yesterday and bettered par two strokes with 68, which left him, at 140, two strokes back of Gene Sarazen, the 36 hole leader. To that total he added his 64 and 68 today.

Sarazen Finishes Second.

Sarazen, who faded to 73 this morning after his 66 yesterday, rallied this afternoon to score another 66 and annex second money with 277.

In third place at 278 was Revolta, with rounds of 66 and 70 today, while Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., tied for fourth at 279.

TEXAS FESTIVAL CROWD EXPECTED AT SAN JACINTO

Battlefield Marks Defeat of Santa Ana.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Twenty miles east of this oil and cotton city is the San Jacinto battlefield, where Texas won its freedom from Mexico on April 21, 1836. It will be a popular tourist objective this year as the state is celebrating its centennial.

As an event in American history, the importance of this battle is not always recognized in school texts. It really was the first step toward the United States adding 50 per cent to its area. After ten years of independence Texas was admitted to the union claiming a boundary that included parts of the present states of New Mexico, Colorado, and Wyoming, as well as the present Texas.

Mexican War Follows.

There followed the United States war with Mexico that gave California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and the rest of New Mexico, Colorado, and Wyoming.

San Jacinto battlefield today is a state park. THE TRIBUNE roadster wandered over its oyster shell driveways this afternoon, pausing at engraved stones that describe the fight. A ship passed in the deep water channel that was Buffalo Bayou a hundred years ago.

In a grove of live oaks, heavily hung with Spanish moss, a marker told that it was there that Santa Ana, dictator of Mexico, surrendered to Gen. Sam Houston. Houston, with a bullet wound in one ankle, was reclining on a blanket, his back to a tree. Santa Ana was in the clothes of a peon soldier, the disguise in which he had sought to escape.

Army Routed in Swamp.

A pair of white herons flew from a nearby morass. It was into this swamp that a Mexican army of 1,200 or 1,300 was routed by 783 frontiersmen under Houston. Six hundred bogged Mexicans were fatally clubbed with muskets and cleaved with bowie knives and 730 were captured, including 200 wounded. The American losses were two killed and 23 wounded.

Such a one-sided fight requires explanation.

Houston's men were hardy American settlers in Mexican territory joined by adventurers and Indian fighters who included the "Alabama Red Rovers," the "New Orleans Guard," the "Mobile Grays," and "Cincinnati Volunteers," all anxious and impatient to avenge massacres at the Alamo and at Goliad.

Attack Surprises Santa Ana.

Santa Ana with a well equipped and superior force, was merely trailing the Americans toward United States' soil, across the Sabine river in Louisiana.

He didn't expect an attack. Surprised, with their general and many of their officers enjoying a siesta, the Mexicans' resistance lasted but 18 minutes. The frontiersmen pressed the route as in Indian fighting.

There will be a fiesta in most Texas cities this April 21.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

When Paul Whiteman launched his new musical variety program last night over NBC, Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," Whiteman's theme song throughout his long radio career, was missing. In its place was a new number written by Adolph Deutsch, Paul's chief arranger. The copyright struggle between Warner Brothers and American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers necessitated the change.

An Associated Press dispatch stated that the new signature number is titled "Margot," and that it was named for Paul's young daughter. Paul has a son, Paul Jr., who is about 12 years old, but Chicago radio circles had never heard of a daughter. A phone call to Jack Fulton Jr., former Whiteman vocalist, who is singing here over both networks, disclosed that Paul and his present wife, Margaret Livingstone, adopted a girl less than a year ago. The youngster is about three and a half years old.

Jack Fulton and Charlie Gaylord's orchestra made a hit with the patrons of the Continental room at the Stevens when they opened there last Friday. Their music is picked up over CBS and they also are continuing their NBC commercial, Penthouse Serenade, on Sunday afternoons.

Lulu Belle and Skyland Scotty of the WLS Barn Dance crew, have a baby. In private life they are Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wiseman. The newcomer, an eight pound girl, has been named Linda Lou. . . . Gladys Swarthout will arrive from California this morning, reherse all afternoon and make a guest appearance on the Contented hour's anniversary program at 9 tonight over WMAQ—NBC.

Fred Allen reports that he has started negotiations to bring a Bolivian macaw 3,000 miles from England to his Town Hall program. The bird has been arrested three times in Manchester for annoying neighbors. The British Broadcasting company calls the bird its most talented chatterer. Allen is anxious to bring it to America to follow in the footsteps of his champion crowing rooster.

WORLD WHEAT MARKETS NEAR NORMAL BASIS

Price Relationships Being Restored.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The most significant development in the world wheat market in recent weeks has been restoration of a normal price relationship between exporting and importing countries. For years this price relationship was thrown out of balance by price tinkering of various governments. The effect was to strangle trade and pile up surpluses in producing countries while importing nations got along on lean rations.

When the Canadian government tried to dictate prices which the rest of the world should pay for wheat it succeeded only in piling up the biggest grain surplus in its history. At present Canada is disposing of that wheat as rapidly as market conditions permit. For the first time in years wheat prices in Liverpool, an importers' market, are at sufficient premium over Canadian prices to promote active business between the two countries.

Wheat Sales Abroad Stimulated.

At the close of the market Saturday May wheat futures in Liverpool were selling at 95 cents a bushel, or 6½ cents above the comparable contract in Winnipeg. The widening of this premium in recent weeks, coupled with the sharp advance in Argentine prices, has stimulated sales of Canadian wheat to England and other countries.

When the government of Argentina placed a minimum price of 90 cents a bushel on wheat a few weeks ago there was some apprehension that Canada would use it as an opportunity to hike its own prices. The dominion government controls the Canadian supply and it would have been a simple matter to hoist prices—temporarily, at least. Instead, Canada has sold wheat freely and has prevented its market from advancing to a point which would eliminate its new competitive advantage in the world market.

Sales of Canadian wheat for export last Friday reached 5,000,000 bushels, and 2,000,000 bushels more were sold on the following day. In the first two weeks that the new dominion wheat board was in office an estimated 43,000,000 bushels of wheat were sold in the world market.

May Wheat Advances.

Last week saw an advance of three cents a bushel in May wheat in Chicago, a reflection of the strength abroad. The following table shows the range in prices for the week:

EXPECT 40 HOUR WEEK DRIVE AT "LITTLE NRA"

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A drive for a 40 hour week was projected tonight in official circles as one possible outcome of the efforts of Maj. George L. Berry to organize a business-labor industrial council, known as the "Little NRA."

Although his first conference last month was almost disrupted by an angry uprising of some business representatives, who were refused the floor, Berry has announced that 100 industrialists and 30 labor leaders will meet tomorrow under his chairmanship.

Many business groups flatly declined to name representatives to the council, but Berry, designated by President Roosevelt as "coördinator for industrial progress," expressed himself tonight as confident of the group's success.

Adverse AAA Decision May Aid Packers

Speculation was rife last night on whether the millions of dollars of processing taxes collected but impounded by the courts might find their way into the pockets of the packers and other processors, thus enriching their stockholders, should the Supreme court invalidate the Agricultural Adjustment act in a decision expected today.

The producers and consumers, both of whom believe they actually have paid the processing taxes, are ready to contest the right of the packers to the millions of dollars involved. Many believe that the Supreme court's decision, whatever it may be, will leave open some means of the government's retaining taxes already accrued.

The amounts of money involved are far more than the annual net earnings currently reported in the case of the "Big Four" packers of Chicago. If the money could be retained by the packers and distributed to the shareholders, it would be a windfall for the stockholders. The packers and their shareholders would look upon the death of AAA in somewhat the same light the corn-hog farmers looked upon its birth.

Government May Get Taxes.

Those who guess that the AAA will be declared unconstitutional believe that the government's position will be upheld sufficiently to prevent repayment of the processing taxes. In fact, one person suggested that since everybody claims to have paid the tax the Supreme court probably would find a way to let the government keep the moneys already collected on the theory that they would benefit citizens as a whole if they went into the general tax fund.

Examples of the benefits which would accrue to packers and their stockholders, should the unexpected occur and they gain possession of the taxes accrued but not paid, are contained in the following comparisons of earnings with the amounts impounded.

Swift & Co. is estimated to have collected $17,000,000 in taxes from last May to Jan. 1, which now are held up by court action. Net earnings for 1935 were $8,767,000, or $1.45 a share on the common stock. The processing taxes are equivalent to nearly double that amount.

Equal to $1.10 a Share.

Armour & Co. had $12,000,000 in processing taxes collected from May 1 to Dec. 1 and impounded. Earnings in 1934 were $10,566,000, or 80 cents a share on the common, after preferred stock requirements, while 1935 net is estimated at $10,000,000, or 70 cents a share after preferred. Allowing for a year's preferred requirements, the tax accrued is equal to $1.10 a share.

Wilson & Co. has tax moneys of $5,500,000 paid since last spring. Earnings in 1934 of $3,833,000 were equal to 94 cents a share on the common, after preferred dividends, while 1935 net is expected to be over $4,000,000, or $1.05 a share on the common. Thus, impounded processing taxes equal $1.80 or more a share on the common after a year's preferred requirements.

The Cudahy Packing company has about $4,200,000 impounded taxes, equal to about $7.75 a share on the common after a year's preferred dividends. This compares with earnings of $1,968,000, or $2.97 a share, on the common in 1934, and with $1,211,000, or $1.38 a share, last year.

TRADERS SEE GOOD AND BAD IN MESSAGE

President Held to Be on Defensive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—Stocks started the new year hopefully enough. In the first two trading sessions after the holiday the averages advanced a little more than a point and all but an infinitesimal fraction of the gain was held through yesterday's "profit taking" session.

So far as the week-end price movements showed, the President's "fighting" speech, delivered as a "state of the nation" message to the opening session of congress, cut no great figure in the situation, having what the street regarded as its favorable as well as its "bearish" points.

On the first named count there was a disposition to read into the chief executive's failure to refer to any further innovating legislation a confirmation of his promise last autumn of a "breathing spell" for business. The statement that there was no need for further taxes "under existing laws" was also set down as a favorable item of the address.

See President on Defensive.

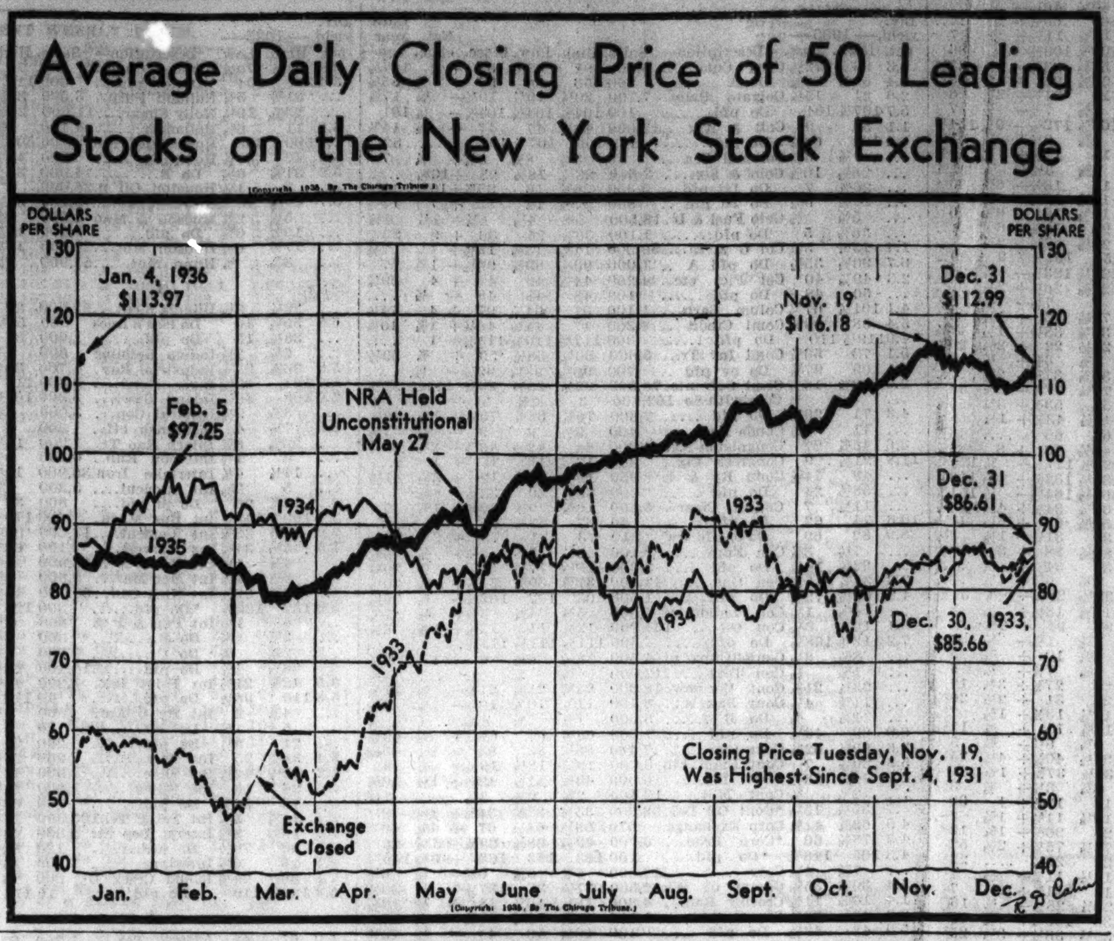
Advance reports that the message was to be a "fighting" affair had put the street in a frame of mind for the outspoken defiance of critics of the New Deal policies and the attacks on the "selfish" business interests, and the remarks on those subjects occasioned no real surprise. One thing that came in for wide comment in brokerage house circles yesterday was that the speech had shown definitly that the President was on the defensive in marked contradistinction to his confident utterance in "fireside" chats last year and the year before, and this was heartening influence to growing ranks of opponents of the New Deal order of things in speculative circles.

What progress the market was able to make on the week was ascribed to the continued harvest of good earnings and dividend news and optimistic forecasts for the new year by business leaders rather than to influences emanating from the nation's capital.

Utility Shares Stronger.

The feature of the week's price movements, from the tape watcher's viewpoint, was a revival of strength in the utility stocks, most issues of the group advancing into new high ground. The oils met with further demand and the rails did better than they have for some weeks, particularly in the later sessions of the week. Airplanes and other so-called "war baby" stocks were active and strong at intervals during the first few days of the week, but were inclined to sag yesterday and the day before.

The "average" price gain on the week, as measured in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S index of fifty stocks, amounted to 3.28 points, the best gain for a week since that ended on Sept. 7.



NET ASSET VALUE OF LEHMAN CORP. SHARES IS $111.34

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—A sizable advance in holdings of common and preferred stocks, and a decrease in cash and U. S. government bonds, is shown in the report of the Lehman corporation, one of the larger investment companies, covering six months to Dec. 31.

Net asset value was $111.34 a share on the 682,700 shares outstanding as of that date, the report showed, which was the highest ever recorded, and compared with $93.98 a share six months previously.

Important changes in the balance sheet during the period included a reduction in cash and government securities to $5,167,568 from $8,393,498 as of June 30, last, and an increase in corporate bonds and stocks.

Some of the larger changes in the portfolio included:

Additions—13,000 shares Anaconda Copper, 17,000 shares Commonwealth and Southern, 15,000 shares General Electric, 13,636 shares General Motors, 22,000 shares Standard Oil of Indiana, and 25,000 shares of U. S. Foil "B." Eliminations—12,000 shares Atlantic Refining, 10,000 shares Creole Petroleum, 11,300 shares Humble Oil, 11,800 shares Pure Oil, 10,000 shares Shell Union Oil, and 11,300 shares Swift & Co.

Association of Commerce Membership Rises in 1935

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday reported an increase of more than 4 per cent in membership during 1935, reflecting the general improvement of business. New members totaled 535, compared with 472 in 1934. Also, there were 93 reinstatements of members who had resigned and 50 more multiple memberships subscribed by firms already holding memberships. There was a decrease of 123 in resignations accepted.

WEATHER RESTRICTS CHICAGO BUSINESS; UTILITIES BENEFIT

The public utilities were the only ones with reason to be thankful for the adverse weather last week, observers for the Association of Commerce reported. Retail stores opened January sales with slightly better volume than a year ago, but the gains were not up to expectations. There is a belief, however, that a sizable amount of delayed buying will appear with the first favorable weather.

In the wholesale field the comparative quiet was that which precedes milling activity. The first spurt of the new year is expected this week with the first buyers arriving for the opening of the winter market week. Predictions are that at least 25,000 department store representatives will visit here this month on semi-annual buying trips. Heavy sales are expected in furniture, floor coverings, draperies, and electrical equipment.

Further improvement was noted industrially, and a marked pickup in pay rolls is indicated in the next two months. A decided jump is noted in production schedules of electrical manufacturers and durable goods fabricators.

Simmons Company to Open New Plant; Expects Upturn

In anticipation of a continued sharp upturn in business the Simmons company, manufacturers of mattresses, metal beds, and furniture, will open its eighth plant on Feb. 1 in Kansas City, Mo., in addition to expanding advertising, sales and merchandising activities for the new year, Grant Simmons, president, announced here yesterday. He attributed increased sales to heavy newspaper advertising by Simmons dealers, which in October was more than 1,000,000 lines, or almost double that of any other October.

U. S. STEEL HEAD TO MAKE FIRST PUBLIC TALK HERE

William A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel corporation, will make his first public address in Chicago Thursday at the Union League club. Discussing "Steel as a Barometer," Irvin is expected to indicate what he, as head of an organization of 200,000 persons and a pay roll of more than $1,000,000 daily, sees ahead for the durable goods industries in 1936.

Expects Two Closed Banks to Pay in Full

Assurance that all depositors of the closed Standard National Bank of Chicago will be paid in full and a statement that anticipated collections indicate full payment for depositors of the closed South Ashland National Bank of Chicago are contained in the quarterly report on the condition of the two closed banks as of Dec. 31, 1935, made public last night by H. E. Hallenbeck, receiver.

Hallenbeck also issued a report on his stewardship of the closed First National bank, Harvey, for which he also is receiver.

Will Pay Soon.

Concerning the Standard National bank Hallenbeck said there is now cash on hand sufficient to repay all depositors, and announcement when this will be done will be made shortly. In the quarter ended Dec. 31 cash collected from assets and stock assessments totaled $30,345. Losses charged off aggregated $311,129. The remaining assets, exclusive of cash, are given a book value of $162,201 and an estimated value of $1,200. Cash on hand stood at $52,257 compared with $18,122. Depositors already have been repaid 90 per cent of their claims.

With respect to the South Ashland National Hallenbeck said that while the statement indicates there is more cash on hand than necessary to pay remaining accounts, certain liabilities that must be considered are not shown. He explains that with anticipated collections there will eventually be sufficient cash to liquidate in full and when the time is ready for full repayment the creditors will be notified. Depositors have been repaid 80 per cent of their claims.

Receiver Collects $4,856.

In the quarter ended Dec. 31 Hallenbeck reported that $4,856 was collected on assets and assessments. There was $7,888 in losses written off. The total remaining assets, exclusive of cash, are given a book value of $367,949 and an estimated value of $31,500. There was $29,934 cash on hand Dec. 31, compared with $22,931 at the end of the preceding quarter.

Hallenbeck's' report disclosed that little progress was made during the last quarter in 1935 in winding up the affairs of the First National bank, Harvey. There was collected $4,325 cash on assets and stock assessments. Remaining assets, exclusive of cash, are given a book value of $391,935 and an estimated value of $45,750.

Depositors have been repaid a total of $348,390, or 50 per cent, of their claims. No repayment was made during the quarter ended Dec. 31.

STEEL OUTPUT GAINS TO 49½%; UP 1½ POINTS

Many Firms Work Through Holiday.

Steel production last week snapped back after the holiday letdown of the preceding week, with the operating rate rising 1½ points to 49½ per cent of capacity. Producers generally remained active through New Year's day, according to the magazine Steel.

District gains for the week included 4 points to 38 per cent at Pittsburgh, 3 to 62 at Youngstown, which is scheduled to open this week at 65 per cent, 32 points to 72 per cent at Cleveland, and 3 to 50 at Buffalo. The rate here dropped 3 points to 47 per cent, New England was off 2 points to 75 per cent, and eastern Pennsylvania lost ½ point to 34 per cent. Other areas were unchanged.

Atchison Orders Rails.

The new year opened with an encouraging outlook for some of the consumers that lagged during 1935. The Atchison was the first railroad to make a large rail purchase in 1936, taking 58,000 tons from several producers. A year ago the carrier placed an order for 25,883 tons.

The road is also taking bids on 550 freight cars and the Aluminum Company of America on 22 hopper cars of 70 ton capacity. The journal says that car builders look for a total of 35,000 to 40,000 freight cars to be ordered in 1936, which would be the largest since 1930, when 45,000 were bought.

Prices Unchanged.

The magazine's composite prices are unchanged for the second consecutive week, iron and steel at $33.31 a ton, finished steel at $53.70 and steelworks scrap at $13.12. There has been some small lot pig iron buying at an advance of $1 a ton and warehouses have raised cold finished steel bars $3 a ton in conformity with the recent advance in the mill price.

Total output of coke pig iron in December was 2,116,534 gross tons, the highest for the month since 1929, when the total was 2,836,917 tons. For the full year production amounted to 21,041,521 tons, or 31.7 per cent above 1934 and the highest since 1930, according to the journal.

CHICAGO MAKES STRIDES AS U. S. WHOLESALE HUB

Huge Trade Shows Open Here Today.

Chicago will become more firmly entrenched this year as the nation's foremost wholesale trade center, T. J. Reed, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, predicted last night in connection with the opening of the 1936 winter markets. The mart is opening the largest combined market period in the building's 5 year history.

At the American Furniture Mart, manufacturers, anticipating 1936 will bring the heaviest sales for the industry in recent years, have arranged an elaborate showing for the mart's annual winter furniture market, which opens tomorrow and will continue through Jan. 18.

"Statistics on movements of retail merchants and their buyers to Chicago through 1935 showed a steady increase over corresponding months of 1934," Reed said. "Study of registration rolls indicates a definite tendency of buyers from eastern and far western states to do more wholesale buying in Chicago.

Report Sales Gain of 22.4 Per Cent.

"A year-end survey among 600 manufacturers, represented in the mart by 5,000 lines of merchandise, showed their total sales for 1935 up 22.4 per cent over 1934. Expressions from many of 1936 prospects warant predictions that for the first six months at least the new year will show continued gains of 15 to 20 per cent."

Reed said that the "presidential year" bugaboo is being discounted by business leaders, who hold that replacement needs will force at least another year of buying at current rates even without marked further improvement in employment.

"Long depression years of depreciation of furnishings in thousands of homes have been largely responsible for the trend toward 'fixing up the house,'" said Reed, "and that job has by no means been completed." House furnishings sales were up 40 per cent last year, furniture was up 28 per cent, and floor coverings and draperies up 23 per cent, he added.

Sees Revived Buying.

"We feel that the combined market opening today, the most ambitious effort along these lines ever undertaken in this country, will provide a springboard from which retail business of the nation can dive into 1936 with confidence that the consuming public is definitly again in buying mood."

Reed predicted that more than 12,000 buyers will visit the mart's combined markets before Jan. 18. Purchases of $216,827,000 were made by 235,271 buyers at the mart last year, said Reed, as compared with $177,146,792 by 205,136 buyers in 1934. In May, 1930, when the building opened, 40,276 buyers registered and bought $80,000,000 in goods.

Congress Cigar Company.

Investors' Guide: Please send me information on Congress Cigar.—G. W.

Answer: Congress Cigar Company, Inc.'s main business is the production of one line of cigars, "La Palina." It is controled by Porto Rican American Tobacco Company of New Jersey.

During the last few years the company, like other cigar manufacturers, has substituted machine for hand production. This has enabled it to concentrate production in two large factories, in Camden, N. J., and Philadelphia. Daily capacity is 1,300,000 cigars.

Operations in each of the first three quarters of 1935 showed an improvement over the corresponding 1934 period. Net income for the first nine months was $62,000, or 20 cents a share, against loss of $27,000 for the first nine months of 1934.

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Net sales.	Net inc.	Inc. per share.
1934	$3,450,000	$ 17,000	$0.06
1933	3,462,000	*171,000	*.52
1932	5,159,000	†274,000	†.83
1931	7,543,000	†273,000	†.83

*Net loss. †Before inventory adjustment, $352,000 in 1932, $918,000 in 1931.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was satisfactory. Current assets were $4,751,000 and current liabilities were $102,000. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 315,000 shares of no par capital stock, 240,000 shares of which are owned by Porto Rican American Tobacco. No regular dividend has been paid on the stock since June 30, 1934, although a special $2 dividend [with option to take parent company's bonds instead] was paid on Nov. 30, 1935.

The stock is somewhat speculative at present.

National Tea.

Investors' Guide: Why is it that the National Tea company pays only 15 cents each quarter while the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company can pay $1.50 and 25 cents extra each quarter? Where does the difference come in? Seems to me they should pay the same amount.—B. G. H.

Answer: There is no logical reason why the two companies should pay the same amount. They are two separate corporations, operating in different territories, with different capitalizations, earning power, personnel, etc.

PRESENT PLAN TO RECAPITALIZE STORKLINE CO.

New Stock, Erasure of Back Dividends, Sought.

Recapitalization of the Storkline Furniture corporation, 4400 West 26th street, to eliminate dividend arrears on the preference stock, reduce stated values of assets on the balance sheet by $225,000, and create a new common stock as the sole capitalization of the company was presented to stockholders in a letter mailed yesterday. Shareholders will vote on necessary amendments to the company articles on Jan. 26.

The company reports net income of $21,882 for the fiscal year ended last Nov. 30, compared with a loss of $28,599 in the previous year.

Holders of the 60,000 no par $5 stated value common shares now outstanding will receive 30,000 new common shares of $10 par.

Exchange Shares for New Common.

The 35,000 shares of 8 per cent convertible preference stock of $25 par value will be exchanged for 70,000 shares of new common. In addition, $2 in cash will be paid on each preference share. Dividend arrears on the preference stock were $297,500 or $8.50 a share as of last Nov. 30.

Funds for the cash payment on the preference stock will not be furnished by the company but by its two principal officers and stockholders. Abraham G. Feldman, president, treasurer, and general manager, has agreed to accept a two year contract for $15 a year, a decrease of $5,000 annually.

Mortimer Goldstone, vice president, secretary, and sales manager, is to take a two year contract at $10,000 plus 5 per cent on sales above $200,000. His sales have averaged $225,000 for the last three years, with salary and commission last year being $23,400. Together they own 41,235 of the common and 10,099 of the preference shares now outstanding. They will provide funds for payment of $2 a share on preference stock not held by them.

Reduce Liabilities.

Eliminated from the balance sheet will be $5,907 organization expenses. Land will be reduced from net value of $320,000 to $145,907. Buildings will be held at $437,013 instead of $438,199. Machinery and equipment, furniture and fixtures will be valued at $102,525 instead of $146,709.

These changes will knock off $225,370, wiping out $150,370 surplus as of Nov. 30 and leave a deficit of $75,000. The latter will be eliminated and $100,000 transferred to paid-in surplus by the recapitalization which will reduce stated value of stock outstanding from $1,175,000 to $1,000,000 in the 100,000 shares of new $10 par common stock to be issued. The shares will have a net worth of $11.

The company is in strong current position, with quick assets, including $113,920 cash, of $452,188 and current liabilities of $51,958.
